U.N. Urges Soviet Call Off Big Test

Assembly Approves Appeal Resolution By 87-To-11 Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Racing against the clock, the U.N. General Assembly today confronted the Soviet Union with a solemn appeal to call off its 50-megaton test set for the month's end.

The international body approved the resolution by a smashing vote of 87-11 with 1 abstention, but the Russians indicated before the ballot they would turn down the appeal.

Faced with the Oct. 31 deadline announced by Soviet Premier Khrushchev for touching off the monster bomb, the eight sponsors of the appeal pressed the assembly into an overtime session to get a vote before the weekend recess.

The only nations to vote against the proposal were the nine Soviet bloc countries, the new Red member, Outer Mongolia, and Cuba. Mali abstained.

Just before the balloting Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin declared that "nothing will obstruct the Soviet Union in its efforts to strengthen its defenses or in its efforts for peace."

Tsarapkin denounced the appeal as "NATO's propagandist arrow launched against the Soviet Union."

The vote came exactly one week after it was introduced in the assembly's main Political Committee by Canada, Denmark, Iceland, Iran, Japan, Norway, Pakistan and Sweden.

The committee approved it Wednesday, after a stormy session marked by Communist delaying attempts, and sent it on to the assembly.

Despite the threatened Soviet turndown, supporters of the appeal hope world opinion will have some effect on the Kremlin.

The sponsors had hoped to get a quicker vote on the appeal, but a long debate over admission of Outer Mongolia and Mauritania as the 102nd and 103rd U.N. members delayed the action.

The two countries had been approved by the Security Council two days earlier in a package deal that broke a 10-month deadlock.

Communist Outer Mongolia won unanimous consent from the assembly despite a biting attack from Nationalist China which announced beforehand it would not take part in the vote.

The former French colony of Mauritania got in over strong opposition from the Arab states who argued that the new nation was rightfully part of Morocco.

The resolution to admit Mauritania was adopted by a vote of 68-13 with 20 abstentions. Cyprus was absent.

The assembly also gave quick approval to a 25-nation resolution calling for a speedup of reports from U.N. experts on the effect of radioactive fallout from nuclear tests.

UAW Delays Strike Threat To Chrysler

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) —Chrysler Corp. had today what amounted to a Thursday strike deadline from the United Auto Workers Union.

The union gave every indication that it would attempt to avoid a walkout at plants of the only money-loser among the auto industry's big three, but the UAW international executive board said Friday night it was postponing until 8 p.m. Tuesday a decision on whether to serve 48-hour notice of contract termination.

Carrier On Last Run

2 Listed Serious Among 9 Hurt In Auto-Bus Mishap

EAST PALESTINE — At least nine persons were injured, two seriously, in a collision of a bus and two cars Friday at 6 p.m. on State Route 90 in Mahoning County about 10 miles north. Six were hospitalized.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Canfield said a car driven by Miss Nancy Baumgardner, 17, of W. Clark St., East Palestine, pulled from the Columbiana-New Castle Rd. onto Route 90 and struck the rear of the southbound bus operated by Cecil Stanonik, 43, of New Waterford R.D 1. The impact caused the bus to partially overturn onto the top of a northbound car driven by James Saxon, 26, of Hubbard.

The bus, operated by the East Palestine Coach Lines, was headed for East Palestine from Youngstown. It was the last run of the day and was due to arrive here at 6:15.

Witnesses said the bus bounced back onto its wheels after hitting the Saxon car, which was crushed.

Saxon, who suffered head and rib injuries, and Frank Garrett of Youngstown, a bus passenger, who also suffered head injuries, were listed in "serious" condition at the Youngstown South Side Hospital.

Miss Baumgardner, a 1961 graduate of East Palestine High School, is in "fair" condition with various injuries. Also in "fair" condition at the hospital are Stanonik, who suffered head injuries, and Ruth Telford, 22, of East Palestine R.D. and Carol Hamilton, 22, of Petersburg, bus passengers.

Three other passengers, including Mrs. Trudy Birk of East Palestine, who received a laceration of the head, were treated at the hospital. A number of East Palestine High School students who had been shopping in Youngstown were on the bus. They were shaken up, but none apparently was injured.

Garrett, about 57, formerly ilved in East Palestine and was en route here to visit relatives.

Fallout Cloud Due Over U.S. In Northwest

Experts Emphasize There's No Need For Undue Alarm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cloud of fallout from the big Soviet nuclear explosion is due to drift over the country's Pacific Northwest today, but U.S. experts emphasized there is no need for undue alarm.

The invisible concentration of radioactive ash from Monday's detonation is expected to reach Washington and Oregon this morning. Weather Bureau specialists said the fallout appears to be heading into a rain belt that might carry some of the debris to earth in Oregon and Idaho.

They said it should take a couple of days for the fallout mass to cross the United States and that it probably would keep to a path over the Northern States.

Spokesmen for the Weather Bureau and the U.S. Health Service said they saw no need for undue alarm or for any immediate action to protect health.

"We don't think the levels of radioactivity will be significantly higher in the Northwest than they have been after other major Soviet bomb tests," said Dr. Lester Machta, Weather Bureau fallout specialist.

He added: "Most of the debris went into the stratosphere and will not come to earth for months. Only a little peeled off into the troposphere (the air layer below the stratosphere), and it is unlikely that the radiation measurements will be frightening."

Deputy Surgeon General John D. Porterfield, summarizing for newsmen the results of a two-day conference on fallout called by the Public Health Service, said there are no indications that health protective measures will be required even if the Russians still explode a 50-megaton blast.

Big Bomber Fund Nipped By Pentagon

Extra $780 Million Will Be Used For Aircraft Of Future

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration announced Friday night that the military buildup will give the nation "a nuclear capability several times" that of the Soviet Union's, and thus the Pentagon will not spend extra millions ticketed by Congress for big bombers.

The decision not to use the $780 million Congress voted for the bombers and for pushing work on aircraft of the future was made public by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He said he had President Kennedy's approval.

In announcing that the funds would be impounded, the Defense Department said: "The progress of the administration's accelerated defense buildup makes unnecessary the use of additional defense funds appropriated by the Congress above the amount requested by the administration."

The Pentagon originally opposed buying more of the long-range B52 bombers and a speedup in development of the B70, designed to fly at 2,000 miles an hour.

But when the Berlin crisis developed, Congress not only approved all the additional funds Kennedy had requested but added more for another 45-plane wing of the B52s, plus money to speed development of other projects.

Since then the bomber program has been under study in the defense Department.

There had been rumors and hints that the Pentagon might reverse itself. But Friday's decision was foreshadowed even when Congress was considering the bill. McNamara let it be known then he was disinclined to spend the money.

First Phase Of Scientific Plan

U.S. Researchers Depart For Mission In Antarctic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of American and foreign newsmen and 25 Navy Seabees take off today for the one area in the world where the United States and the Soviet Union have reached agreement about banning nuclear weapons tests—the ice-capped antarctic.

The newsmen were headed for the world's most remote and least known continent to cover the first phase of the most ambitious scientific program yet undertaken by the United States in the antarctic.

Some 200 researchers are participating in the antarctic scientific mission, sponsored by the National Science Foundation. The Navy, under Operation Deep Freeze 62, is furnishing logistical and other support to the mission.

American scientific efforts during this year's projects will range from the first geological reconnaissance of one of the largest unexplored mountain chains on earth—the Sentinel Range of the Ellsworth Mountains about 800 miles from the South Pole—to new studies of solar flare radiation, one of the most serious menaces to space travelers.

There also will be a wide variety of other studies in the fields of biology, geology, glaciology, gravity, mapping, meteorology, oceanography, upper atmospheric physics, and seismology.

The Seabees, members of the Navy's Mobile Construction Battalion, Davisville, R.I., are the latest units to leave this country to join the Navy's Deep Freeze forces. Including elements already "on the ice," they will number more than 3,000 men, 10 ships and mor ethan 30 aircraft during the coming year.

U.S. Eyeing Diplomacy On Berlin

To Avoid Further Armed Incursions Into East Sector

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States apparently has decided to avoid if possible further armed incursions into East Berlin and to concentrate instead on seeking a diplomatic solution of the war-threatening Berlin border dispute.

Officials here declined to say flatly that there would be no more trips of U.S. civilians into East Berlin with armed escorts. They indicated they could not foresee immediately what steps might be necessary in the fast-moving and highly dangerous situation.

But one high government authority declared Friday night that "the focus of this situation now moves from Berlin to an intergovernmental level where it is under urgent and serious discussion."

If this report means what it seems to mean, it indicates the United States, Britain and France now prefer not to carry the border quarrel into further risks of a shooting conflict between U. S. and Soviet tank forces.

U. S. and Soviet tanks were drawn up on opposite sides of the border at the Friederichstrasse crossing point Friday. Barely 200 yards apart, they aimed their guns at each other.

The effort to get a solution of the dispute through diplomatic channels began Friday when U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson conferred in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Thompson made a bid for Soviet action to end East German insistence on examination of the identification documents of U. S. officials crossing from West to East Berlin. Gromyko is understood to have rebuffed the bid.

The State Department said Friday night the Thompson-Gromyko meeting was "unsatisfactory" from the U. S. point of view. But it referred to the meeting as "initial talks," leaving no doubt that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presumably President Kennedy intend to have further efforts made.

Soviet Given New Warning By Johnson

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has issued a blunt warning to the Soviet Union that the United States will use the full force of its growing military might to preserve its freedom.

"History shows that free men stand firm in the defense of freedom," he said in a University of Florida homecoming talk Friday night. "They do not know surrender, and they do not submit, whatever the cost."

Coupled with his strong words on the Soviet threat was an appeal for national unity in the battle against communism. He declared in indirect reply to critics of President Kennedy that "America can be defeated by irresponsible, arrogant partisanship."

The vice president said the United States and the free world could not be defeated militarily or economically and the Soviet Union might be taking one of the biggest and most ill-advised gambles in world history by its strong stand on Berlin.

"This gamble could well go down in history as the greatest miscalculation ever made," he said in a talk delivered at the Blue Key banquet.

Calm At Checkpoint

Tension In Berlin Eased As Red, U.S. Tanks Move Back

AS SOVIET TANKS WITHDREW. Watched by curious East Berliners whose press has completely ignored their presence in the area, Soviet tanks are shown leaving the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint in Berlin after 16 hours of facing U.S. tanks—just 240 yards away. The Russian tanks turned and went up the street. The U.S. tanks withdrew later. (UPI Telephoto)

No Fanfare In Pullout Of Vehicles

Had Been Face To Face At Gunpoint For Over 16 Hours

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet and American tanks withdrew quietly and without fanfare today from the Berlin border front line, easing tension at the East-West checkpoint where they had remained face-to-face at gunpoint range for more than 16 hours.

The 10 Russian tanks pulled back to their East Berlin quarters about a mile away first. Then about 75 minutes later the four American tanks withdrew.

Defying Soviet protests against flights over East Berlin, a U. S. Air Force plane circled for 10 minutes over the area where Soviet tanks were parked. The Soviets had protested against flights over East Berlin by U. S. helicopters. U. S. authorities said the Western allies have the right to fly over all Berlin under postwar four-power agreements.

As soon as the Soviet tanks left the border area, East German police relaxed their stiff controls at the border and waved traffic through with a smile.

A relieved calm settled on the Friedrichstrasse crossing point after the huge armored vehicles rumbled away in opposite directions.

The critical Berlin dispute over Allied rights of entry into East Berlin was by no means settled. But it obviously meant that the road to possible negotiations would be easier with American and Russian tank guns no longer trained on each other.

Shortly after the U. S. tanks left a crowd of about 500 West Berliners surged forward to the checkpoint. Police pushed them back.

A Soviet army sedan came through from East Berlin. The crowd booed and jeered. Four U. S. MPs with rifles, and four German police escorted the Soviet car through the angry Berliners.

People banged their fists on the roof of the sedan. Then the police pushed them away.

After escorting the car safely through the throng, the MPs waved it on and it went on into West Berlin.

After the U. S. tanks withdrew, they took up positions in a bombed out site 800 yards from the checkpoint at the south end of the Friedrichstrasse. They were ranged around a circular open space, the Mehringplatz, in a defensive position.

Across the street on an open space were six armored personnel carriers, two antitank recoilless rifles, many jeeps, including two with red crosses on their canvas covers.

Later all support vehicles, in-

Warm Spell Follows Sub-Freezing Night

Having given the East Liverpool area a night of sub - freezing temperatures, the Ohio weatherman relented and promised much warmer for the weekend.

And showers also were forecast —occasional today and scattered for Sunday — to help make up the rainfall deficiency.

The mercury fell below freezing for the first time this season in East Liverpool, with a low of 31 this morning. Rural areas had much lower temperatures.

Today's high range will be 58 to 62 degrees and tonight's low will be 50 to 54. Sunday will continue warm.

Number Slip Case Stands After Airing

Court Refuses To Quash Indictments Citing Lisbon Firm

LISBON—Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp Friday rejected defense motions to quash indictments charging four Pittsburgh men with printing numbers wagering slips in violation of Ohio's anti - gambling law.

The men are officers of the Lisbon Sales Book Co., which was raided Sept. 6. They are Martin Sufrin, company president; Isadore Sufrin, vice president; Joseph Sufrin, secretary - treasurer, and Michael Schmidlmeir, general manager.

Ohio Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy, who led the raid, described the plant the third largest supplier of numbers slips in the nation. Company officials said they were operating a legal business of printing sales slips for grocery and other stores.

William Moore, attorney who represented the Pittsburgh men at the four - hour hearing, was given until Nov. 10 to file a demurrer to Judge Sharp's ruling.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw and Atty. John W. Gleason, assistant attorney general appointed by the court to help in the prosecution, will have a similar period in which to answer the demurrer before it is heard.

Atty. Moore contended the law makes a crime out of conduct

Police Seek Motive In Murder Of Coed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The real mystery facing police today in the murder of Betty Gail Brown, 19, an attractive Transylvania University coed and honor student, was the motive.

The body of Miss Brown, of Lexington, was found in her car early Friday in front of a college office building.

She had been strangled with the straps of her brassiere, police said. The bra was lying in her lap, but her unbuttoned blouse had not been ripped and was tucked neatly into her bermuda shorts, police said.

Nehru Faces Kennedy Ire On UN Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru of India will be told during his talks with President Kennedy of growing U.S. impatience with India's stand in the United Nations for an uncontrolled moratorium on nuclear tests, informants said today.

Nehru is due in New York Nov. 5. The following morning he travels by plane to Cape Cod, Mass., where he will have an informal talk with the President. Three days of wide-ranging talks on all of the major world crises will follow in Washington.

U.S. officials are showing irritation at what they consider Indian efforts to equate some 24 Soviet atmospheric tests, which have released radioactive fallout, with three announced U.S. underground explosions, which involve no fallout.

More importantly, the informants said, the United States is concerned because India is pressing for a moratorium rather than for a nuclear test ban with inspection provisions.

New Bid Cuts $6,630 From Razing Price

Project At Ceramic Seen Possible With $65,000 Available

A $10,000 bid submitted Friday afternoon for razing the Ceramic Theater means that a project to convert the old building's site to a municipal parking lot should fall well within the $65,000 available.

The apparent low offer of $10,000 was one of five received at City Hall by Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Robert Owen, who comprise the Board of Control.

It's $6,630 under the lone bid of $16,630 the board received Oct. 6 when it initially opened offers on the razing job. The bid later was rejected because its acceptance would have put the overall cost of the Ceramic project over the amount available.

A legal notice was issued for

Orbital Rendezvous

U.S. Eyes New Method To Hasten Moon Landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The highly-successful flight of the first Saturn superbooster is expected to lead to U.S. pursuit or orbital rendezvous instead of direct flight as a means of quickening manned landings on the moon.

The rendezvous method would employ Saturns to place a rocket and a spaceship in separate orbits 300 miles high. The two would join in space, and the rocket would boost the ship to the moon. In the vacuum of space, the orbiting rocket would not require the immense power of ground-launched vehicles which must shoulder through the earth's heavy atmosphere.

Experts here discussed rendezvous after Friday's perfect test of the first Saturn, the world's largest known rocket. They theorized the approach could cut two years from the direct-flight concept using the Nova rocket, still on the drawing board.

With its eight-engine powerplant pouring out 1.3 million pounds of thrust, the 162-foot Saturn raced 90 miles high, then fell as intended with two dummy upper stages into the Atlantic Ocean 200 miles away.

The entire flight lasted only eight minutes. But it provided tremendous impetus to the U.S. race to beat the Russians to the moon. Few persons expected complete success on the maiden test. Prelaunch calculations had placed chances of success at only 30 per cent.

Dr. Robert Seamans, NASA associate administrator, said afterwards: "Today we made a significant step forward in development of vehicles we need for space exploration, especially manned space exploration."

Del. Tsapis Asks State Opinion On Redistricting

Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson has been asked for an opinion on the delicate subject of reapportioning the 100-seat West Virginia House of Delegates.

The request was made by Del. Callie Tsapis, (D) Hancock, chairman of the House Committee on Counties, Districts and Municipalities.

The Northern Panhandle lawmaker said that because of population shifts in many counties since 1950, "many of us feel that such action reapportionment must be taken during the session in January of 1962."

The 30-day even-year session is normally restricted to budget matters, and any other legislation must either be included in the Governor's proclamation or by a resolution approved by a two - thirds vote of the elected membership of each house.

Miss Tsapis asked Robertson whether it will be necessary to have a resolution passed in the House in order to bring a reapportionment bill before the Legislature.

New York Mets Break Ground For New Park

NEW YORK (AP)—Ground will be broken today for the $18 million, 55,000-seat Flushing Meadow stadium that will be the home park starting in 1963 for the New York Mets of the National Baseball League and the New York Titans of the American Football League.

Mayor Robert Wagner and Bill Shea, chairman of the mayor's baseball committee that helped obtain the return of the National League to New York, will be among the officials at the ceremonies.

The stadium will be located on the site of the 1939-40 World's Fair, and the site of the World's Fair planned for 1964 — about a 20-minute trip by car from midtown Manhattan.

The architects figure construction of the three-tiered, circular stadium will take at least 14 months.

The Mets, managed by Casey Stengel, will make their debut next spring and will play their games in the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants before they moved to San Francisco. The Titans have played their home games at the Polo Grounds since the AFL began in 1960.

cluding the personnel carriers headed south in a convoy. An officer said: "We are going off to rest for a while and the tanks are staying here."

When the tank withdrawals was completed the Soviets were 1,200 yards from the border and the Americans 800 yards.

But the abrupt about-turn from the front answered the hottest question in this tense divided city: Would the Soviet Union or the U.S. tanks be the first to back away from the explosive border.

Only a painted white line, a two-foot high barrier, and 200 yards of asphalt had separated the 10 Soviet and 4 American tanks which zeroed in on each other at point-blank range.

But at 10:37 a.m. the Soviet crewmen calmly mounted their tanks, some decorated with flowers, closed down the hatches, then turned around and rumbled out of the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint area and into a side street leading towards the ruins of the palace of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

There were tense moments until it became known in which direction the Soviets were going to move.

The American crewmen jumped into their tanks and waited, gunning their motors. But when it became apparent that the Red tanks were moving back instead of forward, a U.S. captain signaled for the engines to be switched off.

A large U.S. Army sedan carrying five uniformed Americans passed through the checkpoint into East Berlin soon after the Soviet tanks had departed.

U.S. Army cars had been traveling back and forth from the Communist sector all night. But it marked the first time during that period in which they were spared the trouble of detouring around the Red armored vehicles.

The Soviet tank departure was preceded by a visit by a group of East German army officers to the border. The group included a full colonel, three lieutenant colonels, and several other officers who looked around and apparently were briefed by East German police.

The Soviet tanks apparently pulled back about a mile.

The movement came after a tear gas battle had flared up during the night between East and West German police.

German witnesses reported that 40 more Soviet tanks had moved into East Berlin before dawn to reinforce 30 Soviet tanks which rolled in Thursday night.

The tear gas exchange which punctuated the hazardous night vigil started with East Berlin police hurling more than 20 gas grenades at a West Berlin loudspeaker truck which was broadcasting to East Berliners.

West Berlin police retaliated by tossing more than 30 grenades back over the bristling communist-erected border barrier. There were no reports of casualties.

Tankers on either side of the tense Friedrichstrasse crosspoint maintained their unflinching alert throughout the night, their big guns zeroed in squarely on armored units barely 200 yards away.

new bids, resulting in yesterday's action.

Mayor Goodballet said the board expects to act Monday on the bids.

The $10,000 offer was filed by the M. & S. Wrecking Co. of Youngstown. The firm also stipulated that it would receive any salvage from the building.

It asked that the contract price be paid in three installments — a third when the roof is removed, a third after the walls have been leveled and a third upon final approval of its work.

The Cleveland Wrecking Co. of Cincinnati filed a bid of $15,730 — $900 under the offer it filed on Oct. 6 but still the second highest of the five received yesterday.

The top bid of $15,875 was filed by Chapin & Chapin, Inc., of Norwalk, one of the contractors on the West End-California Hollow freeway project. The other bidders were: Ohio Contracting Co. of Youngstown, $11,900, and A. & M. Construction Co. of Steubenville, $13,920.

With a total of $65,000 available for all phases of the project, the $10,000 razing bid may make it possible to accomplish the job for approximately $61,000.

Council issued $60,000 in self-liquidating bonds for the project. Later, a Chamber of Commerce committee donated $5,000, boosting the fund to $65,000.

Out of the bond issue funds, the city paid $45,000 for the building to heirs of the Tallman Estate. Adding $10,000 for razing would boost the expenditure to $55,000. With an estimated $6,000 still needed for finishing touches — a blacktop surface, parking meters and concrete walks — the overall total would rise to $61,000.

Negotiations to purchase the old building and convert the site to parking date back to January. Council was advised in March the heirs had agreed to the city's $45,000 offer.

The city's plan calls for establishment of a metered lot with spaces for about 40 cars. Parking revenue is expected to retire the bond issue over a 10-year period.

Chester Man Fined For Leaving Accident

A Chester man was fined and a Lawrenceville man's hearing was continued by Chester Mayor Roy Collins this morning.

At the request of Artie E. Bates of Lawrenceville, the mayor continued his hearing until next Saturday. Bates is charged with providing false information on a warrant after filing an assault charge against Arliss Glenn Streets of Fairview Rd. and later withdrawing it.

Wellsville Warden Seeks Home For Pups

If anyone in the area has need of a pet, Bill Long, Wellsville dog warden, said he can fill the order.

He has seven pups about 8 weeks old for anyone who will make a home for them.

Long said the dogs were abandoned in a box Thursday night along side the Welsville Feed & Supply on Lisbon St. They resemble small shepherd pups.

Long said he also has an adult female shepherd which is friendly and would make a good pet.

The animals may been seen at the dog pound at 17th St. and Riverside Ave. Long said he will be at the pound any day after 5 p. m. Anyone interested in obtaining one of the pups may phone him at LE. 2-1951.

The pups are too young for licenses or rabies shots, but if someone takes the older dog, he would have to obtain a license, Long said.

A TRIBUTE -- OUR AMERICAN LEGION

VALOR, said one of the great philosophers, is something lightly remembered. Is that true here in this town? We don't think so. We remember. We remember the faces and figures of our boys who marched away for World War I . . . and our lads who doomed uniforms for World War II. The American Legion is a fraternity of these men who, when the occasion arose, took up arms in OUR defense. Do THEY remember? Most certainly. They remember everything they and their buddies went through: and now with their regular meetings at the Post, they glory in the fact that they constitute one of the greatest, most influential forces for good in our nation. All hail our heroes who proudly wore the Blue and the Khaki!

Have You Done Your Part?

Despite the efforts of volunteer workers and campaign leaders, collections are lagging toward the goal of $77,000 in the annual Community Fund drive.

The story is not new. Only once has the fund gone over the top. It had been hoped that this would be the second time — and it's still quite possible the goal will be reached, or topped, if all concerned get behind the drive in a final push. And we all are concerned!

It's almost inconceivable that any one with an ounce of community pride and spirit would shirk his or her duty when approached to give. Since figures don't lie, however, there must be many who are doing just that.

The agencies which will benefit from the money raised have served the community and immediate area well for years and are ready to continue to serve providing the people come through with the helping hand that is vital to their full operation.

There are few groups more deserving of your financial support than the YMCA, Girl and Boy Scouts, Recreation Council, Salvation Army and the United Service Organizations. But, at this moment, the necessary support is lagging.

As the name Community Fund suggests, this is a community affair, not just a matter for a small percentage to be concerned about. Everyone benefits at one time or another from the services provided by the organizations mentioned above. As pointed out before, it would be a shocking step backward if they weren't part of our everyday lives.

This is an opportunity to demonstrate that East Liverpool as a community is progressive, wide awake and ready to meet its responsibilities. It's up to you and you and you!

If you haven't contributed, do so at once. If you have given already, check your budget and see if you can't give more. Let's get the drive over the top in a hurry!

Switching To The Big Ones

The National Aeronautics and Space Agency is taking a cautious point of view on its Saturn rocket.

The first firing Friday was more successful than NASA had dared to hope it might be.

If the rocket does this well in 5 out of 10 firings, everybody will be happy.

But don't look for much until 1964—and don't look for too much then.

In the meantime, this is only a preliminary step. Saturn is not the rocket that will send the first U.S. spacecraft to the moon but only the rocket that will make it possible to learn more about the moon. The moon rocket will be Neptune.

Furthermore, all that was tested Friday at Cape Canaveral was the booster stage of the Saturn. The second and third stages aren't ready; their weight was represented by water ballast.

We get the idea.

BELATEDLY, government rocketeers have switched from a policy of inspiring too much hope to a policy of playing down good news and preparing the popular mind for disappointment. But the significance of the Saturn rocket cannot be overestimated.

The United States finally has moved up out of the Little League of rocketry into the majors. As far as it knows, its Saturn rocket is larger than anything the Russians have built so far. But the Russians have put up Spacecraft capsules weighing five tons, and there is no reason to believe they will rest on their launching pads and wait for the United States to catch up.

NO ONE CAN be sure about the significance of the rocket race and the promise to land an expedition on the moon. But no one in either the United States or Russia can doubt that the race is in progress. It long ago passed the point of a missile contest; both countries now have the capacity to destroy each other with missiles carrying nuclear warheads.

The race is for the moon. The United States, with its Saturn booster, finally has qualified. All we can hope for now is that the race won't be over before our entry gets to the starting line.

Easier To Believe Every Time

Richard M. Nixon will be pestered every time he appears in public by people wanting to know whether he will be available for another presidential bid in 1964. It happened again in San Diego this week.

His answers will be the same every time —No.

The same doubt will be raised by his opponents every time: Does he really mean it?

This is the most hurtful thing Mr. Nixon's Democratic opponents can do to him in his bid for the Republican nomination for governor—keep raising the doubt that he would serve out a four-year term if nominated and elected in 1962.

But every time Mr. Nixon says he would not be available for another presidential bid in 1964 if he had been elected governor of California in 1962 it's easier to believe he means it from the bottom of his heart and the soles of his feet.

The latest light on the 1964 presidential prospect has been shed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, the forthright Republican from Arizona. Speaking as one of the two likeliest contenders for a Republican presidential nomination, in addition to Mr. Nixon, Sen. Goldwater says bluntly he doesn't think chances would be good for defeating John F. Kennedy's bid for a second term; that he wouldn't want to tackle.

Gov. Nelson Roskefeller of New York, the other Republican being talked about for a presidential nomination, is noncommital. But he probably will be running for governor again in 1962 too and will be expected to tell what he intends to do in 1964.

No one expects him to be as strong in his promise to stick to the governorship if he gets it again as Mr. Nixon has been. In 1960, Gov. Rockefeller went hunting for potential delegates and finding none went home to Albany. At that time his four-year term was half over.

In 1962, with a potential second term half over, Republicans would be expecting another sounding out. Gov. Rockefeller would be entitled to his chance, and he apparently could count on the blessing of both the senator from Arizona and the former vice president.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Commies have denounced Mickey Mouse as a foe of peace. For his own protection Mickey may have to demand a seat in the United Nations. He has done more for humanity than Outer Mongolia, and, after studying the actions of numerous members of the U.N., he declared there are many mice in the membership. If Outer Mongolia can win a seat, why not Outer Disneyland? "I have been following those U.N. sessions and no mouse has ever behaved as some delegates do in a pinch," declared Mickey Mouse today.

"What have you contributed to the world?" we asked.

"Laughter, and it is more important than any contributions of the U.S.S.R.," replied Mickey. "I don't think I ever made a human being fearful, sad or unhappy. Naturally I am poison to Reds. Can you imagine me filling the air with the deadly fall-out from monster megaton bombs? Not even Donald Duck would do that."

"Could you get into the U.N.?" we asked.

"I would probably be held too peaceful. But if I could show that I never pay dues and abstained in every crisis I might have a chance," was his reply.

MICKEY DOESN'T NEED any financial relief or help but will demand a big slice of foreign aid if it is absolutely necessary to qualify. Moscow is definitely anti-Mickey and so is Red China. Castro is even anti-Minnie Mouse.

As for Donald Duck he isn't sure of the attitude Russia will take on him, but expressed a grave fear the U.S.S.R. is preparing a blast against him and may have already perfected an anti-Donald Duck missile. "Altogether chances for peaceful coexistence between Khrushchev, the megaton bomb and me don't look good," he said.

The birthday of the U.N. was chosen by the Soviets to explode 30 to 50 megaton bomb. This is the first time anybody ever dreamed of using 30 million tons of TNT to blow out wax candles on a birthday cake.

Guns and ammunition were stolen from a police locker in New York. Can it be our police stations are no longer safe?

James Hoffa has sued George Meany for libel. Can this mean Jimmy is against any rough talk anywhere anytime?

HUGH O'BRIAN, who has played "Wyatt Earp," the fearless frontier marshal in a western, for six years, will play lead in a Broadway play called "First Love," about as far from frontier days as its possible to get. Let's hope the critics don't turn out to be badmen.

After all these years in cowtown violence, Hugh should be excused if, from force of habit, he busts into big love scene with a six-shooter and tells Cupid to "get out of town by sundown."

FRUITFUL INTERLUDE

Have you come out unhurt, save for bruises quite wide,
A deep cut in your head and a strip off your hide?
Was the other guy gashed, with one arm in a sling
And both eyes black and blue from a haymaking swing?
To this simple announcement devotedly cling:
"IT WAS FRUITFUL."
Have the missus and you fought an hour or two
Using language decidedly bitter and blue?
Are you both on your backs feeling barely alive;
Not to mention some fractures amounting to five?
Remember to say as the doctors arrive
"IT WAS FRUITFUL."

III

Has your neighbor blitzed you and you've blitzed in return
With no sign of a peace bid that you can discern?
Are you bleeding profusely and "out on your feet,"
And the other guy calling the cop on the beat?
Bear in mind to proclaim in tones ever so sweet
"IT WAS FRUITFUL?"

Missile Labor Field Needs Czar

By Victor Riesel

PHOENIX

After more hedgehopping, I want to report that what this country needs is a good 5-cent-a-year "czar" to run our mast-o-don missile site construction operation. Otherwise this nation is in trouble.

Victor Riesel

At the moment the Pentagon is letting the Air Force "do it." The Air Force has zeroed in on all unions in the missile making plants as well as the launching sites. Local unions are wiring their national chiefs in Washington charging they are being strafed by Air Force brass which knows nothing about labor relations.

The regional chiefs want permission to strike everything from Cape Canaveral now to big rocket factories next year. National labor leaders are telephoning warnings to their people not to walk out, but there is muttering all along the line in to-hell-with-Washington tones.

Some weeks ago, a vice president of the International Association of Machinists told 200 delegates at a U.S. and Canadian missile and aircraft workers' conference in San Diego that the "Air Force is unable to read, interpret or understand" labor problems.

A FEW DAYS LATER, Cape Canaveral workers — members of more than 20 national unions — quietly asked their national leaders for the right to walk off the entire base in protest against the Air Force decisions. It does matter, of course, who is right and wrong. But who has the time to stop now? That wall in Berlin is growing higher and higher.

This missile and testing site construction is the most complex undertaken by man. It is, in addition, basically an underground operation. Virtually all of it is concealed from view on the missile sites.

The big "birds" nestle in underground silos which, when finished, if put end to end would have a combined depth of some 25 miles into the earth.

As the Pentagon explains it, the gargantuan task will include moving 26 million cubic yards of earth and rock. This is enough to build a levee 5 feet high and 10 feet wide — the entire length of the Mississippi River.

EVENTUALLY there will be more than 3 million cubic yards of concrete placements — enough to build another Hoover Dam. Enough steel to build one million passenger cars — or about 764,000 tons — will go into the underground launching sites. The budget for the construction job alone is close to $1 billion, spent on 19 locations in 15 states.

When the construction ends, the headaches of maintenance begin to throb. Those million-dollar "birds" must be kept in concrete nests so pure that not a single drop of oil or dirt can get into the missiles' innards. Otherwise they'll malfunction.

Even this is nothing compared to the electronic mysteries of the testing sites, such as "the Cape." A giant gantry for the Saturn space ship recently delivered to Canaveral was a 310-foot steel tower.

It has its own power station; its own air conditioning and heating systems; water supplies, intercom system; lighting facilities and three elevators. It propels itself. It takes hundreds of men of different trades to maintain this monster.

Add these to the thousands working on other satellite launchings across the nation and add all these to the 21,000 building and construction workers on the missile sites.

THESE ARE STRUNG OUT from northern New York to areas near Boise, Idaho, to the deserts of Nevada and New Mexico and the lower end of California and Florida. There you have too much for even Arthur Goldberg, let alone unknowing Air Force men.

There are disputes over such details as which union's members will dig a trench for underground cables; which union's members will tug the cables off the carrier trucks; which union's members will cover the trench and who will pull the cables through and connect them.

Each decision requires time. Each incident could ulcerate our defense program for a bit, as well as the insides of those trying to meet a deadline which the Russians reallly are setting.

Why not appoint a missile and space construction chief — a man so distinguished he is trusted by both sides. Why not let him and a small staff troubleshoot the land? Why not take all this out of the hands of amateurs and those who have many other tasks?

This is a full-time job for someone who has full time on his hands and love of his land in his heart.

350 Million Needles

By Truman Twill

The great good government has admitted it. It lost the 350 million copper needles it lofted into Space. They're up there somewhere, that we know because the government strapped them on the tail end of a Midas IV satellite—and it's up there, all right.

Before our great good government finishes lofting things into Space there will be a lot of things up there—somewhere. Instead of just sitting around batting our gums wondering where the money went, we'll wonder where the stuff went.

It will have gone up in smoke, and there are possibilities here that are more than casually intriguing. Few of us are equipped by education to calculate the mathematical possibilities of getting rid of stuff by firing it into Space, but we're hep enough to know they're vast, man, vast. Like Space.

We could put all the used cars up there and the surplus wheat and the eggs and butter and lard and what have you. And to get down to the possibility that's most intriguing, we could turn Space into a kind of hereafter, to solve the problem of keeping graveyards from getting into the way of superhighways.

It's a rare week any more during construction season when there isn't one story of a graveyard being moved because it was located carelessly in the path of one of the multi-billion-dollar projects for giving the automobile the right of way over death as well as life.

Instead of guaranteeing the deceased so many square feet of the earth, then reneging on the deal, we'd guarantee them a permanent place up yonder, as we used to say when we sang the good old songs of comfort. That is, it would be permanent insofar as permanency could be assured by our missileers. And in any event, if something fouled up and the burial capsules all fell out of their orbital path there would be nothing awkward about the consequences, thanks to the all-consuming heat of friction generated on the re-entry course.

This would go far toward restoring a concept that has intrigued all of us who learned to think of Heaven as geography, instead of a condition of the spirit. As children we routinely scanned the heavens, secure in the belief that beyond our vision the dear departed ones were holding firmly to orbital courses that had been predetermined and were immutable.

Even our pet dogs, cats and horses once were entitled to share this spatial immortality, and perhaps they may share it again when we have mastered the rocket technique that in our time has taken the place of the mystiques that formerly govened what went to Heaven.

Meanwhile, the great good government has admitted we lost our 350 million copper needles, which should entitle all of us to a deduction on our 1961 federal income taxes, along with everything else that's lofted into Space at our expense with nothing to show for it afterward.

The Space Age, everybody assures us, is going to be wonderful, and we are beginning to get the hang of it when we're told that finding one little bitty needle in a haystack was no harder than it is now to find 350 million needles in Heaven.

The Sheltered Life

By David Lawrence

Sandburg Analysis Of Ike Criticized

Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Lincoln, probably will be sorry he ever brought it up because many people will differ sharply with him when he says an army man like Gen. Eisenhower has lived a sheltered life in a "welfare state" of his own. Officers in the armed services will disagree vehemently. True, when they choose a military career, they are offered a certain security in their jobs but not the many benefits available in private employment today, particularly under union contracts. In training and commanding men from all walks of life, the officers actually come into contact more with individuals and deal more with human relations than do most civilians. To prepare and lead men in battle may seem to a poet a sheltered existence, but he will get little agreement on this from the soldiers who happen now, for instance, to be standing guard at the West Berlin border.

David Lawrence

Mr. Sandburg had just visited President Kennedy at the White House and was surrounded afterward by reporters and television cameras at the Library of Congress when he gave vent to the following comment, as quoted by United Press International:

"He (Eisenhower) has yet to know the people of the United States. With him the words 'socialist' and 'socialism' are dirty words —very nearly as dirty as 'welfare state.' But ever since he left the creamery at Abilene, Kans., he never bought a suit of clothes or a meal. He never was out of work for a day. All the anxieties that go with the free enterprise system, he hasn't known them. He's lived in a welfare state ever since he left Abilene and went to West Point."

MR. SANDBURG has a strange misconception—shared by many other people—that each of the armed services provides all the needs of its men and officers.

The fact is that a commissioned officer buys all his clothes—his uniforms as well as the civilian clothes he wears when off-duty. His "ration allowance" and "housing allowance" only partially cove the cost of meals and rental when the officer must provide a home for himself and family.

Mr. Sandburg might ask a few officers—from lieutenants up to the generals and admirals—what the difficulties are in raising their families on service pay as they move from post to post and how they manage to give a college education to their children.

He will find that many cannot afford this for all their children. He might also ask the wives of some officers whether they live in a "welfare state" when it comes to providing for the education of their families, for the care of sick or dependent relatives, for the kind of clothes many other women wear.

Also, does Mr. Sandburg think that only a man who has had to earn money to buy his own food and clothing is eligible for the presidency?

It will surely be disputed that a man who hasn't had to earn money necessarily leads a sheltered life and doesn't know anything about the trials and tribulations of his fellow men.

Certainly the affluence of Messrs. Rockefeller, Harriman and Kennedy—who have not had to work for a living—has not made a single one of them insensitive to the importance of social-welfare legislation. Incidentally, Dwight Eisenhower, while president, was criticized severely by some members of his own party when he became champion of social welfare projects of various kinds.

Mr. Sandburg was not well informed either in referring to Mr. Eisenhower as an "ungrammatical" president, as if fluency of speech were a criterion of a president's achievements. The truth is, there are few persons who, when talking extemporaneously, speak with grammatical precision. A look at some of the transcripts of the Kennedy press conference will reveal more than one slip on this score.

MR. EISENHOWER does express himself well in writing. In fact, former members of his staff at the White House say he was something of a purist. His longhand manuscripts would prove this point.

Also, he often corrected what seemed to him ungrammatical English on the part of others who submitted memoranda to him. Army officers have told this writer that Dwight Eisenhower in his younger days wrote many speeches for his superiors in the army.

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Sandburg, who probably has read a good deal of history, hasn't familiarized himself with the ways of American politics.

He says Mr. Eisenhower was unfair in his criticism of the "Peace Corps" and that "it wasn't very good sportsmanship" for the former president to "shoot off" on this subject before the idea has "begun to have a tryout."

Maybe if Mr. Sandburg will reread some of the speeches during last year's presidential campaign about the "missile gap," he will recognize the art of political combat.

Army life isn't as easy as Mr. Sandburg has been led to believe, and, if he is interested in good sportsmanship, he will apologize to the men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

To say that any one of the officers in our military services has yet "to know the people of the United States" is to fail to understand the very men who devote themselves to a career in which they risk their lives so that the rest of us may continue to stay alive to watch television and even to read Mr. Sandburg's fine literary works.

Letter To Editor

There has been so much in the paper lately about the super-bomb. Many are so worried. And that is just exactly what Mr. Khrushchev wants all of us to be like—sacred beyond reason.

When the automobile was new there were those who thought it an outrage—how it frightened those using horse and buggies! When the airplane came out there were those who saw nothing but doom for the world, and then they thought the bombs meant the end of the world.

But you know we even found good in atomic energy, didn't we? I suppose if we have a couple of super-bombs ourself, the people would think nothing of it — that is, if it were on our side. But you know our side has always been more concerned about saving life and improving living conditions and keeping peace rather than creating things for destruction.

It always has been the right way before and now is. The Russians didn't alone make the bomb. They just put together things that God put in the world for men when it was created. When Christian people take God's gifts and put them together we come up with a product worth while and a benefit to mankind.

I looked up and saw a beautiful full arch double rainbow. When the Russians can make one of those then I shall think about getting afraid. We should never fear those who can destroy our body but guard well against those who destroy our soul.

William the Conqueror appointed commissioners to make a survey of the estates and possessions of every landholder. The book in which findings were recorded gave William the knowledge he needed to tax land. It was called the "Doomsday Book" because individuals could not appeal the findings.

Odd Facts

Probably the deadliest of games in history was played by the Huns of Attila's time. The Huns had learned the game of dice from the Romans, who played with cubes fashioned from knucklebones of goats and sheep. Thus, the term "bones." But the Huns added an innovation all their own. They wagered their lives on a single throw of the bones — the loser often being slain with a spear plunged through his throat.

President John F. Kennedy is the fourth man by the name of John to occupy the White House. Preceding him were John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Tyler. Most popular first name among presidents has been James — Madison, Monroe, Polk, Buchanan and Garfield.

The 5,400,000 people of the Malagasy Republic belong to more than 20 tribes. Anthropologists believe the original settlers came across the Indian Ocean, perhaps from Melanesia and Indonesia. Africans were imported as slaves in the 18th and 19th Centuries.

The median age at which American women marry today is about 20 years. The average married woman has 2.03 children, and the number of women with three or more children has doubled within the past 20 years.

Long Distance Dialing Change To Start Sunday

Starting Sunday, individual and two-party telephone subscribers in East Liverpool, Chester - Newell and Smiths Ferry will be required to dial the numeral "1" before they start to dial the regular long distance number they wish to reach, the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. reminded today.

The "1" access code for station-to-station long distance calls is being introduced throughout the United States to provide for a uniform method of reaching the intricate Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) network.

T. Fred Edwards, Ohio Bell commercial manager in East Liverpool, said the "1" access code will cut down on customer errors in making DDD calls by automatically putting the caller into the DDD network.

After dialing the numeral "1," the caller then can continue to complete his DDD call merely by dialing the regular long distance number, which includes the area code for locations outside the "216" dialing area.

Edwards emphasized that the "1" code applies only to long distance station-to-station calls, not local calls which should be dialed in the same manner as at present.

Other types of long distance operator-assisted calls, such as person-to-person, collect and credit card, also will continue to be placed through an operator, without using the "1" code.

Complete dialing instructions for using the new "1" code may be found on Page 9 of the new telephone directory. Also listed there are instructions for using the "1" code for Hookstown exchange subscribers.

Church To Fight West Virginia's Drink Proposal

CHARLESTON — West Virginia Methodists will begin contributing at church services Sunday to a special fund for use in fighting the liquor-by-the drink proposal which will be on the 1962 general election ballot.

The Rev. L. E. Crowson of Logan, chairman of the church's Board of Christian Social Concerns, said no specific goal has been set for the offering which will continue through November, 1962.

"The only guide-line for the concerned citizens of the state," he said, "is the general knowledge of the cost of any state-wide campaign which involves educating all the voters."

Rev. Crowson said in an announcement there are indications those who favor ale of liquor over the bar "will probably have far more than a quarter of a million dollars for their campaigns."

The West Virginia Methodist Conference voted unanimously in June in favor of the special offering, the minister added.

The two, with three juveniles, tossed the apples while on Route 9 at the cruiser of Constables Roy Painter and Leroy Ridgeway, who turned and gave chase, arresting them on Route 644.

Heights Area Lacks Water

A major section of Pleasant Heights, including Lisbon St., Fisher Park and LaCroft areas, was without water this morning when a four-inch main broke.

The break near the sewage lift station at Lisbon St. and S. Shady Ln. Dr. was discovered this morning when residents began calling the department's office in City Hall to report they were without water.

A repair crew excavated the line this morning to install a clamp and service was expected to be restored by noon.

Donald T. Duke, department superintendent, said the break wasn't as serious as first expected. It was first believed to be in a 10-inch main, which serves the smaller line.

Duke expressed surprise as calls continued to be received of homes without water. The break occurred at the end of the main where a "blow off" permits the line to be cleaned, Duke said.

However, it apparently killed the pressure in the remainder of the line, the superintendent explained.

The Power Of Faith

by Howard Brodie

Forming a Peace Corps of his own 57 years ago, Dr. Merrell Vories went to Japan to teach English in a remote school. In his spare time he braved the opposition of local authorities to teach Christianity and founded the Omi Brotherhood, the Japanese Christian society. It cost him his job.

Lacking financial backing, Vories then opened an architectural business in which he carried Christian teachings into action. He granted his workers an 8-hour day with Sunday off at a time when it was unheard of in Japan. The profits of his business went into his Christian work. Jailed at the outbreak of World War II for preaching against war, Dr. Vories spent eight months in prison. During that time he converted three of his jailers to Christianity. When the war ended, the Emperor of Japan selected him as his messenger to the commander of the occupation troops, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"When you came," a citizen of Omi told Dr. Vories, "we did all we could to drive you out. Today . . . we would build a fence around you to keep you in."

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

A Case Of 'Clean Sorrow'

I am constantly amazed and impressed by the deep spiritual insights of people who really practice their religion. A woman whose 58-year-old husband died suddenly wrote me these deeply moving and thought-provoking lines: "I know that having been sustained through other deep sorrows, God will give me the strength to bear this bitter one. It is a clean sorrow — no regrets — nothing left unsaid that I might have wanted to tell Frank. He knew I loved him deeply and he died in peace in his sleep knowing I was close by."

DR. PEALE

What a significant phrase: a clean sorrow. There are mixed sorrows, regretful sorrows, even soiled sorrows and these are not only more painful but also more difficult to heal. But a clean sorrow in which there is no regret only love and faith and happy memories is one of God's greatest blessings.

It brings peace, and understanding and comfort. It is the harmonious working out of God's plan and everything about it is right and good, though not without pain. Clean sorrow is accompanied by clean pain and in its healing it brings healing to the soul.

THE HUSBAND referred to in this spiritually mature statement quoted above was an old and dear friend of mine, Frank W. Kridel, vice president and general manager of the Manhattan and Astor hotels in New York City. I married Frank and his wife "Bibs" and was their pastor, counselor and friend in all the problems of their lives across the years.

In my writing and preaching I have taught a simple formula of life which they followed implicity. It is to take God as your partner, consult Him in all things, put your life and its problems in His hands, then do your best, trusting Him for guidance.

Frank and his wife accepted this formula and lived it completely. Whenever a problem arose either of a personal or business nature, Frank and Bibs would either telephone or come to see me.

We would discuss the problem, then pray about it and work out a solution on this basis. Then they would proceed to carry it out using the best knowledge they possessed. This understanding was sharpened and deepened by the prayer process.

Frank became one of the most successful and best-loved hotel men in the country, and I was proud of him. Coupled with his astute mind and great ability, he had the genius to have a simple uncomplicated faith. And this, believe me, is one of life's greatest secrets.

ACTUALLY, I learned much from Frank Kridel that will help me personally and I want to convey this insight to you. And it is this: take your problems to God in prayer, believe that He hears and answers you. Then proceed to meet your problems confidently knowing that God is actually guiding and helping you. You will be surprised at the amazing outcomes. This really works.

I must add that this formula will not avoid for you the difficulties and sorrows of life. But it will help you through all difficulties and it will keep the sorrow clean.

Actually sorrow is a wound in the mind. It cuts deeply and causes pain. But a clean sorrow contains no mental "infection" so that finally it heals. The personality is stronger and better as a result of this process.

But the thing we call guilt or sin is also a wound. It also cuts deeply into the mind to cause disturbance and pain in the form of regret, conflict, obsession.

It does not heal, but continues to manufacture mental and spiritual disturbance and at last leaves an unclean sorrow. But even this can be cured by a powerful "injection" of God's grace through faith. Spiritual thereapy brings peace to the mind and true tranquility.

Clean sorrow. What a wonderful benediction!

3 Questioned In Auto Theft

Two 17-year-old East End boys are being held in city jail and a 22-year-old man is being questioned in the theft of an 11-year-old used car from an East End lot, police said today.

The juveniles were taken into custody early this morning by Patrolman Sam Hayes and questioned and the 22-year-old man was picked up later and was being questioned by Police Capt. Robert H. Pyle and Patrolman Jack Stroble.

The 1951 Chevrolet was taken from the M. & A. Motors' used car lot 1273 Pennsylvania Ave., Wednesday night or early Thursday, but police first were notified late Friday morning. It was located on Maryland Ave. by Patrolman Jerry Adkins about 12:14 a.m. today.

One of the 17-year-olds, a parolee from Boys Industrial School at Lancaster, was seen driving the car. Four others were in the auto, police said, but two were believed to have "just gone along for the ride," although officers still are checking.

The 22-year-old also has admitted driving the car but told police during questioning that he didn't know it had been stolen. The man told officers the 17-year-old was trying to sell him the car, Capt. Pyle said.

ECOTA Elects Area Teacher As Secretary

Mrs. Mary Leatherberry of United Local High School was elected secretary at the convention of the East Central Ohio Teachers Association Friday at Canton.

Congress was urged to make appropriations the states can use to imprvoe public education in a resolution adopted by the delegates.

The resolution, in two parts, was among 11 approved.

The first part urged federal appropriations to the states for improving the quality of education and the second part proposed that the state assume a greater responsibility.

The resolution was the only one that brought discussion and was approved after some delegates raised the question of whether the association should go on record for "federal aid."

"It is merely a resolution on financial support for schools, not federal aid," explained Mrs. Frank B. Malone, a teacher at Canton McKinley High School and chairman of the resolutions committee.

"But it means additional appropriations to those now made."

E. R. Malone, superintendent of North Canton schools, succeeded Paul H. Blair, assistant school superintendent of East Liverpool, as president.

W. E. Lewis, superintendent of Tuscarawas County schools, was elected vice president.

The delegates represented 5,000 teachers in Stark, Holmes, Columbiana, Tuscarawas, Wayne and Carroll counties.

In East Liverpool—beginning next Sunday—whenever you direct dial a long distance call, please dial the numeral "1" first, before dialing the out-of-town number.

Here's how it works: To dial a long distance call within northeastern Ohio—Cleveland, for example—first dial "1" and then dial the telephone number.

To dial a call to a place outside northeastern Ohio—Columbus, for example—first dial "1", then 614 (Area Code for Columbus) and then the telephone number.

This method of placing direct distance calls will soon be introduced through the nation. The purpose is to have a simple, uniform way of getting connected to the Direct Distance Dialing network, so that eventually anyone, anywhere, will be able to dial long distance calls the same way.

So, please remember to dial the numeral "1" first on all direct dialed long distance calls. It's a step toward the future.

Complete instructions are on page 9 of your new telephone directory.

Potters Claim 3rd Win, Spill Bellaire St. John's, 16-6

Bell, Kraft Net Touchdowns For ELHS

BY BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

With its ground machinery in high gear, the East Liverpool Potters added some sound defense and survived a brief letdown in the second half to come out on top with a 16-6 victory over Bellaire St. John's Friday night.

One of the poorest crowds of the season — about 2,000 — showed up on a frosty football evening at Patterson Field to see Coach Bob Hedmond's Potters register their third victory in seven games.

East Liverpool confined all of its scoring to the second quarter, but made the lead stand up throughout the second half. St. John's, which now shows a 4 - 3 - 1 record, broke the ice with a fourth period touchdown.

Tom "the Bomb" Kraft exploded East Liverpool's offense last night. In doing so, the pint-sized junior halfback who tips the scales at 145 pounds, turned in his top performance as a Potter.

His running set up the Potters' first touchdown for Jerry Bell who plunged over the right side from one yard out, through a hole cleared by Jim Ferello and Scotty Musaraca.

Bell's touchdown came with 9:06 remaining in the second period.

The Potters drove 77 yards for the touchdown in 13 plays. In the march, Kraft picked up 63 yards in only six carries, featured by runs of 24 and 15 yards.

Kraft scored the second touchdown himself by making a sensational grab of a pass thrown by sophomore quarterback Chuck Baker. The play was good for 17 yards and Kraft made the catch with two St. John's defenders covering him.

He made a diving catch of the ball and came up with it just inside the end zone.

A clipping penalty nullified a touchdown by Kraft on an electrifying 75-yard punt return late in the second quarter.

Although he didn't carry much in the second half, Kraft's total for the contest showed 108 yards gained in 13 carries. He added one two-point conversion on a run after Bell's touchdown and Baker tacked on the other two extra points.

Bell, improving with each contest, gained 54 yards and netted another touchdown.

Bill Durbin, playing defensive end, was a "tiger" on defense for the Potters and deserves a share of credit for his team's second touchdown.

Bellaire attempted a quick kick from its 29-yard line, but Durbin broke through to block the punt and teammate Jim Ferello pounced on the ball at the St. John's 24-yard line.

It took only four plays before Baker and Kraft hooked up for the touchdown after the blocked punt.

After the second period touchdowns, East Liverpool threatened only on one other occasion, driving to the St. John's eight-yard line but a penalty and two incomplete passes stalled the drive on the opponent's 10.

Bellaire scored in the fourth period after the Potters had gambled and failed in St. John's territory.

A fourth-down draw play was short by several yards and St. John's took over on its own 32.

The Irish proceeded to drive 68 yards for their lone touchdown. Big Mike Foster, a 175 - pound junior, carried most of the way and finally banged up the middle for the TD from four yards out with some powerful running.

Quarterback Jack Pompei attempted to sweep the left side, but was stopped on his conversion try.

If Pompei had made the conversion, then the Potters might have been on edge.

After East Liverpool's attack stalled on the Bellaire 10, St. John's bounced back on a 50-yard pass play from Pompei to halfback Dave Trouten.

Bellaire had the ball on the Potters' 37 with 1:32 to go, but St. John's going to the air again, had the threat stopped by Baker who intercepted his second pass of the evening.

East Liverpool ran out the clock on successive quarterback keeps.

The Potters ground game netted 267 yards and another 24 yards in the air.

Coach Ralph Anastasio of St. John's didn't have a senior in the starting lineup. The Irish used a variety of spread formations, but the Potter defenders, not to be confused, limited the visitors to a net of 73 yards on the ground and 59 yards on two completed passes.

Vikings Drop 8th Straight To Cameron

Chances of capturing the season's first victory have dwindled to one for Wells High School's Vikings.

They lost their eighth straight game Friday night, bowing to Cameron, 27-0, before a slim crowd at the Newell gridiron.

Coach Pete Horoszko's undermanned Vikings have one more opportunity to break into the victory column for the 1961 season in entertaining Salineville in the finale Nov. 3

Cameron used long runs and the accurate toe of fullback Sloan to trim the Vikings by a four-touchdown margin.

The invaders opened the second quarter of action to score on Minor's 45-yard run and Sloan's conversion boot for a 7-0 lead.

Minor raced 80 yards late in the second period, and Mason plunged two yards in the third for other touchdowns, with Sloan booting each conversion through the uprights.

Sloan bucked four yards in the final quarter for Cameron's fourth touchdown. His boot on the conversion try was accurate, but Cameron was charged with a 15-yard penalty and failed on a run on the second try.

The Vikings threatened twice in the final quarter, moving inside the Cameron 30 before losing possession on downs.

Ed Wiersbicki, Bill Monroe and Jimmy Johnson moved the ball well on Newell's few scoring marches. Johnson completed six of 20 passes from his quarterback post.

Opponents show an edge in points of 259 to 25 over Newell for the season. The Viking squad has dipped to 18 with injuries and other misfortunes.

Springfield South And Mansfield Beat Top Teams

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Prestige doesn't awe Springfield South and Mansfield. Both teams rose up Friday night to defeat members of the Associated Press' Top 10 high school football teams.

Springfield South handed fourth-ranked Hamilton Garfield its first loss of the season 30-14, and Mansfield dumped slipping Sandusky 28-14. The Blue Streaks, No. 7 in the poll, were downed two weeks ago by Fremont Ross 24-6.

Middletown's eighth-ranked Middies started the long weekend off Thursday night with a 30-12 triumph over Hamilton Taft. Cincinnati Purcell and Cincinnati Roger Bacon, ranked fifth and sixth respectively, end the action Sunday in a double header in the Queen City.

Lisbon Spoils Homecoming At Leetonia With 16-7 Win

Lisbon High spoiled Leetonia's homecoming and parent's night observance Friday in whipping the Bears, 16-7.

Halfback Gary Peruchetti led the Blue Devils to their fourth victory in eight games with two touchdowns.

The defeat pushed Leetonia a bit deeper into the cellar of the Tri-County League. The Bears are 0-6 in league action and 1-6-1 for the year under Coach Ike Farrah.

Lisbon came from behind to capitalize on a third quarter fumble to score an insurance touchdown.

Leetonia moved in front in the second quarter to snare a 7-0 lead on Joe Gallo's three - yard plunge, capping a 55-yard drive. Gallo's successful placement boot smashed out a window in the nearby high school building.

The Blue Devils retaliated in the same period in pushing 65 yards and scoring on Peruchetti's one-yard buck. Peruchetti also ran over the conversion — first of the season for the squad.

In the third quarter, Lisbon recovered a fumble at its own 16 and drove 84 yards for the insurance touchdown. Peruchetti sliced off the right side for six yards for the score and tacked on the conversion on a run.

Leetonia closed out its home season and concludes the campaign at Sebring Nov. 3. The Blue Devils, 2-4 in the league, oppose Columbiana in another league game Nov. 3.

South Side Drops Finale

Northwestern surprised South Side High's Rams early with the nearly discarded end-around play and went on to post a 33-0 victory Friday night at the Hookstown area school.

Coach Dave Nichol's Rams closed their 1961 campaign with a 3-4 record.

The tough Darlington eleven scored two touchdowns on the almost forgotten end - around play with end Bill Sammons going the distance each time.

Sammons raced 24 yards for Northwestern's first touchdown in the opening period and Dick Thompson booted the conversion for a 7-0 lead.

The touchdown came after Northwestern's Jerry Ingram had scored on a 50-yard run nullified by a penalty for clipping.

Northwestern recovered a fumble of Ram halfback Curtis Clay to tack on another score in the first period. Ken Eakin swept left end for 10 yards for the score and Thompson booted the conversion.

Northwestern had recovered the fumble at midfield and moved into scoring territory on a 33-yard pass play from Ingram to Sammons.

The second period found Sammons scoring on a 20-yard run on the end - around pattern. Thompson's attempted kick failed for the conversion.

Halfback Ingram went 30 yards in the third period and 50 yards in the fourth for Northwestern's other touchdowns. Ingram passed to Sammons for the third period conversion.

The Rams got scoring drives underway twice on fumble recoveries by Scott Walker and Bill Cooper, but were held short of touchdowns. Wilbur King, junior fullback, sparked South Side's ground attack.

Miami And Boston U. Win; Top Teams Heavily Favored

By The Associated Press

The footbal fortunes at Miami and Boston University are looking up a bit because of a couple of sophomores, Hurricane quarterback George Mira and Terrier halfback Joe DiPietro.

Mira, a sensation early in the season, had sat out a couple of losing games with torn rib cartilages but returned to action Friday night and led Miami to a 10-0 decision over Atlantic Coast Conference co-leader North Carolina.

DiPietro had carried only three times all season, picked up 114 yards and a pair of touchdowns—including an 87-yard jaunt—in leading Boston University to a 20-6 victory over George Washington in the only other major game Friday night. It was BU's second straight victory after losing four straight.

Their performances ushered in a football weekend that has the top-ranked teams, such as Michigan State, Mississippi and Alabama, facing relatively easy bids to remain unbeaten.

Of the country's top four teams, third-ranked Texas faces probably the biggest challenge. The Longhorns, ranked first nationally in total offense, play Rice (3-1) in a Southwest Conference night game that could decide the league title and host spot in the Cotton Bowl.

Texas is 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the conference, while Rice has won its only league start.

Alabama, No. 4, goes against independent Houston (2-2-1)

Mt. Pleasant Is 6th Victim

N. Cumberland Captures Homecoming Battle, 21-0

New Cumberland and Mount Pleasant battled through two scoreless periods before the Blue Raiders exploded for three touchdowns and a 21-0 homecoming triumph Friday night at New Cumberland.

The victory pushed the Blue Raiders another step towards one of the best seasons in the school's history. They show a 6-1-1 chart with two games remaining.

After the scoreless first half, the Raiders went to work and scored in the third period on Jim Burskey's 19-yard run to take a 7-0 lead.

Ed Wudarsky plunged four yards and quarterback Allen Katzenmeyer passed 10 yards to Wudarsky for fourth period touchdowns.

The versatile Katzenmeyer booted all three conversions for Coach John Kuzio's Blue Raiders.

A 13-yard touchdown run by Wudarsky in the final quarter was nullified by a penalty against New Cumberland, charging illegal use of hands.

The Raiders rolled up a margin of 227 yards to 122 in total yardage and had an edge of 11-5 in first downs over the Mounties.

Katzenmeyer completed one of seven passes, while the Mounties (1-6-1) completed four of seven. New Cumberland was penalized twice for 20 yards and the visitors three times for 25 yards.

Regular guard John Patterson of New Cumberland watched the action from the sidelines. He is shelved for the season with an injured rib.

Defeat Drops Midland Out Of Title Race

By ANDY NUZZO

Coach Charles Polce's Midland Leopards, minus fullback Earl Vaughn, the squad's leading ground gainer, dropped a 13-7 decision to the New Brighton Lions Friday night at Midland before some 2,500 fans.

The loss, which left Midland with a 3-4-1-record, eliminated any chance the Leopards had for taking the Midwestern Athletic Conference Class A crown.

Midland scored first when quarterback Steve Trbovich hit end Gary Perkins with a 27-yard scoring toss. Rich Lake delivered the key block that sprung Perkins into the clear.

Lake also set up the touchdown when he intercepted a Paul Popovich aerial on the Midland 46 and brought it back to the Lions' 31. Fullback Jesse hit the middle for four and then Trbovich hit Perkins with the TD pass. Epley convertet to give Midland a 7-0 lead with 6:20 remaining in the first quarter.

New Brighton had one threat in the first half that ended on the Midland 20 after quarterback Chuck Watson hit halfback Royal Thomas with a pass play that started on the Midland 44. The half ended as Thomas was brought down.

The Lions came out and put on one of their familiary second half surges to score the winning TD's.

They took the second half kickoff and marched 56 yards in 11 plays to score, the payoff being a Popovich to end Bud Dalzel pass for 14 yards.

The big ground gainer on the drive was halfback Jim Hutkay, who rolled up 21 yards on the drive. He plunged over for the extra point, but New Brighton was offside and Popovich's pass for the second try fell incomplete and the Leopards led, 7-6, with 5:20 remaining in the third quarter.

Midland stalled another drive of the Lions early in the fourth quarter on the Midland 10-yard line. The drive came about when Trbovich fumbled and Lion fullback Allen Frischkorn fell on the ball on the Midland 39.

With Hutkay, Frischkorn, and halfback Jim Carr carrying the ball, the Lions had a second and goal situation from the five. Watson fumbled the ball and lost five yards to the 10 and Midland halfback Rich Spanik broke up a fourth down pass in the end zone.

Midland couldn't move and punted out to New Brighton on the Midland 43. On the first play, Carr fumbled the pitchout from Watson and Midland end Obrad Cvetovich picked the ball off on the Midland 47.

Here the Leopards launched their last serious threat of the game. On third down, Trbovich hit Perkins with a pass for 14 yards and that gave Midland a first down on the New Brighton 37.

Lake moved around end for nine and Trbovich ran a keeper to the New Brighton 24. At this point, Midland was penalized 15 yards for holding and that moved the ball out to the Lion 46.

On the first play, Lake fumbled a hand-off and Lion tackle John Zilk recovered on the New Brighton 42. Three plays later from the Midland 46, Carr broke over left tackle and into the open for the deciding touchdown. Hutkay plunged for the extra point and the Lions led, 13-7, with 4:20 left in the game.

Trbovich filled the air with desperation passes as the game neared completion but all were in vain. The last one was picked off by Carr on the New Brighton 47 as the game ended.

Leading the Lions on the ground was Carr, who rambled for 67 yards in 7 carries. Behind him was Frischkorn with 57 yards in 13 carries and Hutkay with 48 yards in 11 carries.

In the last minute of play, Midland lost three regulars. Tom Flasco, Ted Vaughn and Bob Love, all tackles, had to leave the game due to injuries. End Paul Cacic and reserve quarterback Don Miller missed the entire game because of injuries.

On the last play of the third quarter, New Brighton lost the services of its starting quarterback, Paul Popovich, due to a leg injury.

Hornung's Neck Due New Exam

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Hornung, runner, blocker and kicker for the Green Bay Packers, has been tabbed for Army duty but a crick in the neck could keep him playing professional football.

Hornung was slated for Army duty next Monday. However, he has been directed to take another physical examination.

As a result, the former Notre Dame football star, might be bypassed in Uncle Sam's latest needs for service.

Hornung, 26, and a bachelor, has been slated for another physical examination which will take about 10 days to be evaluated. He has had trouble with a pinched nerve in his neck.

ROBERT DAVIS
Lecturer For Tuesday Night.

'Arizona Utopia' To Be Theme Of Next Travelogue

Robert Davis will present a colorful travel-documentary film, "Arizona Utopia," in the third of the "World Travel and Adventure" series sponsored by the Quota Club Tuesday night at 8 at Westgate School.

A native of Kansas City, Davis has had 20 years experience behind the lens of his famous camera, producing adventure-packed travelogues, short subjects for television and educational use and commercial films.

His movie includes a little bit of everything from geology to the Grand Canyon and from industry to Indians.

In between are vignettes of the copper, cattle, cotton and citrus industries. The Grand Canyon, Glen Canyon Dam, Hoover Dam, winter sports in the San Francisco Mountains, Oak Creek Canyon and Tombstone are also featured.

The Indians of Arizona are shown in their homes, at school, at the Navajo Fair, at work and at play. Ruins of cliff dwellings and the slowly crumbling city of Jerome make a fine comparison.

Miss Gladys DeBolt, chairman, said single admissions will be sold at the door.

Lions Club Told Tax Stand Airing Apparently Out

Attempts to arrange a meeting at which Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and O. Earl Greenawalt could make public statements on the city's income tax measure have fallen through, it was reported at the Lions Club meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

The club was told that Mayor Goodballet had informed a representative he plans to issue a public statement prior to the Nov. 7 election. The representative said he was told by the mayor that he personally favors the tax, but will not pressure for votes to support the tax.

The club then informed Greenawalt, the Republican nominee, that it would be unfair to have him appear alone, the representative said.

Charles Herman, president, presided.

Dr. John A. Fraser discussed a recent trip over the Shenandoah Skyline and through the Virginias and Carolinas and over the Great Smokies into Tennessee and West Virginia.

Club At Hookstown Has Evening Of 500

Mrs. Lawrence Searight of Hookstown entertained the Club 13 Thursday night when two tables of 500 were in play.

Trophies went to Mrs. Virginia Rogers and Mrs. John Andrews. Secret pal gifts were received by Mrs. Harold Crooks, for her wedding anniversary and Mrs. Blaine Mott, for her birthday anniversary.

Lunch was served by the hostess. Mrs. Virginia Searight will be hostess Nov. 30.

Killed In Upset

GREENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 26-year-old Dayton motor-cyclist, Ronald Gene Foreman, died Friday night in a hospital here after his two-wheeler upset on Ohio 49 about 11 miles southeast of Greenville four hours earlier.

Social Security Job Data Given For New Office

Area residents interested in applying for positions with the proposed new Social Security Administration office in East Liverpool may now obtain applications or information concerning openings.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, 18th District congressman, has advised Don R. Gosney of Columbiana, County Democratic chairman, on procedures to be followed.

Residents without Civil Service status should first obtain application forms from the Post Office and make arrangements for an examination.

From that point, they should contact the Social Security regional representative, Byron E. Goetz, 2012 W. 25th St., Room 300, Cleveland 13, for information concerning openings.

Bids for the rent of office space for the proposed downtown office were opened by the General Services Administration at Cleveland recently, but authorities have not notified area officials about the results.

Salineville CP Fund Totals $164

SALINEVILLE — A total of $164 was collected in a house-to-house drive for Cerebral Palsy funds Thursday here and throughout the district, Mrs. Charles Mundy, chairman of the campaign, reported.

Mrs. Mundy, who said it was the first CP drive in the area, explained that some returns were not in yet, and the total collection is expected to be greater. Coin containers are yet to be counted, she added.

The report from Summitville is not complete. About $25 was collected in the Highlandtown district. About 40 volunteers took part.

Although five districts have not reported a total of $3,785.10 has been reached so far in the annual fund drive of the Columbiana County Affiliate of the United Cerebral Palsy Association.

Richard Brian, chairman, said the results of several areas covered with house-to-house canvassing have not been turned in.

The drive closes officially Tuesday.

The only corner-joining of four states in the United States is that corner formed by the junction of Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Utah.

The Legend Behind the Jack-o'-Lantern

By MARYA SAUNDERS and ROBERT GAINES

WE ALWAYS take time out around Halloween to carve pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns for our homes. Our neighbors scoff at us. They say it's hard and messy work. We agree—and go right on carving.

What our neighbors don't know about jack-o'-lanterns is that they are functional as well as decorative. Any Irishman familiar with his ancestral legends can tell you why—whether you want to know the story or not.

The tale begins long, long ago (as all Irish tales begin) with a nasty farmer named Jack, known throughout the country for his drunkenness and meanness.

One Halloween—that night of the year when lost souls and other strange creatures are seen wandering in the bogs—Jack was slouched at his table in a tavern sipping potheen and chewing on a turnip from his field. He had almost reached the bottom of the jug when suddenly he had a fluttery feeling in his heart. He felt his soul start to slip away from his body.

"Now, me lad, it's time to go," a voice said, and Jack saw a man with a sour smile sitting at the table beside him.

"Who are ye? And what do ye want?" snarled Jack.

"There's some that call me Old Nick, and others call me Satan, and there's those that call me the Devil himself, but what's a name? I've come for your soul, Jack, boyo, and let's be on our way."

Jack thought about this, for he was a crafty man. Then, swallowing a bite of his turnip, he said, "Sure, and let's have a drink before we go. If it's a long trip, we'll be destroyed by the cold and damp."

Said the Devil, "That's a grand idea. But I carry no money with me."

"Well, sir," Jack said slyly, "you can do most anything. Why don't you change yourself into a sixpence? As soon as I've paid for the two whiskies, you can turn yourself back."

The Devil laughed and slapped Jack on the back. "'Tis a bright lad ye are, Jack, and glad I am to know you." There was a hiss of smoke, and a coin clinked onto the table. Jack snatched it up and slipped it into his purse, which had a catch in the shape of a cross; Jack knew demons could not pass over a cross.

"Let me out," the Devil shouted. "'Tis a bitter hard thing you're doing. Oh, wirra, wirra, have you no pity?" But Jack only laughed.

The Devil whined and cursed. Finally Jack grew tired of the commotion and said, "Shut your noise and I'll tell ye what I'll do. I'll let you go if you promise never to come after me again."

"Impossible," shrieked the Devil.

"Them's me terms," said Jack in a hard voice. The Devil, realizing he was dealing with a shrewd man, decided to take the best he could get. "You've done me this time," the evil one said, "but don't be thinking this ends it." And he disappeared into the floor of the tavern like a draft of air.

These final words frightened Jack, and he had it in mind to lead a good life, go to church on Sunday, and no longer beat his wife. But being good was too hard, and he soon fell back into his wild ways.

After a time, Jack's body wore out and he died, but no one claimed his soul. He packed a large handkerchief full of turnips from his field and marched up the skies to heaven. But the man at the gate turned him away because of his dissolute life.

Jack then went to the gates of hell and shouted, "Oh, I'm sore weary with all this walking. Won't you let me in for a rest?"

The Devil peeked out. "Oh, it's you, is it?" he said. "You can't enter here. We've made an agreement."

"But where will I go?" asked Jack piteously.

"Back where you came from."

"How can I find my way in this fearsome dark?"

The Devil didn't answer. Instead, he threw a live coal from hell's furnace at Jack. Jack ducked and sat grieving until he noticed the coal was giving considerable light. He popped the coal into a large turnip, cut holes for light, and with this "jack-o'-lantern" he has been wandering the dark byways of the earth ever since, a lost and forlorn soul with no place to go.

Over the centuries, the Irish adapted this tale in their observance of All Saints' Eve. They carved jack-o'-lanterns from rutabagas, potatoes, or turnips and sat around a village bonfire built to frighten away evil spirits roaming the glens. But how would they get home safely when the bonfire died? The Irish had a solution: they put the last bright embers in their jack-o'-lanterns and dashed through the eerie blackness to their homes, shouting: "The cropped black sow seize the hindmost!"

So, dear neighbors, that is why we are inspecting the pumpkin crop this week. And one more thing, neighbors: don't be disturbed if, during the bleak and windy night this Halloween, you hear two tremulous voices calling:

"The cropped black sow seize the hindmost!"

The evil spirits of Halloween are rising—are you ready for them?

Horse-Roping Fun

By Donovan A. Moore

Paste a picture of a horse on heavy cardboard. Place a small nail in the cardboard and take turns tossing three jar rings around the nail. If your jar ring lands on the nail, you have roped your horse.

Winding the Web

Are you having a spooky Halloween party this week? Then a colorful web for the witches to wind is the game for you.

To make your preparations, take lots of colored string, a different color and a different length for each player. The center of the web may be on a table with a big fat spider sitting next to it. All the strings start here and follow a mischievous course around table legs, over chairs, under books, through holes, across each other, over pictures, into other rooms, each going a different way until they reach a surprise caught in the spider's web.

Each player takes a string and starts winding it into a ball without breaking it until they reach the end. The first one to bring back the surprise—which may be candy, apples, or anything else you may wish—will win a big prize. The others keep the surprises they find at the web.

Halloween Artists By Tom Jones

Each player sits on the floor with a pencil and paper. Turn out the lights and tell each one to draw some Halloween object—ghost, black cat, owl, jack-o'-lantern, witch, etc.—writing what it is just below his picture.

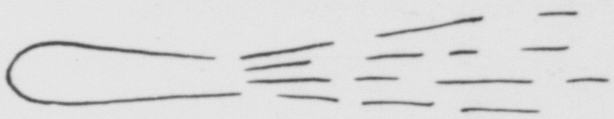

Seven minutes later, turn on the lights and select the best art work. Most of it is pretty funny.

Your Emotions Can Make You Well

By LEWIS L. ROBBINS, M. D.

Medical Director, Hillside Hospital, Glen Oaks, N. Y.

as told to James C. G. Conniff

PHOTOGRAPHS BY RICHARD CHECANI

Dr. Lewis L. Robbins was associated with the famed Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kans., for 18 years. During this time he was director of the Foundation's Outpatient Division and Department of Adult Psychiatry and chairman of its Psychotherapy Research Project. Since 1958 he has been medical director of the Hillside Hospital in Glen Oaks, N. Y.

SHE WAS A WOMAN in her early 30s, happily married to a successful poultry farmer and the proud mother of five children, oldest age 10. She was pretty, nicely dressed, and apparently self-possessed. Inwardly, however, she was a wreck.

When she first came to me at the suggestion of her family doctor, she had let the normal emotional stress of running a busy household build up inside her almost to the point of explosion.

Her trouble was in not knowing how to find an outlet for the ordinary feeling of anger and frustration which every mother has—an outlet acceptable to the neighbors, that is, and to her family. By talking with her I found that on this score she was like a surprising number of women. They have the mistaken notion that it is improper to give vent to routine emotions. As a result, they develop a haunted, driven look. In my patient's case, it told me the moment I saw her: this woman is going to be ill unless she gets help in a hurry.

A noted psychiatrist reveals a simple secret that has helped many patients find within themselves a remedy for destructive tensions

Without hospitalizing her, we gave her that help. I saw her not long ago. Smiling and relaxed now, she leaned out the window of her car to tell me, "I've stopped building windmills, Doctor. From here on, it'll be dikes and canals, the way you said. It's the only kind of life that makes sense."

And not only for housewives, she might have added. The teen-ager from our Adolescent Pavilion waved cheerily as I rode up the tree-lined drive to my office. Not long ago this awkward youth, tense from the strain of trying to control the emotional rip tides of adolescence, wouldn't even have nodded. Today, thanks to the patient guidance we were able to give him, the glum anxiety which had made him painfully withdrawn has vanished.

He turned toward me, grinning and confident the way a boy should be. "No more windmills, Doc!" he called. "That's a promise!"

Were these patients the victims of hallucination—modern Don Quixotes who, like that tragicomic Spanish knight, imagined windmills were their enemies? Not at all. Like countless other men, women, and children at hospitals like Hillside, where we specialize in mental health, these were people recovering from actual or threatened ill-

adventure 30 years ago awaiting the loser

Byron Rickards (l.) & Norman Simmons after Texas hijack.

The rebels didn't jail me. The town of Arequipa was a jail itself. There was no U. S. consul and only one telegraph line to the outside world—and it was controlled by the rebels. I went to the local British consul and asked advice.

"They mean business," he told me. "Don't try to play the hero. If it's life or death, fly the plane and drop the leaflets. However, I'll draw up a legal document which says you are doing this under duress. Insist they sign it before you take up your plane."

THIS WOULD BE a last resort, I told myself. First I'd try to bluff these rebels into leaving me and my crew out of their fight. Each day I barged into the prefect's office and noisily demanded our freedom, invoking the name of the U. S. Marines and other fearful thunderbolts. I managed to drag on the stalemate. Each encounter, though, was a harder test of wills, and after six days I was sure the breaking point had come.

I found the prefect's office filled with armed guards, sullen and belligerent, and I knew something important was stirring. Before I could loose my daily harangue, the prefect began talking. "It is vital that some of our leaders reach the fighting. You, Captain, will fly them to . . ."

I reminded him I could not put my plane at the disposal of nonauthorized groups. The prefect went rigid behind his desk, and the guards watched him hungrily, I thought, for a final command. I remembered the British consul's warning—don't be a stubborn hero. After all, transporting some passengers is no crime, particularly if the consul's document was signed by the rebels.

Still, I resented being bullied and had to play one more card. "I'm sure this flight is important," I said, "but is it so important that you can risk U.S. intervention? Anything you've won would be lost."

I didn't know it then, but I'd struck the only responsive chord in this tough old rebel's make-up. The rebels were advancing all along the seacoast, and foreign interference was the last threat to their success. As much as they needed me and my plane, they couldn't gamble on a new enemy.

"Get out of here," the prefect growled.

On March 2, shouts and gunfire ripped the somnambulant town. As I trotted toward the plaza to investigate, I heard, "Viva la revolución!" and I knew the rebels had won. Augusto Leguia y Salcedo, dictator of Peru since 1919, had been overthrown.

A celebration burst out—for the victorious rebels and for a liberated gringo pilot. The prefect, my friend now, slapped my back jovially in the excitement. "You are a good fellow, amigo," he conceded. "You and I—we saved the revolution, keeping those North Americans out, eh?"

I was feeling too good to argue. I even agreed to fly one rebel chief to Lima; it didn't matter now. My wife was upset, of course, when I told her about flirting with a firing squad, but I felt pretty cocky about winning my battle of wills.

"Don't worry," I told her, "something like this happens only once in a lifetime." I wish somebody had told the Beardens that.

I was taxiing along when a gang of men dashed out. I saw one level his rifle at me.

ness of the mind. They were the new owners of a simple secret which, had they known about it earlier, might have eliminated their need for a doctor.

The windmills and dikes they spoke of so knowingly are a comparison I use to give troubled people an idea of what probably has gone wrong inside them, what they themselves may have done to cause it, and what they can do to correct it.

Almost everyone knows that windmills and dikes are the main types of control which people in The Netherlands use to keep water from flooding their country. But to make sure, I point out that a windmill doesn't just decorate romantic landscapes. It is a form of water pump that also is used on many American farms, especially in the prairie states.

WINDMILLS need constant attention and work. You always have to expend energy to keep them in repair. If they break down, their owners may be in serious trouble. That in itself is a worry.

But there is no such strain or anxiety with a dike. Build a dike right the first time and, except for having to inspect it occasionally, your worries about being flooded are over. You can relax and enjoy life, because besides holding back the raging waters the dike permits you to lay out orderly canals. Along those canals, at your command, the waters flow peacefully.

Now apply these two defense systems to your emotions. We all know that, if left uncontrolled like the sea, emotions can swamp us. So our first object is to get them under control. If the kind of control we choose, however, is a flock of windmills, we find ourselves caught up in a frenzy of effort to make sure our defense system doesn't break down. The measure may work, but to keep it working takes a lot out of us in nervous energy. The constant strain makes us so edgy we "could scream." In time it may actually make us sick.

Instead of windmills, therefore, I try to get troubled patients to see the benefit of building permanent dikes for their emotions. They are agreeably surprised when—like the housewife and the teenager—they find that as the dike goes up, quiet canals for draining off emotional surpluses begin to take the place of turbulence. With a little practice, these patients are soon deepening their canals and using them, like people of The Netherlands, to add something positive to their lives.

What happens here is the opposite of what occurs in psychosomatic illness. There you have actual bodily disorders arising from emotional conflicts which the patient buries deep inside himself, either without realizing it or by means of energy-wasting "windmills."

FOR A CLOSE-UP of how emotions can hurt us physically, take anger. This is the emotion hardest to deal with in our civilized society. Say that, for the sake of appearances, you choose not to get angry. Unfortunately, the energy that would have become anger doesn't just evaporate. If not discharged in some way, it turns inward. This is so because when you are angry, certain other phenomena occur besides the feeling of anger, such as muscle tension and higher blood pressure. Blood pressure, if kept elevated, thickens artery walls and makes them stay thick. Soon we have chronic hypertension, a key factor in heart attacks.

What can we do to direct our emotions so that they help us instead of hurting us?

The first thing is to accept those emotions without false shame or guilt. You can acquire the ability to do that by reminding yourself that anger, for example, is normal. In that way you will overcome the need to repress your emotions. The simple fact that you are no longer denying they exist will, in turn, enable you to find ways of discharging these feelings and of preserving mental health.

Specifically, there are three constructive ways of discharging your emotions:

1. Play in the right way, and do it regularly.
2. Work in the right way, and don't overdo it.
3. Make friends in the right way, and remember that others, too, have emotional problems for which they may not yet have learned the secret of dikes and canals.

In everyday life, we can keep our emotions from either bottling up to hurt us or running wild to hurt others by making regular, sensible, conscious use of play. At least 90 percent of play is aggressive and involves hitting something: golf, tennis, ping pong, hunting, fishing—you name it. In play we work off our feelings of hostility, frustration, and anger by hitting something inanimate instead of a fellow human being.

It doesn't seem to make too much difference whether we channel the outlet for our emotions into play actively or passively. When we get riled up at a ball game and yell, "Kill the ump!" we enjoy the activity more for having done so. The excitement of people watching a boxing match is a classic example of how even spectator sports provide us with orderly canals for draining off excess antagonism.

Work, too, can supply us with healthy channels for discharging emotions if we bear in mind that up to a point, which will be different for everyone, work by its very nature is competitive. We are constantly striving to do a better job than the next fellow and earn more money than we really need because it shows how much more talented and aggressive we are.

Up to a point, work done in that spirit can be healthy. When it becomes an obsession, however, when we resent weekends because they interfere with getting on with the job, when we grow bored with relaxing in the bosom of our family, then work is a curse. We are overdoing it. We are on the brink of trouble—unless we can find a breather for ourselves in athletics or in a totally different, preferably unremunerative, kind of work like mowing the lawn or laying a patio in easy stages.

Women, too, need relief from the frustrations of their day. What wife and mother isn't constantly battling something? Household dirt is an endless frustration. Washing, mending, cooking, and caring for often-quarrelsome children can become a torturous routine.

A family will have only themselves to blame if they do not see to it that Mother gets relief before the "blowup." This may take the form of a golf-club membership, swimming at the shore, or nothing more elaborate than a $2.50 badminton set for the back yard. The thing that counts is making sure Mother gets time off for play—and then actually plays.

All of us need to take positive emotional-discharge measures if we hope to achieve anything like true over-all fitness. This means 1) developing and using canals of the right kind of play and work to siphon off the accumulated antagonisms of each day, and 2) providing in that way the "something extra" of improved muscle tone. Combined, these two spell health.

So endowed, each of us is infinitely better equipped to make friends because we have discovered how to resolve the welter of hostilities inside ourselves that interferes with friendship. We can keep friends in spite of the frictions that inevitably arise because we now understand the mechanism behind those frictions and can make allowances for it. We can be better neighbors in spite of the tensions we suffer because we have faced up to the truth about our emotional selves and found it not frightening, not undignified, not shameful, but simply part of being human.

We have faced it, and found it manageable. And from our success we see, to our amazement and delight, that others, too, have taken heart.

Emotions and Science

■ This article should not be misinterpreted as suggesting that each of us is his own best physician. Today the average person faced with emotional difficulties has at his command an arsenal of highly trained medical talent to aid and direct his recovery. He should use it. This arsenal includes:

1. The psychiatrist, who is a medical doctor with years of specialized training in afflictions of the mind to round out his complete knowledge of the body and its processes;

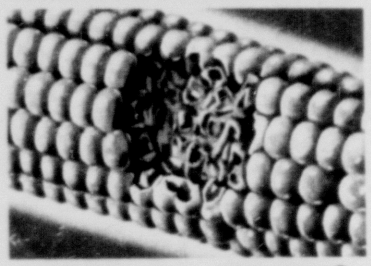

2. The psychoanalyst, also a physician, is a specialist within psychiatry who by encouraging the patient to delve into his past life seeks to bring to light the hidden causes of mental disturbances, and so to effect a lasting cure;

3. The psychologist, who is not a medical doctor but whose long studies of mental function and human motivation enable him to guide normal minds to the fullest development of their capacities, and to aid in the recovery of mental health by those who cannot manage the ordinary tensions of existence unless they get help.

In addition, as physicians, the psychiatrist and psychoanalyst have access to a remarkable new array of medications which make it easier for the person in need of help to cooperate with and benefit from those who are trained to give it.

My sole purpose in recommending the building of dikes and canals to control emotions constructively is a preventive one. For, in the last analysis, mental health begins and ends in the patient himself. It is his to cultivate or to neglect. May these words help to reduce neglect among all who read them.

I Was Hijacked Twice!

The pilot whose jet recently was pirated tells of a similar —a game of bluff and counterbluff with a firing squad

THE CABIN DOOR suddenly opened, and the hostess and a stranger burst into the cockpit of my Boeing 707. I started to ask what was wrong but got the answer before I could open my mouth.

"I've got a gun on this girl, Captain," the stranger said, "and you're flying us to Cuba or else. I'm not kidding."

You probably know the end of this hijacking adventure which happened last August. I convinced the gunman I had to land my jet at El Paso, Texas, for fuel. The hijacker and his son, Leon and Cody Bearden, held me, my crew of five, and four passengers as hostages for 10 hours. Before Bearden could force me to take off again, U. S. marshals, border patrolmen, and FBI agents rushed out on the field. Over the roar of the engines, I could hear the sharp staccato of machine-gun fire.

Good night, I thought, are they really trying to hit us?

Actually they were puncturing our tires to cripple the plane—but some of the slugs blasted through our cabin, and I sweated out the possibility of one exploding 90,000 pounds of aviation gasoline under us.

After the shooting, we all played the waiting game inside the crippled plane. Would we get the Beardens, or would they get us? The hours dragged by: each side threatened, cajoled, bluffed. But the Beardens were unwavering, and we waited for some miracle. It came when something distracted Leon Bearden's attention. His gun wavered, and a passenger-hostage, Leonard Gilam, an off-duty border patrolman, socked the hijacker, then locked him in a full nelson. Bearden's son was jumped by my second officer Norm Simmons and FBI agent Francis Crosby. That ended the melee, and I relaxed for the first time since seeing the dull metallic glint of a gun in Bearden's hand.

And I also reminisced. This had been the second time in my flying career that I'd been a victim of hijackers. I don't think any other pilot can say that—or would want to.

My mind went back to 1931, a big year in my life. I was just 21, and I'd won my big break—jockeying a flight between Lima, Peru, and Santiago, Chile—2,000 miles of stop-skip-and jumping over some of the most rugged terrain in the hemisphere. Nowadays a pilot would blanch at a schedule like that, but my wife and I weren't tied down with children, and I'd gone into flying for excitement—so why not South America and unknown adventure?

On February 21, 1931, that unknown adventure became painfully familiar. I had set down my Ford trimotor plane at Arequipa in southern Peru, right near the jagged 20,000-foot peaks of the Andes. I was taxiing along when a gang of men dashed from a dilapidated hangar and started shouting—"Stop! Halt!" I saw one level a rifle and aim right at my head. I could have given it full throttle and tried to escape—but one slug in me or the controls would doom the plane and the eight people aboard. I cut the engine.

The gun-toting Peruvian greeted me formally as I stepped from the plane. "My country is in revolt, Captain," he explained. "I am a lieutenant in the revolution, and I have orders to detain any flight not on a rebel mission."

HE TOOK ME to the local prefect, who was very blunt. "You and your crew will join our air force," he said. "If you refuse, we will stand you against a wall and shoot you."

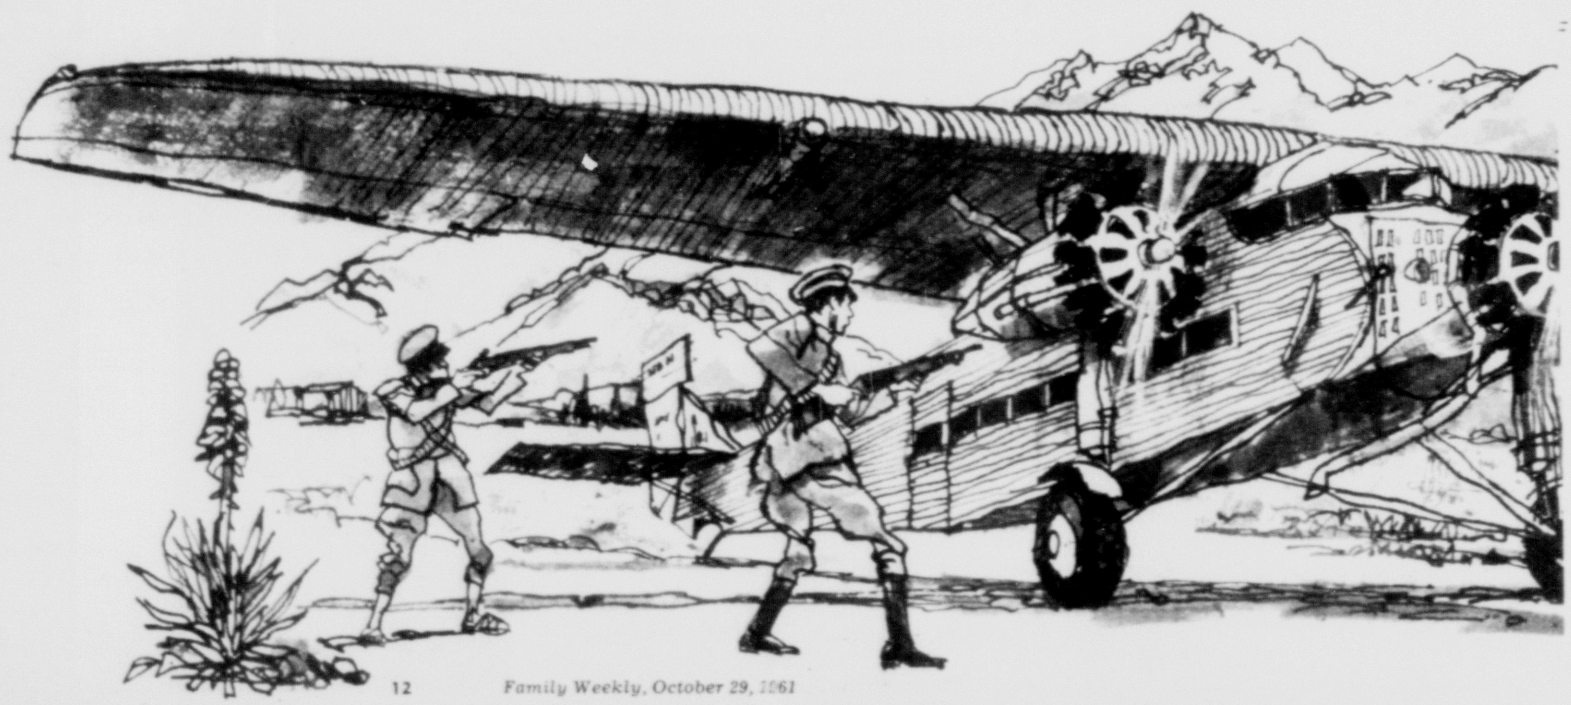

The lieutenant shoved his ever-ready rifle into my ribs; the flesh on my spine tightened and tingled. "If you shoot me," I said, "you'll end up fighting the United States, too. This plane is from the U. S., and so is the mail."

The lieutenant's rifle sagged; so did the prefect's bravado. I demanded that he permit the mail to proceed as scheduled in a small plane. The prefect agreed—provided that I, in turn, agreed to drop propaganda leaflets on Lima.

"First the mail," I said, "then we'll talk about leaflets."

The swarthy prefect frowned. "All right, Captain. We will allow the mail to go through. If you do not repay our courtesy—then the firing squad."

The next days were like those hours I spent with the Beardens 30 years later: torturous hours of waiting, with one side and then the other bargaining, threatening, bluffing—but how much can you bluff against desperate men with arms?

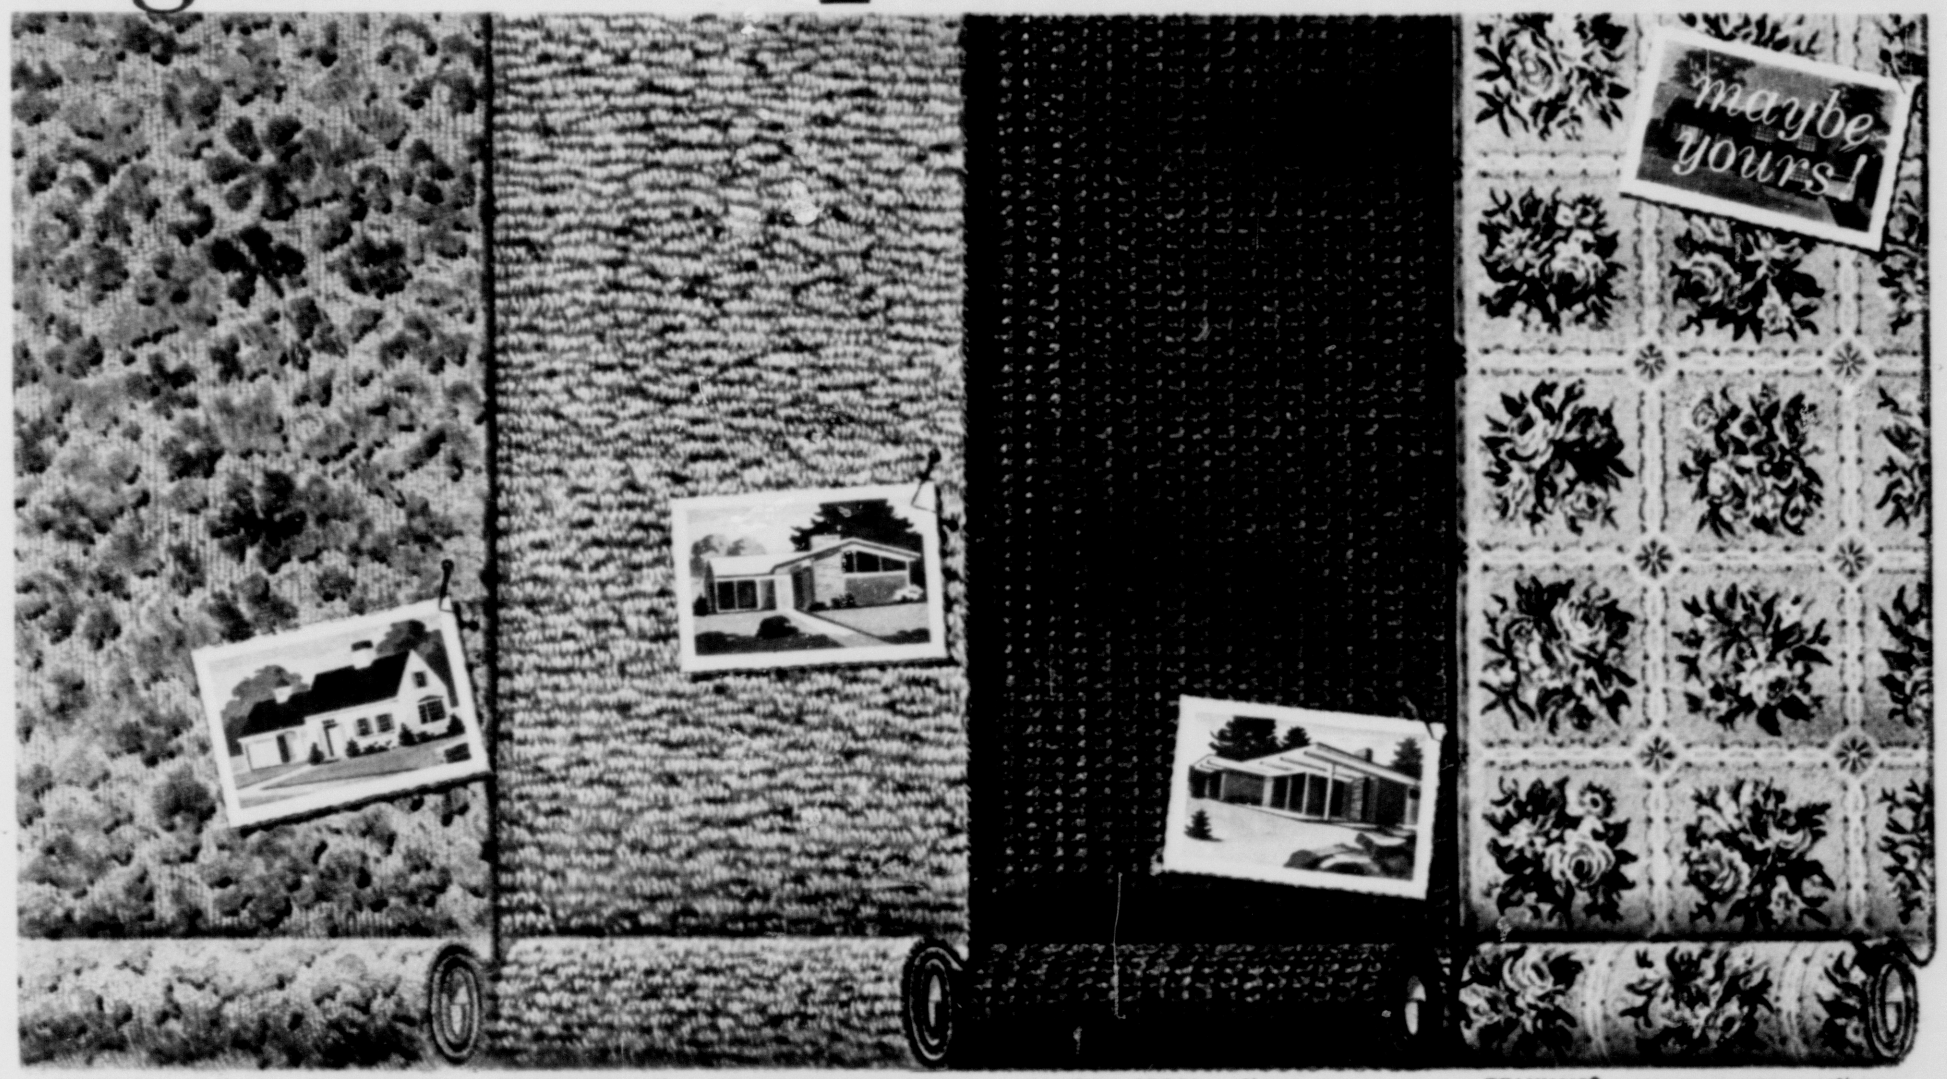

Mighty handy! Just like financing your car, your car insurance, also creditor life insurance where you buy your car. The man to see is the General Motors dealer who uses GMAC.

The Bigger They Are, the Harder They Fall

As a devotee of do-it-yourself,
Would he hire a workman to put up that shelf?
It only needed some tools and time
And a neighbor's ladder on which to climb.
So he tackled the job—why, a child could do it!
He still insists there was nothing to it
Requiring a carpenter. Not on your life!
And he'd have proved it if his wife
Hadn't phoned a workman to finish the thing
Before his arm was out of the sling!

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

A couple moved into a new home and on the first day their neighbors all came over to greet them. The couple felt they had moved into a friendly residential area, but after this initial welcome they were snubbed. After a month of icy stares, the husband approached his nearest neighbor. "What's wrong?" he asked. "Why is everybody so unfriendly?"

"Well," the neighbor replied, "you practically called us dishonest."

"Why, I have the highest regard for all of you!" the homeowner exclaimed.

"Then why do you keep your tool shed locked?" the neighbor snapped. "Nobody around here steals anything he can borrow!"

—Ben Cassell

As any driver will tell you, today's horn of plenty is in the car just behind you.

The woman drove into a service station and complained that her motor was noisy and burning more gas than usual. The mechanic checked the car and noticed the choke pulled out. "Do you know what that's for?" he asked.

"Well, I'm not sure," the woman answered, "but when I'm driving I always pull it out to hang my purse there."

—Frances Benson

An angelic little girl rang the doorbell on Halloween and demanded trick-or-treat. The homeowner was so beguiled he reached for a large apple and dropped it into her bag. "And what do you say, little girl?" he asked sweetly.

The child looked into her bag and then up at the man. "I say," she replied, "that you and your darn apple just broke every cookie I've collected tonight!" —Jim Henry

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

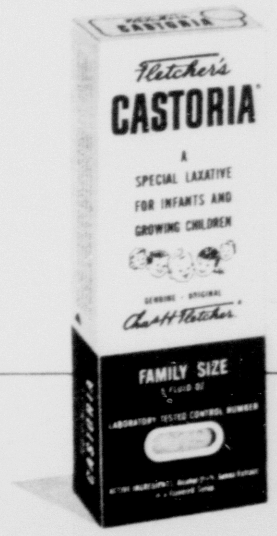

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs which are so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances...the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

It takes a child's laxative to fulfill a child's needs

"Who Said The Catholic Church Never Changes?"

Bill remembered when Pope Pius XII changed the law to permit the drinking of water before Holy Communion.

"How about that?" he asked his Catholic friend, Joe. "And look at the changes the Church makes in the requirements of fast and abstinence, and the rules for Lent. And the Pope has changed the hours for Mass, to mention just one other change! What do you mean, the Catholic Church is the same everywhere and never changes its laws?"

An informed Catholic, of course, could have told Bill that certain laws of the Catholic Church have been undergoing changes all the way back to apostolic times. The Canon Law of the Church, for example, consists of more than 2,400 canons which have evolved through many changes into the form in which they are promulgated today.

But there are two kinds of laws upon which the doctrine of the Church is founded, and which are never changed. One is the natural law; the other the positive divine law. They are in one sense the basic laws of the Church. But in their primary and larger way they are the laws of God, which the Church obviously has no authority to change. The Church can and does promulgate them; but she never amends or alters them.

The natural moral laws, of course, are those which God has made evident to the reason and intelligence of man... man shall adore God, shall honor his parents, shall not kill, or lie, or steal. When man's conscience failed its obligation to observe these laws, God put them into words through the Commandments and through the ministry of His Son, Jesus.

To proclaim these laws again and again, and to urge man's compliance with them, is a proper function of the Church. But she cannot amend or alter them in any way.

This is also true of the divine laws enunciated by Our Lord, which the Church is commissioned to proclaim—but not to change. In authorizing the Church to dispense the Sacraments, Jesus did not specify the exact occasions or conditions of fulfillment. Thus, when the Church prescribes such occasions or conditions and later changes them, she is not changing the divine law itself.

Spread over the face of the earth... with her people living under a variety of political, social and economic conditions... the Church must adapt her regulations to varying needs. But in the basic laws of the Church... in the essentials of God's truths... she remains changeless and unchanging down the centuries of time.

I was just thinking...®

ALMOST everybody in our town knows Kenny.

He has been working in one store or another since he was a teen-ager, and that's a long time ago.

One thing about Kenny is that he has always been well-groomed. But the most important thing about him is that he wears a smile as well as he wears his suits.

A while back, a few of the fellows around town began kidding Kenny a little. When they dropped into the store where he worked, he couldn't always find what they wanted. When he did, he couldn't read the price tag.

The fellows gave Kenny a bad time about that. They said if he'd get to bed nights instead of carousing around town, he'd do a better job in the daytime. Kenny always smiled and agreed.

One morning Kenny didn't come to work and only then did the customers up and down the street discover that Kenny hadn't been staying out nights at all.

He had been going blind.

Almost everybody in our town suffered. When we met, we talked about Kenny and his smile, Kenny and his secret courage, Kenny and his determination to fight the darkness. But there was nothing we could do about it.

He was gone from our town a long time. When he came back, he was well-groomed as always. He wore a smile as well as he wore his suit.

But he carried a long white cane.

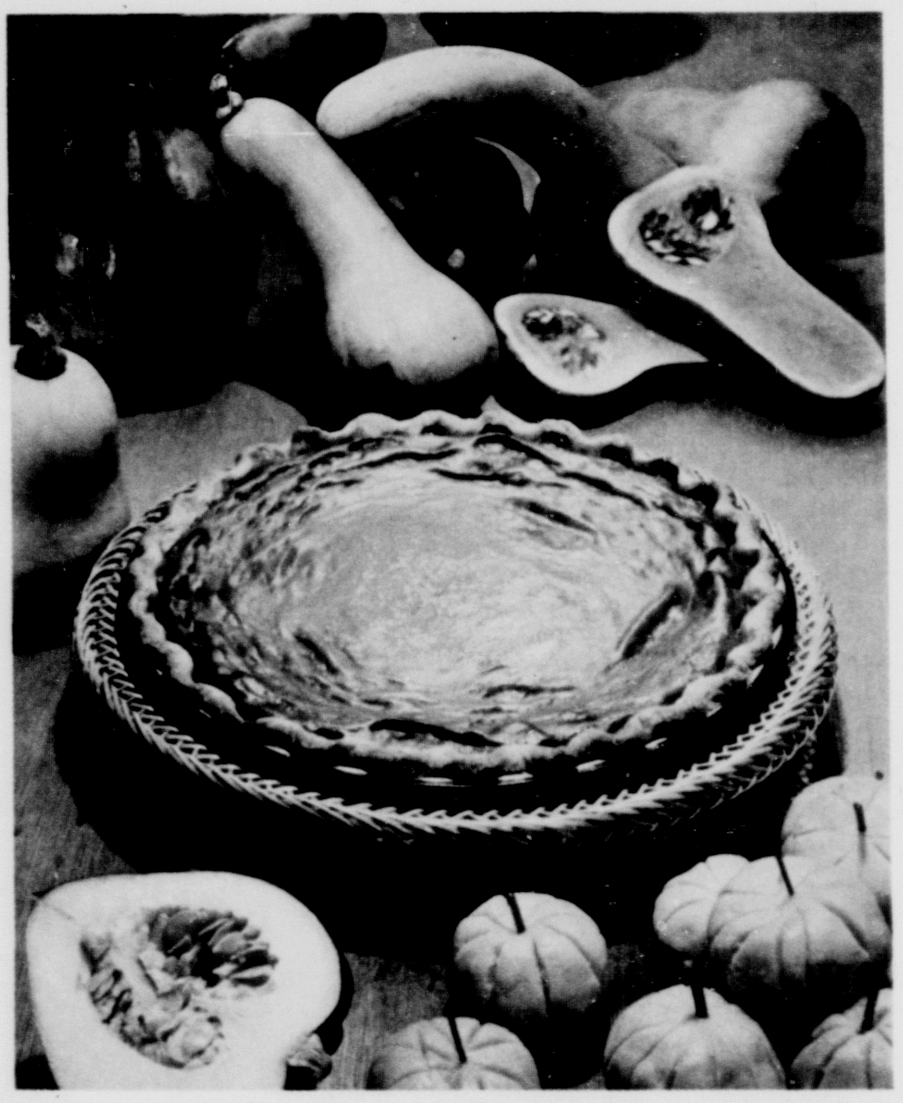

He spoke to those who met him on the street. He looked them right in the eye and heard their voices and then called each of them by name.

And then he opened his own store for the first time in his life. He made blueprints from plywood. He put brads along the shelves so he could tell even better than before what he was looking for and how much it cost. He kept sales records in Braille, and he read volumes, but by listening instead of looking.

So now Kenny is walking down our streets once more. He is smiling more than ever before. We smile, too, because he has kept the darkness a little further away from the rest of us.

And our town is all right again.

Basic Pastries

Pastry I

1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup lard, hydrogenated vegetable shortening, or all-purpose shortening
2½ tablespoons cold water

1. Sift flour and salt together into a bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until pieces are the size of small peas.

3. Roll from center to edge into a round about ⅛ in. thick and about 1 in. larger than over-all size of pan.
4. Loosen pastry from board with spatula and fold in quarters. Gently lay pastry in pan and unfold it, fitting it to the pan so that it is not stretched.
5. Trim edge with scissors or sharp knife so pastry extends about ½ in. beyond edge of pie pan. Fold extra pastry under at edge, and flute.
6. Thoroughly prick bottom and sides of shell with a fork. (Omit pricking if filling is to be baked in shell.)

2. Immediately pour the oil-water mixture over entire surface of flour. Toss and mix with fork until all flour is moistened.
3. Form dough into ball. Place dough between squares of waxed paper. Roll lightly from center to edge into a 12-in. round. Peel off top sheet of paper.
4. Place pastry in a pie pan; peel off remaining waxed paper. Fit into pan; fold edge under, and flute.
5. If pastry is to be baked before filling, prick bottom and sides with a fork.
6. Bake at 475°F 10 to 12 min., or until golden brown. One 8- or 9-in. pastry shell

Pastry III

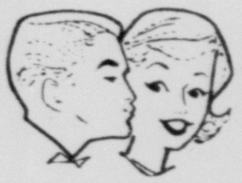

¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour

U.N. Urges Soviet Call Off Big Test

Assembly Approves Appeal Resolution By 87-To-11 Vote

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Racing against the clock, the U.N. General Assembly today confronted the Soviet Union with a solemn appeal to call off its 50-megaton test set for the month's end.

The international body approved the resolution by a smashing vote of 87-11 with 1 abstention, but the Russians indicated before the ballot they would turn down the appeal.

Faced with the Oct. 31 deadline announced by Soviet Premier Khrushchev for touching off the monster bomb, the eight sponsors of the appeal pressed the assembly into an overtime session to get a vote before the weekend recess.

The only nations to vote against the proposal were the nine Soviet bloc countries, the new Red member, Outer Mongolia, and Cuba. Mali abstained.

Just before the balloting Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin declared that "nothing will obstruct the Soviet Union in its efforts to strengthen its defenses or in its efforts for peace."

Tsarapkin denounced the appeal as "NATO's propagandist arrow launched against the Soviet Union."

The vote came exactly one week after it was introduced in the assembly's main Political Committee by Canada, Denmark, Iceland, Iran, Japan, Norway, Pakistan and Sweden.

The committee approved it Wednesday, after a stormy session marked by Communist delaying attempts, and sent it on to the assembly.

Despite the threatened Soviet turndown, supporters of the appeal hope world opinion will have some effect on the Kremlin.

The sponsors had hoped to get a quicker vote on the appeal, but a long debate over admission of Outer Mongolia and Mauritania as the 102nd and 103rd U.N. members delayed the action.

The two countries had been approved by the Security Council two days earlier in a package deal that broke a 10-month deadlock.

Communist Outer Mongolia won unanimous consent from the assembly despite a biting attack from Nationalist China which announced beforehand it would not take part in the vote.

The former French colony of Mauritania got in over strong opposition from the Arab states who argued that the new nation was rightfully part of Morocco.

The resolution to admit Mauritania was adopted by a vote of 68-13 with 20 abstentions. Cyprus was absent.

The assembly also gave quick approval to a 25-nation resolution calling for a speedup of reports from U.N. experts on the effect of radioactive fallout from nuclear tests.

UAW Delays Strike Threat To Chrysler

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) —Chrysler Corp. had today what amounted to a Thursday strike deadline from the United Auto Workers Union.

The union gave every indication that it would attempt to avoid a walkout at plants of the only money-loser among the auto industry's big three, but the UAW international executive board said Friday night it was postponing until 8 p.m. Tuesday a decision on whether to serve 48-hour notice of contract termination.

Industry Area Home Is Damaged In Blaze

The interior of a two - story home in Industry was gutted by fire this morning about 11.

The blaze at the home of James Patterson near the Craft Service Station was brought under control about noon.

Witnesses said there were several children at home at the time but all escaped unharmed.

The Industry volunteer department responded to the call.

Reds Snub Saturn

MOSCOW (AP)—Up to noon today, neither the Soviet press nor radio had mentioned the launching Friday of America's giant Saturn rocket.

Carrier On Last Run

2 Listed Serious Among 9 Hurt In Auto-Bus Mishap

EAST PALESTINE — At least nine persons were injured, two seriously, in a collision of a bus and two cars Friday at 6 p.m. on State Route 90 in Mahoning County about 10 miles north. Six were hospitalized.

The Ohio Highway Patrol at Canfield said a car driven by Miss Nancy Baumgardner, 17, of W. Clark St., East Palestine, pulled from the Columbiana-New Castle Rd. onto Route 90 and struck the rear of the southbound bus operated by Cecil Stanonik, 43, of New Waterford R.D 1. The impact caused the bus to partially overturn onto the top of a northbound car driven by James Saxon, 26, of Hubbard.

The bus, operated by the East Palestine Coach Lines, was headed for East Palestine from Youngstown. It was the last run of the day and was due to arrive here at 6:15.

Witnesses said the bus bounced back onto its wheels after hitting the Saxon car, which was crushed.

Saxon, who suffered head and rib injuries, and Frank Garrett of Youngstown, a bus passenger, who also suffered head injuries, were listed in "serious" condition at the Youngstown South Side Hospital.

Miss Baumgardner, a 1961 graduate of East Palestine High School, is in "fair" condition with various injuries. Also in "fair" condition at the hospital are Stanonik, who suffered head injuries, and Ruth Telford, 22, of East Palestine R.D. and Carol Hamilton, 22, of Petersburg, bus passengers.

Three other passengers, including Mrs. Trudy Birk of East Palestine, who received a laceration of the head, were treated at the hospital. A number of East Palestine High School students who had been shopping in Youngstown were on the bus. They were shaken up, but none apparently was injured.

Garrett, about 57, formerly lived in East Palestine and was en route here to visit relatives.

Fallout Cloud Due Over U.S. In Northwest

Experts Emphasize There's No Need For Undue Alarm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A cloud of fallout from the big Soviet nuclear explosion is due to drift over the country's Pacific Northwest today, but U.S. experts emphasized there is no need for undue alarm.

The invisible concentration of radioactive ash from Monday's detonation is expected to reach Washington and Oregon this morning. Weather Bureau specialists said the fallout appears to be heading into a rain belt that might carry some of the debris to earth in Oregon and Idaho.

They said it should take a couple of days for the fallout mass to cross the United States and that it probably would keep to a path over the Northern States.

Spokesmen for the Weather Bureau and the U.S. Health Service said they saw no need for undue alarm or for any immediate action to protect health.

"We don't think the levels of radioactivity will be significantly higher in the Northwest than they have been after other major Soviet bomb tests," said Dr. Lester Machta, Weather Bureau fallout specialist.

He added: "Most of the debris went into the stratosphere and will not come to earth for months. Only a little peeled off into the troposphere (the air layer below the stratosphere), and it is unlikely that the radiation measurements will be frightening."

Deputy Surgeon General John D. Porterfield, summarizing for newsmen the results of a two-day conference on fallout called by the Public Health Service, said there are no indications that health protective measures will be required even if the Russians still explode a 50-megaton blast.

Big Bomber Fund Nipped By Pentagon

Extra $780 Million Will Be Used For Aircraft Of Future

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration announced Friday night that the military buildup will give the nation "a nuclear capability several times" that of the Soviet Union's, and thus the Pentagon will not spend extra millions ticketed by Congress for big bombers.

The decision not to use the $780 million Congress voted for the bombers and for pushing work on aircraft of the future was made public by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. He said he had President Kennedy's approval.

In announcing that the funds would be impounded, the Defense Department said: "The progress of the administration's accelerated defense buildup makes unnecessary the use of additional defense funds appropriated by the Congress above the amount requested by the administration."

The Pentagon originally opposed buying more of the long-range B52 bombers and a speedup in development of the B70, designed to fly at 2,000 miles an hour.

But when the Berlin crisis developed, Congress not only approved all the additional funds Kennedy had requested but added more for another 45-plane wing of the B52s, plus money to speed development of other projects.

Since then the bomber program has been under study in the defense Department.

There had been rumors and hints that the Pentagon might reverse itself. But Friday's decision was foreshadowed even when Congress was considering the bill. McNamara let it be known then he was disinclined to spend the money.

First Phase Of Scientific Plan

U.S. Researchers Depart For Mission In Antarctic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of American and foreign newsmen and 25 Navy Seabees take off today for the one area in the world where the United States and the Soviet Union have reached agreement about banning nuclear weapons tests—the ice-capped antarctic.

The newsmen were headed for the world's most remote and least known continent to cover the first phase of the most ambitious scientific program yet undertaken by the United States in the antarctic.

Some 200 researchers are participating in the antarctic scientific mission, sponsored by the National Science Foundation. The Navy, under Operation Deep Freeze 62, is furnishing logistical and other support to the mission.

American scientific efforts during this year's projects will range from the first geological reconnaissance of one of the largest unexplored mountain chains on earth—the Sentinel Range of the Ellsworth Mountains about 800 miles from the South Pole—to new studies of solar flare radiation, one of the most serious menaces to space travelers.

There also will be a wide variety of other studies in the fields of biology, geology, glaciology, gravity, mapping, meteorology, oceanography, upper atmospheric physics, and seismology.

The Seabees, members of the Navy's Mobile Construction Battalion, Davisville, R.I., are the latest units to leave this country to join the Navy's Deep Freeze forces. Including elements already "on the ice," they will number more than 3,000 men, 10 ships and mor ethan 30 aircraft during the coming year.

U.S. Eyeing Diplomacy On Berlin

To Avoid Further Armed Incursions Into East Sector

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States apparently has decided to avoid if possible further armed incursions into East Berlin and to concentrate instead on seeking a diplomatic solution of the war-threatening Berlin border dispute.

Officials here declined to say flatly that there would be no more trips of U.S. civilians into East Berlin with armed escorts. They indicated they could not foresee immediately what steps might be necessary in the fast-moving and highly dangerous situation.

But one high government authority declared Friday night that "the focus of this situation now moves from Berlin to an intergovernmental level where it is under urgent and serious discussion."

If this report means what it seems to mean, it indicates the United States, Britain and France now prefer not to carry the border quarrel into further risks of a shooting conflict between U. S. and Soviet tank forces.

U. S. and Soviet tanks were drawn up on opposite sides of the border at the Friederichstrasse crossing point Friday. Barely 200 yards apart, they aimed their guns at each other.

The effort to get a solution of the dispute through diplomatic channels began Friday when U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson conferred in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Thompson made a bid for Soviet action to end East German insistence on examination of the identification documents of U. S. officials crossing from West to East Berlin. Gromyko is understood to have rebuffed the bid.

The State Department said Friday night the Thompson-Gromyko meeting was "unsatisfactory" from the U. S. point of view. But it referred to the meeting as "initial talks," leaving no doubt that Secretary of State Dean Rusk and presumably President Kennedy intend to have further efforts made.

Soviet Given New Warning By Johnson

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson has issued a blunt warning to the Soviet Union that the United States will use the full force of its growing military might to preserve its freedom.

"History shows that free men stand firm in the defense of freedom," he said in a University of Florida homecoming talk Friday night. "They do not know surrender, and they do not submit, whatever the cost."

Coupled with his strong words on the Soviet threat was an appeal for national unity in the battle against communism. He declared in indirect reply to critics of President Kennedy that "America can be defeated by irresponsible, arrogant partisanship."

The vice president said the United States and the free world could not be defeated militarily or economically and the Soviet Union might be taking one of the biggest and most ill-advised gambles in world history by its strong stand on Berlin.

"This gamble could well go down in history as the greatest miscalculation ever made," he said in a talk delivered at the Blue Key banquet.

Calm At Checkpoint

Tension In Berlin Eased As Red, U.S. Tanks Move Back

AS SOVIET TANKS WITHDREW. Watched by curious East Berliners whose press has completely ignored their presence in the area, Soviet tanks are shown leaving the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint in Berlin after 16 hours of facing U.S. tanks—just 240 yards away. The Russian tanks turned and went up the street. The U.S. tanks withdrew later. (UPI Telephoto)

No Fanfare In Pullout Of Vehicles

Had Been Face To Face At Gunpoint For Over 16 Hours

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet and American tanks withdrew quietly and without fanfare today from the Berlin border front line, easing tension at the East-West checkpoint where they had remained face-to-face at gunpoint range for more than 16 hours.

The 10 Russian tanks pulled back to their East Berlin quarters about a mile away first. Then about 75 minutes later the four American tanks withdrew.

Defying Soviet protests against flights over East Berlin, a U. S. Air Force plane circled for 10 minutes over the area where Soviet tanks were parked. The Soviets had protested against flights over East Berlin by U. S. helicopters. U. S. authorities said the Western allies have the right to fly over all Berlin under postwar four-power agreements.

As soon as the Soviet tanks left the border area, East German police relaxed their stiff controls at the border and waved traffic through with a smile.

A relieved calm settled on the Friedrichstrasse crossing point after the huge armored vehicles rumbled away in opposite directions.

The critical Berlin dispute over Allied rights of entry into East Berlin was by no means settled. But it obviously meant that the road to possible negotiations would be easier with American and Russian tank guns no longer trained on each other.

Shortly after the U. S. tanks left a crowd of about 500 West Berliners surged forward to the checkpoint. Police pushed them back.

A Soviet army sedan came through from East Berlin. The crowd booed and jeered. Four U. S. MPs with rifles, and four German police escorted the Soviet car through the angry Berliners.

People banged their fists on the roof of the sedan. Then the police pushed them away.

After escorting the car safely through the throng, the MPs waved it on and it went on into West Berlin.

After the U. S. tanks withdrew, they took up positions in a bombed out site 800 yards from the checkpoint at the south end of the Friedrichstrasse. They were ranged around a circular open space, the Mehringplatz, in a defensive position.

Across the street on an open space were six armored personnel carriers, two antitank recoilless rifles, many jeeps, including two with red crosses on their canvas covers.

Later all support vehicles, in-

Warm Spell Follows Sub-Freezing Night

Having given the East Liverpool area a night of sub - freezing temperatures, the Ohio weatherman relented and promised much warmer for the weekend.

And showers also were forecast —occasional today and scattered for Sunday — to help make up the rainfall deficiency.

The mercury fell below freezing for the first time this season in East Liverpool, with a low of 31 this morning. Rural areas had much lower temperatures.

Today's high range will be 58 to 62 degrees and tonight's low will be 50 to 54. Sunday will continue warm.

Number Slip Case Stands After Airing

Court Refuses To Quash Indictments Citing Lisbon Firm

LISBON—Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp Friday rejected defense motions to quash indictments charging four Pittsburgh men with printing numbers wagering slips in violation of Ohio's anti - gambling law.

The men are officers of the Lisbon Sales Book Co., which was raided Sept. 6. They are Martin Sufrin, company president; Isadore Sufrin, vice president; Joseph Sufrin, secretary - treasurer, and Michael Schmidlmeir, general manager.

Ohio Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy, who led the raid, described the plant the third largest supplier of numbers slips in the nation. Company officials said they were operating a legal business of printing sales slips for grocery and other stores.

William Moore, attorney who represented the Pittsburgh men at the four - hour hearing, was given until Nov. 10 to file a demurrer to Judge Sharp's ruling.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw and Atty. John W. Gleason, assistant attorney general appointed by the court to help in the prosecution, will have a similar period in which to answer the demurrer before it is heard.

Atty. Moore contended the law makes a crime out of conduct

Police Seek Motive In Murder Of Coed

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The real mystery facing police today in the murder of Betty Gail Brown, 19, an attractive Transylvania University coed and honor student, was the motive.

The body of Miss Brown, of Lexington, was found in her car early Friday in front of a college office building.

She had been strangled with the straps of her brassiere, police said. The bra was lying in her lap, but her unbuttoned blouse had not been ripped and was tucked neatly into her bermuda shorts, police said.

Nehru Faces Kennedy Ire On UN Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru of India will be told during his talks with President Kennedy of growing U.S. impatience with India's stand in the United Nations for an uncontrolled moratorium on nuclear tests, informants said today.

Nehru is due in New York Nov. 5. The following morning he travels by plane to Cape Cod, Mass., where he will have an informal talk with the President. Three days of wide-ranging talks on all of the major world crises will follow in Washington.

U.S. officials are showing irritation at what they consider Indian efforts to equate some 24 Soviet atmospheric tests, which have released radioactive fallout, with three announced U.S. underground explosions, which involve no fallout.

More importantly, the informants said, the United States is concerned because India is pressing for a moratorium rather than for a nuclear test ban with inspection provisions.

New Bid Cuts $6,630 From Razing Price

Project At Ceramic Seen Possible With $65,000 Available

A $10,000 bid submitted Friday afternoon for razing the Ceramic Theater means that a project to convert the old building's site to a municipal parking lot should fall well within the $65,000 available.

The apparent low offer of $10,000 was one of five received at City Hall by Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and Safety-Service Director Robert Owen, who comprise the Board of Control.

It's $6,630 under the lone bid of $16,630 the board received Oct. 6 when it initially opened offers on the razing job. The bid later was rejected because its acceptance would have put the overall cost of the Ceramic project over the amount available.

A legal notice was issued for

Orbital Rendezvous

U.S. Eyes New Method To Hasten Moon Landing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The highly-successful flight of the first Saturn superbooster is expected to lead to U.S. pursuit or orbital rendezvous instead of direct flight as a means of quickening manned landings on the moon.

The rendezvous method would employ Saturns to place a rocket and a spaceship in separate orbits 300 miles high. The two would join in space, and the rocket would boost the ship to the moon. In the vacuum of space, the orbiting rocket would not require the immense power of ground-launched vehicles which must shoulder through the earth's heavy atmosphere.

Experts here discussed rendezvous after Friday's perfect test of the first Saturn, the world's largest known rocket. They theorized the approach could cut two years from the direct-flight concept using the Nova rocket, still on the drawing board.

With its eight-engine powerplant pouring out 1.3 million pounds of thrust, the 162-foot Saturn raced 90 miles high, then fell as intended with two dummy upper stages into the Atlantic Ocean 200 miles away.

The entire flight lasted only eight minutes. But it provided tremendous impetus to the U.S. race to beat the Russians to the moon. Few persons expected complete success on the maiden test. Prelaunch calculations had placed chances of success at only 30 per cent.

Dr. Robert Seamans, NASA associate administrator, said afterwards: "Today we made a significant step forward in development of vehicles we need for space exploration, especially manned space exploration."

Del. Tsapis Asks State Opinion On Redistricting

Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson has been asked for an opinion on the delicate subject of reapportioning the 100-seat West Virginia House of Delegates.

The request was made by Del. Callie Tsapis, (D) Hancock, chairman of the House Committee on Counties, Districts and Municipalities.

The Northern Panhandle lawmaker said that because of population shifts in many counties since 1950, "many of us feel that such action reapportionment must be taken during the session in January of 1962."

The 30-day even-year session is normally restricted to budget matters, and any other legislation must either be included in the Governor's proclamation or by a resolution approved by a two - thirds vote of the elected membership of each house.

Miss Tsapis asked Robertson whether it will be necessary to have a resolution passed in the House in order to bring a reapportionment bill before the Legislature.

New York Mets Break Ground For New Park

NEW YORK (AP)—Ground will be broken today for the $18 million, 55,000-seat Flushing Meadow stadium that will be the home park starting in 1963 for the New York Mets of the National Baseball League and the New York Titans of the American Football League.

Mayor Robert Wagner and Bill Shea, chairman of the mayor's baseball committee that helped obtain the return of the National League to New York, will be among the officials at the ceremonies.

The stadium will be located on the site of the 1939-40 World's Fair, and the site of the World's Fair planned for 1964 — about a 20-minute trip by car from midtown Manhattan.

The architects figure construction of the three-tiered, circular stadium will take at least 14 months.

The Mets, managed by Casey Stengel, will make their debut next spring and will play their games in the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants before they moved to San Francisco. The Titans have played their home games at the Polo Grounds since the AFL began in 1960.

cluding the personnel carriers headed south in a convoy. An officer said: "We are going off to rest for a while and the tanks are staying here."

When the tank withdrawals was completed the Soviets were 1,200 yards from the border and the Americans 800 yards.

But the abrupt about-turn from the front answered the hottest question in this tense divided city: Would the Soviet Union or the U.S. tanks be the first to back away from the explosive border.

Only a painted white line, a two-foot high barrier, and 200 yards of asphalt had separated the 10 Soviet and 4 American tanks which zeroed in on each other at point-blank range.

But at 10:37 a.m. the Soviet crewmen calmly mounted their tanks, some decorated with flowers, closed down the hatches, then turned around and rumbled out of the Friedrichstrasse checkpoint area and into a side street leading towards the ruins of the palace of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

There were tense moments until it became known in which direction the Soviets were going to move.

The American crewmen jumped into their tanks and waited, gunning their motors. But when it became apparent that the Red tanks were moving back instead of forward, a U.S. captain signaled for the engines to be switched off.

A large U.S. Army sedan carrying five uniformed Americans passed through the checkpoint into East Berlin soon after the Soviet tanks had departed.

U.S. Army cars had been traveling back and forth from the Communist sector all night. But it marked the first time during that period in which they were spared the trouble of detouring around the Red armored vehicles.

The Soviet tank departure was preceded by a visit by a group of East German army officers to the border. The group included a full colonel, three lieutenant colonels, and several other officers who looked around and apparently were briefed by East German police.

The Soviet tanks apparently pulled back about a mile.

The movement came after a tear gas battle had flared up during the night between East and West German police.

German witnesses reported that 40 more Soviet tanks had moved into East Berlin before dawn to reinforce 30 Soviet tanks which rolled in Thursday night.

The tear gas exchange which punctuated the hazardous night vigil started with East Berlin police hurling more than 20 gas grenades at a West Berlin loudspeaker truck which was broadcasting to East Berliners.

West Berlin police retaliated by tossing more than 30 grenades back over the bristling communist-erected border barrier. There were no reports of casualties.

Tankers on either side of the tense Friedrichstrasse crosspoint maintained their unflinching alert throughout the night, their big guns zeroed in squarely on armored units barely 200 yards away.

new bids, resulting in yesterday's action.

Mayor Goodballet said the board expects to act Monday on the bids.

The $10,000 offer was filed by the M. & S. Wrecking Co. of Youngstown. The firm also stipulated that it would receive any salvage from the building.

It asked that the contract price be paid in three installments — a third when the roof is removed, a third after the walls have been leveled and a third upon final approval of its work.

The Cleveland Wrecking Co. of Cincinnati filed a bid of $15,730 — $900 under the offer it filed on Oct. 6 but still the second highest of the five received yesterday.

The top bid of $15,875 was filed by Chapin & Chapin, Inc., of Norwalk, one of the contractors on the West End-California Hollow freeway project. The other bidders were: Ohio Contracting Co. of Youngstown, $11,900, and A. & M. Construction Co. of Steubenville, $13,920.

With a total of $65,000 available for all phases of the project, the $10,000 razing bid may make it possible to accomplish the job for approximately $61,000.

Council issued $60,000 in self-liquidating bonds for the project. Later, a Chamber of Commerce committee donated $5,000, boosting the fund to $65,000.

Out of the bond issue funds, the city paid $45,000 for the building to heirs of the Tallman Estate. Adding $10,000 for razing would boost the expenditure to $55,000. With an estimated $6,000 still needed for finishing touches — a blacktop surface, parking meters and concrete walks — the overall total would rise to $61,000.

Negotiations to purchase the old building and convert the site to parking date back to January. Council was advised in March the heirs had agreed to the city's $45,000 offer.

The city's plan calls for establishment of a metered lot with spaces for about 40 cars. Parking revenue is expected to retire the bond issue over a 10-year period.

Wellsville Warden Seeks Home For Pups

If anyone in the area has need of a pet, Bill Long, Wellsville dog warden, said he can fill the order.

He has seven pups about 8 weeks old for anyone who will make a home for them.

Long said the dogs were abandoned in a box Thursday night along side the Welsville Feed & Supply on Lisbon St. They resemble small shepherd pups.

Long said he also has an adult female shepherd which is friendly and would make a good pet.

The animals may been seen at the dog pound at 17th St. and Riverside Ave. Long said he will be at the pound any day after 5 p. m. Anyone interested in obtaining one of the pups may phone him at LE. 2-1951.

The pups are too young for licenses or rabies shots, but if someone takes the older dog, he would have to obtain a license, Long said.

A TRIBUTE -- OUR AMERICAN LEGION

VALOR, said one of the great philosophers, is something lightly remembered. Is that true here in this town? We don't think so. We remember. We remember the faces and figures of our boys who marched away for World War I . . . and our lads who doomed uniforms for World War II. The American Legion is a fraternity of these men who, when the occasion arose, took up arms in OUR defense. Do THEY remember? Most certainly. They remember everything they and their buddies went through: and now with their regular meetings at the Post, they glory in the fact that they constitute one of the greatest, most influential forces for good in our nation. All hail our heroes who proudly wore the Blue and the Khaki!

Have You Done Your Part?

Despite the efforts of volunteer workers and campaign leaders, collections are lagging toward the goal of $77,000 in the annual Community Fund drive.

The story is not new. Only once has the fund gone over the top. It had been hoped that this would be the second time — and it's still quite possible the goal will be reached, or topped, if all concerned get behind the drive in a final push. And we all are concerned!

It's almost inconceivable that any one with an ounce of community pride and spirit would shirk his or her duty when approached to give. Since figures don't lie, however, there must be many who are doing just that.

The agencies which will benefit from the money raised have served the community and immediate area well for years and are ready to continue to serve providing the people come through with the helping hand that is vital to their full operation.

There are few groups more deserving of your financial support than the YMCA, Girl and Boy Scouts, Recreation Council, Salvation Army and the United Service Organizations. But, at this moment, the necessary support is lagging.

As the name Community Fund suggests, this is a community affair, not just a matter for a small percentage to be concerned about. Everyone benefits at one time or another from the services provided by the organizations mentioned above. As pointed out before, it would be a shocking step backward if they weren't part of our everyday lives.

This is an opportunity to demonstrate that East Liverpool as a community is progressive, wide awake and ready to meet its responsibilities. It's up to you and you and you!

If you haven't contributed, do so at once. If you have given already, check your budget and see if you can't give more. Let's get the drive over the top in a hurry!

Switching To The Big Ones

The National Aeronautics and Space Agency is taking a cautious point of view on its Saturn rocket.

The first firing Friday was more successful than NASA had dared to hope it might be.

If the rocket does this well in 5 out of 10 firings, everybody will be happy.

But don't look for much until 1964—and don't look for too much then.

In the meantime, this is only a preliminary step. Saturn is not the rocket that will send the first U.S. spacecraft to the moon but only the rocket that will make it possible to learn more about the moon. The moon rocket will be Neptune.

Furthermore, all that was tested Friday at Cape Canaveral was the booster stage of the Saturn. The second and third stages aren't ready; their weight was represented by water ballast.

We get the idea.

BELATEDLY, government rocketeers have switched from a policy of inspiring too much hope to a policy of playing down good news and preparing the popular mind for disappointment. But the significance of the Saturn rocket cannot be overestimated.

The United States finally has moved up out of the Little League of rocketry into the majors. As far as it knows, its Saturn rocket is larger than anything the Russians have built so far. But the Russians have put up Spacecraft capsules weighing five tons, and there is no reason to believe they will rest on their launching pads and wait for the United States to catch up.

NO ONE CAN be sure about the significance of the rocket race and the promise to land an expedition on the moon. But no one in either the United States or Russia can doubt that the race is in progress. It long ago passed the point of a missile contest; both countries now have the capacity to destroy each other with missiles carrying nuclear warheads.

The race is for the moon. The United States, with its Saturn booster, finally has qualified. All we can hope for now is that the race won't be over before our entry gets to the starting line.

Easier To Believe Every Time

Richard M. Nixon will be pestered every time he appears in public by people wanting to know whether he will be available for another presidential bid in 1964. It happened again in San Diego this week.

His answers will be the same every time —No.

The same doubt will be raised by his opponents every time: Does he really mean it?

This is the most hurtful thing Mr. Nixon's Democratic opponents can do to him in his bid for the Republican nomination for governor—keep raising the doubt that he would serve out a four-year term if nominated and elected in 1962.

But every time Mr. Nixon says he would not be available for another presidential bid in 1964 if he had been elected governor of California in 1962 it's easier to believe he means it from the bottom of his heart and the soles of his feet.

The latest light on the 1964 presidential prospect has been shed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, the forthright Republican from Arizona. Speaking as one of the two likeliest contenders for a Republican presidential nomination, in addition to Mr. Nixon, Sen. Goldwater says bluntly he doesn't think chances would be good for defeating John F. Kennedy's bid for a second term; that he wouldn't want to tackle.

Gov. Nelson Roskefeller of New York, the other Republican being talked about for a presidential nomination, is noncommital. But he probably will be running for governor again in 1962 too and will be expected to tell what he intends to do in 1964.

No one expects him to be as strong in his promise to stick to the governorship if he gets it again as Mr. Nixon has been. In 1960, Gov. Rockefeller went hunting for potential delegates and finding none went home to Albany. At that time his four-year term was half over.

In 1962, with a potential second term half over, Republicans would be expecting another sounding out. Gov. Rockefeller would be entitled to his chance, and he apparently could count on the blessing of both the senator from Arizona and the former vice president.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Commies have denounced Mickey Mouse as a foe of peace. For his own protection Mickey may have to demand a seat in the United Nations. He has done more for humanity than Outer Mongolia, and, after studying the actions of numerous members of the U.N., he declared there are many mice in the membership. If Outer Mongolia can win a seat, why not Outer Disneyland? "I have been following those U.N. sessions and no mouse has ever behaved as some delegates do in a pinch," declared Mickey Mouse today.

"What have you contributed to the world?" we asked.

"Laughter, and it is more important than any contributions of the U.S.S.R.," replied Mickey. "I don't think I ever made a human being fearful, sad or unhappy. Naturally I am poison to Reds. Can you imagine me filling the air with the deadly fall-out from monster megaton bombs? Not even Donald Duck would do that."

"Could you get into the U.N.?" we asked.

"I would probably be held too peaceful. But if I could show that I never pay dues and abstained in every crisis I might have a chance," was his reply.

MICKEY DOESN'T NEED any financial relief or help but will demand a big slice of foreign aid if it is absolutely necessary to qualify. Moscow is definitely anti-Mickey and so is Red China. Castro is even anti-Minnie Mouse.

As for Donald Duck he isn't sure of the attitude Russia will take on him, but expressed a grave fear the U.S.S.R. is preparing a blast against him and may have already perfected an anti-Donald Duck missile. "Altogether chances for peaceful coexistence between Khrushchev, the megaton bomb and me don't look good," he said.

The birthday of the U.N. was chosen by the Soviets to explode 30 to 50 megaton bomb. This is the first time anybody ever dreamed of using 30 million tons of TNT to blow out wax candles on a birthday cake.

Guns and ammunition were stolen from a police locker in New York. Can it be our police stations are no longer safe?

James Hoffa has sued George Meany for libel. Can this mean Jimmy is against any rough talk anywhere anytime?

HUGH O'BRIAN, who has played "Wyatt Earp," the fearless frontier marshal in a western, for six years, will play lead in a Broadway play called "First Love," about as far from frontier days as its possible to get. Let's hope the critics don't turn out to be badmen.

After all these years in cowtown violence, Hugh should be excused if, from force of habit, he busts into big love scene with a six-shooter and tells Cupid to "get out of town by sundown."

FRUITFUL INTERLUDE

Have you come out unhurt, save for bruises quite wide,
A deep cut in your head and a strip off your hide?
Was the other guy gashed, with one arm in a sling
And both eyes black and blue from a haymaking swing?
To this simple announcement devotedly cling:
"IT WAS FRUITFUL."
Have the missus and you fought an hour or two
Using language decidedly bitter and blue?
Are you both on your backs feeling barely alive;
Not to mention some fractures amounting to five?
Remember to say as the doctors arrive
"IT WAS FRUITFUL."

III

Has your neighbor blitzed you and you've blitzed in return
With no sign of a peace bid that you can discern?
Are you bleeding profusely and "out on your feet,"
And the other guy calling the cop on the beat?
Bear in mind to proclaim in tones ever so sweet
"IT WAS FRUITFUL?"

Who Needs Goblins?

Missile Labor Field Needs Czar

By Victor Riesel

PHOENIX

After more hedgehopping, I want to report that what this country needs is a good 5-cent-a-year "czar" to run our mastodon missile site construction operation. Otherwise this nation is in trouble.

Victor Riesel

At the moment the Pentagon is letting the Air Force "do it." The Air Force has zeroed in on all unions in the missile making plants as well as the launching sites. Local unions are wiring their national chiefs in Washington charging they are being strafed by Air Force brass which knows nothing about labor relations.

The regional chiefs want permission to strike everything from Cape Canaveral now to big rocket factories next year. National labor leaders are telephoning warnings to their people not to walk out, but there is muttering all along the line in to-hell-with-Washington tones.

Some weeks ago, a vice president of the International Association of Machinists told 200 delegates at a U.S. and Canadian missile and aircraft workers' conference in San Diego that the "Air Force is unable to read, interpret or understand" labor problems.

A FEW DAYS LATER, Cape Canaveral workers — members of more than 20 national unions — quietly asked their national leaders for the right to walk off the entire base in protest against the Air Force decisions. It does matter, of course, who is right and wrong. But who has the time to stop now? That wall in Berlin is growing higher and higher.

This missile and testing site construction is the most complex undertaken by man. It is, in addition, basically an underground operation. Virtually all of it is concealed from view on the missile sites.

The big "birds" nestle in underground silos which, when finished, if put end to end would have a combined depth of some 25 miles into the earth.

As the Pentagon explains it, the gargantuan task will include moving 26 million cubic yards of earth and rock. This is enough to build a levee 5 feet high and 10 feet wide — the entire length of the Mississippi River.

EVENTUALLY there will be more than 3 million cubic yards of concrete placements — enough to build another Hoover Dam. Enough steel to build one million passenger cars — or about 764,000 tons — will go into the underground launching sites. The budget for the construction job alone is close to $1 billion, spent on 19 locations in 15 states.

When the construction ends, the headaches of maintenance begin to throb. Those million-dollar "birds" must be kept in concrete nests so pure that not a single drop of oil or dirt can get into the missiles' innards. Otherwise they'll malfunction.

Even this is nothing compared to the electronic mysteries of the testing sites, such as "the Cape." A giant gantry for the Saturn space ship recently delivered to Canaveral was a 310-foot steel tower.

It has its own power station; its own air conditioning and heating systems; water supplies, intercom system; lighting facilities and three elevators. It propels itself. It takes hundreds of men of different trades to maintain this monster.

Add these to the thousands working on other satellite launchings across the nation and add all these to the 21,000 building and construction workers on the missile sites.

THESE ARE STRUNG OUT from northern New York to areas near Boise, Idaho, to the deserts of Nevada and New Mexico and the lower end of California and Florida. There you have too much for even Arthur Goldberg, let alone unknowing Air Force men.

There are disputes over such details as which union's members will dig a trench for underground cables; which union's members will tug the cables off the carrier trucks; which union's members will cover the trench and who will pull the cables through and connect them.

Each decision requires time. Each incident could ulcerate our defense program for a bit, as well as the insides of those trying to meet a deadline which the Russians reallly are setting.

Why not appoint a missile and space construction chief — a man so distinguished he is trusted by both sides. Why not let him and a small staff troubleshoot the land? Why not take all this out of the hands of amateurs and those who have many other tasks?

This is a full-time job for someone who has full time on his hands and love of his land in his heart.

350 Million Needles

By Truman Twill

The great good government has admitted it. It lost the 350 million copper needles it lofted into Space. They're up there somewhere, that we know because the government strapped them on the tail end of a Midas IV satellite—and it's up there, all right.

Before our great good government finishes lofting things into Space there will be a lot of things up there—somewhere. Instead of just sitting around batting our gums wondering where the money went, we'll wonder where the stuff went.

It will have gone up in smoke, and there are possibilities here that are more than casually intriguing. Few of us are equipped by education to calculate the mathematical possibilities of getting rid of stuff by firing it into Space, but we're hep enough to know they're vast, man, vast. Like Space.

We could put all the used cars up there and the surplus wheat and lard and what have you. And to get down to the possibility that's most intriguing, we could turn Space into a kind of hereafter, to solve the problem of keeping graveyards from getting into the way of superhighways.

It's a rare week any more during construction season when there isn't one story of a graveyard being moved because it was located carelessly in the path of one of the multi-billion-dollar projects for giving the automobile the right of way over death as well as life.

Instead of guaranteeing the deceased so many square feet of the earth, then reneging on the deal, we'd guarantee them a permanent place up yonder, as we used to say when we sang the good old songs of comfort. That is, it would be permanent insofar as permanency could be assured by our missileers. And in any event, if something fouled up and the burial capsules all fell out of their orbital path there would be nothing awkward about the consequences, thanks to the all-consuming heat of friction generated on the re-entry course.

This would go far toward restoring a concept that has intrigued all of us who learned to think of Heaven as geography, instead of a condition of the spirit. As children we routinely scanned the heavens, secure in the belief that beyond our vision the dear departed ones were holding firmly to orbital courses that had been predetermined and were immutable.

Even our pet dogs, cats and horses once were entitled to share this spatial immortality, and perhaps they may share it again when we have mastered the rocket technique that in our time has taken the place of the mystiques that formerly governed what went to Heaven.

Meanwhile, the great good government has admitted we lost our 350 million copper needles, which should entitle all of us to a deduction on our 1961 federal income taxes, along with everything else that's lofted into Space at our expense with nothing to show for it afterward.

The Space Age, everybody assures us, is going to be wonderful, and we are beginning to get the hang of it when we're told that finding one little bitty needle in a haystack was no harder than it is now to find 350 million needles in Heaven.

The Sheltered Life

By David Lawrence

Sandburg Analysis Of Ike Criticized

Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Lincoln, probably will be sorry he ever brought it up because many people will differ sharply with him when he says an army man like Gen. Eisenhower has lived a sheltered life in a "welfare state" of his own. Officers in the armed services will disagree vehemently. True, when they choose a military career, they are offered a certain security in their jobs but not the many benefits available in private employment today, particularly under union contracts. In training and commanding men from all walks of life, the officers actually come into contact more with individuals and deal more with human relations than do most civilians. To prepare and lead men in battle may seem to a poet a sheltered existence, but he will get little agreement on this from the soldiers who happen now, for instance, to be standing guard at the West Berlin border.

David Lawrence

Mr. Sandburg had just visited President Kennedy at the White House and was surrounded afterward by reporters and television cameras at the Library of Congress when he gave vent to the following comment, as quoted by United Press International:

"He (Eisenhower) has yet to know the people of the United States. With him the words 'socialist' and 'socialism' are dirty words —very nearly as dirty as 'welfare state.' But ever since he left the creamery at Abilene, Kans., he never bought a suit of clothes or a meal. He never was out of work for a day. All the anxieties that go with the free enterprise system, he hasn't known them. He's lived in a welfare state ever since he left Abilene and went to West Point."

MR. SANDBURG has a strange misconception—shared by many other people—that each of the armed services provides all the needs of its men and officers.

The fact is that a commissioned officer buys all his clothes—his uniforms as well as the civilian clothes he wears when off-duty. His "ration allowance" and "housing allowance" only partially cove the cost of meals and rental when the officer must provide a home for himself and family.

Mr. Sandburg might ask a few officers—from lieutenants up to the generals and admirals—what the difficulties are in raising their families on service pay as they move from post to post and how they manage to give a college education to their children.

He will find that many cannot afford this for all their children. He might also ask the wives of some officers whether they live in a "welfare state" when it comes to providing for the education of their families, for the care of sick or dependent relatives, for the kind of clothes many other women wear.

Also, does Mr. Sandburg think that only a man who has had to earn money to buy his own food and clothing is eligible for the presidency?

It will surely be disputed that a man who hasn't had to earn money necessarily leads a sheltered life and doesn't know anything about the trials and tribulations of his fellow men.

Certainly the affluence of Messrs. Rockefeller, Harriman and Kennedy—who have not had to work for a living—has not made a single one of them insensitive to the importance of social-welfare legislation. Incidentally, Dwight Eisenhower, while president, was criticized severely by some members of his own party when he became champion of social welfare projects of various kinds.

Mr. Sandburg was not well informed either in referring to Mr. Eisenhower as an "ungrammatical" president, as if fluency of speech were a criterion of a president's achievements. The truth is, there are few persons who, when talking extemporaneously, speak with grammatical precision. A look at some of the transcripts of the Kennedy press conference will reveal more than one slip on this score.

MR. EISENHOWER does express himself well in writing. In fact, former members of his staff at the White House say he was something of a purist. His longhand manuscripts would prove this point.

Also, he often corrected what seemed to him ungrammatical English on the part of others who submitted memoranda to him. Army officers have told this writer that Dwight Eisenhower in his younger days wrote many speeches for his superiors in the army.

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Sandburg, who probably has read a good deal of history, hasn't familiarized himself with the ways of American politics.

He says Mr. Eisenhower was unfair in his criticism of the "Peace Corps" and that "it wasn't very good sportsmanship" for the former president to "shoot off" on this subject before the idea has "begun to have a tryout."

Maybe if Mr. Sandburg will reread some of the speeches during last year's presidential campaign about the "missile gap," he will recognize the art of political combat.

Army life isn't as easy as Mr. Sandburg has been led to believe, and, if he is interested in good sportsmanship, he will apologize to the men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

To say that any one of the officers in our military services has yet "to know the people of the United States" is to fail to understand the very men who devote themselves to a career in which they risk their lives so that the rest of us may continue to stay alive to watch television and even to read Mr. Sandburg's fine literary works.

Letter To Editor

There has been so much in the paper lately about the super-bomb. Many are so worried. And that is just exactly what Mr. Khrushchev wants all of us to be like—sacred beyond reason.

When the automobile was new there were those who thought it an outrage—how it frightened those using horse and buggies! When the airplane came out there were those who saw nothing but doom for the world, and then they thought the bombs meant the end of the world.

But you know we even found good in atomic energy, didn't we? I suppose if we have a couple of super-bombs ourself, the people would think nothing of it — that is, if it were on our side. But you know our side has always been more concerned about saving life and improving living conditions and keeping peace rather than creating things for destruction.

It always has been the right way before and now is. The Russians didn't alone make the bomb. They just put together things that God put in the world for men when it was created. When Christian people take God's gifts and put them together we come up with a product worth while and a benefit to mankind.

I looked up and saw a beautiful full arch double rainbow. When the Russians can make one of those then I shall think about getting afraid. We should never fear those who can destroy our body but guard well against those who destroy our soul.

Odd Facts

Probably the deadliest of games in history was played by the Huns of Attila's time. The Huns had learned the game of dice from the Romans, who played with cubes fashioned from knucklebones of goats and sheep. Thus, the term "bones." But the Huns added an innovation all their own. They wagered their lives on a single throw of the bones — the loser often being slain with a spear plunged through his throat.

President John F. Kennedy is the fourth man by the name of John to occupy the White House. Preceding him were John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Tyler. Most popular first name among presidents has been James — Madison, Monroe, Polk, Buchanan and Garfield.

The median age at which American women marry today is about 20 years. The average married woman has 2.03 children, and the number of women with three or more children has doubled within the past 20 years.

Long Distance Dialing Change To Start Sunday

Starting Sunday, individual and two-party telephone subscribers in East Liverpool, Chester - Newell and Smiths Ferry will be required to dial the numeral "1" before they start to dial the regular long distance number they wish to reach, the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. reminded today.

The "1" access code for station-to-station long distance calls is being introduced throughout the United States to provide for a uniform method of reaching the intricate Direct Distance Dialing (DDD) network.

T. Fred Edwards, Ohio Bell commercial manager in East Liverpool, said the "1" access code will cut down on customer errors in making DDD calls by automatically putting the caller into the DDD network.

After dialing the numeral "1," the caller then can continue to complete his DDD call merely by dialing the regular long distance number, which includes the area code for locations outside the "216" dialing area.

Edwards emphasized that the "1" code applies only to long distance station-to-station calls, not local calls which should be dialed in the same manner as at present.

Other types of long distance operator-assisted calls, such as person-to-person, collect and credit card, also will continue to be placed through an operator, without using the "1" code.

Complete dialing instructions for using the new "1" code may be found on Page 9 of the new telephone directory. Also listed there are instructions for using the "1" code for Hookstown exchange subscribers.

Church To Fight West Virginia's Drink Proposal

CHARLESTON — West Virginia Methodists will begin contributing at church services Sunday to a special fund for use in fighting the liquor-by-the drink proposal which will be on the 1962 general election ballot.

The Rev. L. E. Crowson of Logan, chairman of the church's Board of Christian Social Concerns, said no specific goal has been set for the offering which will continue through November, 1962.

"The only guide-line for the concerned citizens of the state," he said, "is the general knowledge of the cost of any state-wide campaign which involves educating all the voters."

Rev. Crowson said in an announcement there are indications those who favor ale of liquor over the bar "will probably have far more than a quarter of a million dollars for their campaigns."

The West Virginia Methodist Conference voted unanimously in June in favor of the special offering, the minister added.

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Wesleyan University's board of trustees has adopted a new code of regulations for the university in the wake of the resignation of President Donald A. Lockmiller.

Approval by the board came only a few hours after the trustees accepted Lockmiller's resignation.

Newell Dedication Waited

50th Anniversary To Be Marked

The 50th anniversary of the Newell Church of the Nazarene —the first organized in West Virginia — will be observed Sunday at 2:30 p. m. with dedication of the structure shown here, completed four years ago.

The program will feature Dr. Samuel Young of Kansas City, Mo., general superintendent, and the Rev. Harvey Hendershot of Charleston West Virginia District superintendent, among speakers. The Rev. O. F. Haynes is pastor.

Construction of the new church was started in 1956 and was completed in March 1957. It is valued at $125,000.

The First church was organized during the assembly year of 1910-11 by the Rev. C. A. Imhoff, district superintendent.

At that time the Newell congregation was part of the Pittsburgh District.

Thirteen charter members met in a storeroom located on Washington St., next to the old car barn and officially formed the congregation. Of the 13, only Mrs. Newton Mosser, Mrs. Josie Parson, and Miss Ida Baxter remain.

Dr. Young, who will be in charge of the dedication, has served his present office since 1948. Earlier, he was a professor and president of Eastern Nazarene College at Quincy, Mass.

He attended the Nazarene College and took graduate work at Boston University. He was serving his alma mater as president when elected to his present office.

Rev. Hendershot was elected superintendent of the West Virginia District in 1958, succeeding Dr. Edward C. Oney, who resigned. Previously, he served 16 years as a pastor in the West Virginia District.

He studied at West Virginia Tech at Montgomery, and was ordained in 1947. He served from 1952-56 as a district young people's president and for two years was a member of the district Advisory Board.

Apple Throwers Post Bonds For Forfeits

LISBON — Two 18-year-old youths arrested for throwing apples at a constable's cruiser posted $25 bonds in Mayor Henry Loudon's court at Hanoverton Thursday, apparently intended to forfeit.

Leroy Hawkins of Kensington was accused of reckless driving and Fred A. Glasser of Hanoverton R. D 1, of disturbing the peace.

The two, with three juveniles, tossed the apples while on Route 9 at the cruiser of Constables Roy Painter and Leroy Ridgeway, who turned and gave chase, arresting them on Route 644.

Juvenile Officer Cornelius Csepke put the older juvenile, 17, under an after-school curfew until Jan. 1 and the other two, 14 and 15, until after Halloween. Painter said the defendants indicated they would forfeit Tuesday.

Heights Area Lacks Water

A major section of Pleasant Heights, including Lisbon St., Fisher Park and LaCroft areas, was without water this morning when a four-inch main broke.

The break near the sewage lift station at Lisbon St. and S. Shady Ln. Dr. was discovered this morning when residents began calling the department's office in City Hall to report they were without water.

A repair crew excavated the line this morning to install a clamp and service was expected to be restored by noon.

Donald T. Duke, department superintendent, said the break wasn't as serious as first expected. It was first believed to be in a 10-inch main, which serves the smaller line.

Duke expressed surprise as calls continued to be received of homes without water. The break occurred at the end of the main where a "blow off" permits the line to be cleaned, Duke said.

However, it apparently killed the pressure in the remainder of the line, the superintendent explained.

The Salem hospital will get an estimated $150,000 to assist in construction of a $450,000 26-bed addition.

The department announced 15 grants throughout Ohio.

Other grants will be announced later from the $8.7 million allocation made by the federal government under the Hill-Burton Act.

The largest grant approved by the state today is an estimated $1.5 million to assist in construction of a new 200-bed Bethesda Hospital in Zanesville to cost a total of $4.5 million. Part of the present hospital is being absorbed in an expressway project.

The Power Of Faith by Howard Brodie

Forming a Peace Corps of his own 57 years ago, Dr. Merrell Vories went to Japan to teach English in a remote school. In his spare time he braved the opposition of local authorities to teach Christianity and founded the Omi Brotherhood, the Japanese Christian society. It cost him his job.

Lacking financial backing, Vories then opened an architectural business in which he carried Christian teachings into action. He granted his workers an 8-hour day with Sunday off at a time when it was unheard of in Japan. The profits of his business went into his Christian work. Jailed at the outbreak of World War II for preaching against war, Dr. Vories spent eight months in prison. During that time he converted three of his jailers to Christianity. When the war ended, the Emperor of Japan selected him as his messenger to the commander of the occupation troops, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"When you came," a citizen of Omi told Dr. Vories, "we did all we could to drive you out. Today . . . we would build a fence around you to keep you in."

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

A Case Of 'Clean Sorrow'

I am constantly amazed and impressed by the deep spiritual insights of people who really practice their religion. A woman whose 58-year-old husband died suddenly wrote me these deeply moving and thought - provoking lines: "I know that having been sustained through other deep sorrows, God will give me the strength to bear this bitter one. It is a clean sorrow — no regrets — nothing left unsaid that I might have wanted to tell Frank. He knew I loved him deeply and he died in peace in his sleep knowing I was close by."

DR. PEALE

What a significant phrase: a clean sorrow. There are mixed sorrows, regretful sorrows, even soiled sorrows and these are not only more painful but also more difficult to heal. But a clean sorrow in which there is no regret only love and faith and happy memories is one of God's greatest blessings.

It brings peace, and understanding and comfort. It is the harmonious working out of God's plan and everything about it is right and good, though not without pain. Clean sorrow is accompanied by clean pain and in its healing it brings healing to the soul.

THE HUSBAND referred to in this spiritually mature statement quoted above was an old and dear friend of mine, Frank W. Kridel, vice president and general manager of the Manhattan and Astor hotels in New York City. I married Frank and his wife "Bibs" and was their pastor, counselor and friend in all the problems of their lives across the years.

In my writing and preaching I have taught a simple formula of life which they followed implicity. It is to take God as your partner, consult Him in all things, put your life and its problems in His hands, then do your best, trusting Him for guidance.

Frank and his wife accepted this formula and lived it completely. Whenever a problem arose either of a personal or business nature, Frank and Bibs would either telephone or come to see me.

We would discuss the problem, then pray about it and work out a solution on this basis. Then they would proceed to carry it out using the best knowledge they possessed. This understanding was sharpened and deepened by the prayer process.

Frank became one of the most successful and best-loved hotel men in the country, and I was proud of him. Coupled with his astute mind and great ability, he had the genius to have a simple uncomplicated faith. And this, believe me, is one of life's greatest secrets.

ACTUALLY, I learned much from Frank Kridel that will help me personally and I want to convey this insight to you. And it is this: take your problems to God in prayer, believe that He hears and answers you. Then proceed to meet your problems confidently knowing that God is actually guiding and helping you. You will be surprised at the amazing outcomes. This really works.

I must add that this formula will not avoid for you the difficulties and sorrows of life. But it will help you through all difficulties and it will keep the sorrow clean.

Actually sorrow is a wound in the mind. It cuts deeply and causes pain. But a clean sorrow contains no mental "infection" so that finally it heals. The personality is stronger and better as a result of this process.

But the thing we call guilt or sin is also a wound. It also cuts deeply into the mind to cause disturbance and pain in the form of regret, conflict, obsession.

It does not heal, but continues to manufacture mental and spiritual disturbance and at last leaves an unclean sorrow. But even this can be cured by a powerful "injection" of God's grace through faith. Spiritual thereapy brings peace to the mind and true tranquility.

Clean sorrow. What a wonderful benediction!

3 Questioned In Auto Theft

Two 17-year-old East End boys are being held in city jail and a 22-year-old man is being questioned in the theft of an 11-year-old used car from an East End lot, police said today.

The juveniles were taken into custody early this morning by Patrolman Sam Hayes and questioned and the 22-year-old man was picked up later and was being questioned by Police Capt. Robert H. Pyle and Patrolman Jack Stroble.

The 1951 Chevrolet was taken from the M. & A. Motors' used car lot 1273 Pennsylvania Ave., Wednesday night or early Thursday, but police first were notified late Friday morning. It was located on Maryland Ave. by Patrolman Jerry Adkins about 12:14 a.m. today.

One of the 17-year-olds, a parolee from Boys Industrial School at Lancaster, was seen driving the car. Four others were in the auto, police said, but two were believed to have "just gone along for the ride," although officers still are checking.

The 22-year-old also has admitted driving the car but told police during questioning that he didn't know it had been stolen. The man told officers the 17-year-old was trying to sell him the car, Capt. Pyle said.

ECOTA Elects Area Teacher As Secretary

Mrs. Mary Leatherberry of United Local High School was elected secretary at the convention of the East Central Ohio Teachers Association Friday at Canton.

Congress was urged to make appropriations the states can use to imprvoe public education in a resolution adopted by the delegates.

The resolution, in two parts, was among 11 approved.

The first part urged federal appropriations to the states for improving the quality of education and the second part proposed that the state assume a greater responsibility.

The resolution was the only one that brought discussion and was approved after some delegates raised the question of whether the association should go on record for "federal aid."

"It is merely a resolution on financial support for schools, not federal aid," explained Mrs. Frank B. Malone, a teacher at Canton McKinley High School and chairman of the resolutions committee.

"But it means additional appropriations to those now made."

E. R. Malone, superintendent of North Canton schools, succeeded Paul H. Blair, assistant school superintendent of East Liverpool, as president.

W. E. Lewis, superintendent of Tuscarawas County schools, was elected vice president.

The delegates represented 5,000 teachers in Stark, Holmes, Columbiana, Tuscarawas, Wayne and Carroll counties.

The 1962 convention will be held Oct. 26, also in Canton's Memorial Auditorium.

In East Liverpool—beginning next Sunday—whenever you direct dial a long distance call, please dial the numeral "1" first, before dialing the out-of-town number.

Here's how it works: To dial a long distance call within northeastern Ohio—Cleveland, for example—first dial "1" and then dial the telephone number.

To dial a call to a place outside northeastern Ohio—Columbus, for example—first dial "1", then 614 (Area Code for Columbus) and then the telephone number.

This method of placing direct distance calls will soon be introduced through the nation. The purpose is to have a simple, uniform way of getting connected to the Direct Distance Dialing network, so that eventually anyone, anywhere, will be able to dial long distance calls the same way.

So, please remember to dial the numeral "1" first on all direct dialed long distance calls. It's a step toward the future.

Complete instructions are on page 9 of your new telephone directory.

Bell, Kraft Net Touchdowns For ELHS

BY BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

With its ground machinery in high gear, the East Liverpool Potters added some sound defense and survived a brief letdown in the second half to come out on top with a 16-6 victory over Bellaire St. John's Friday night.

One of the poorest crowds of the season — about 2,000 — showed up on a frosty football evening at Patterson Field to see Coach Bob Hedmond's Potters register their third victory in seven games.

East Liverpool confined all of its scoring to the second quarter, but made the lead stand up throughout the second half. St. John's, which now shows a 4 - 3 - 1 record, broke the ice with a fourth period touchdown.

Tom "the Bomb" Kraft exploded East Liverpool's offense last night. In doing so, the pint-sized junior halfback who tips the scales at 145 pounds, turned in his top performance as a Potter.

His running set up the Potters' first touchdown for Jerry Bell who plunged over the right side from one yard out, through a hole cleared by Jim Ferello and Scotty Musaraca.

Bell's touchdown came with 9:06 remaining in the second period.

The Potters drove 77 yards for the touchdown in 13 plays. In the march, Kraft picked up 63 yards in only six carries, featured by runs of 24 and 15 yards.

Kraft scored the second touchdown himself by making a sensational grab of a pass thrown by sophomore quarterback Chuck Baker. The play was good for 17 yards and Kraft made the catch with two St. John's defenders covering him.

He made a diving catch of the ball and came up with it just inside the end zone.

A clipping penalty nullified a touchdown by Kraft on an electrifying 75-yard punt return late in the second quarter.

Although he didn't carry much in the second half, Kraft's total for the contest showed 108 yards gained in 13 carries. He added one two-point conversion on a run after Bell's touchdown and Baker tacked on the other two extra points.

Bell, improving with each contest, gained 54 yards and netted another touchdown.

Bill Durbin, playing defensive end, was a "tiger" on defense for the Potters and deserves a share of credit for his team's second touchdown.

Bellaire attempted a quick kick from its 29-yard line, but Durbin broke through to block the punt and teammate Jim Ferello pounced on the ball at the St. John's 24-yard line.

It took only four plays before Baker and Kraft hooked up for the touchdown after the blocked punt.

After the second period touchdowns, East Liverpool threatened only on one other occasion, driving to the St. John's eight-yard line but a penalty and two incomplete passes stalled the drive on the opponent's 10.

Bellaire scored in the fourth period after the Potters had gambled and failed in St. John's territory.

A fourth-down draw play was short by several yards and St. John's took over on its own 32.

The Irish proceeded to drive 68 yards for their lone touchdown. Big Mike Foster, a 175 - pound junior, carried most of the way and finally banged up the middle for the TD from four yards out with some powerful running.

Quarterback Jack Pompei attempted to sweep the left side, but was stopped on his conversion try.

If Pompei had made the conversion, then the Potters might have been on edge.

After East Liverpool's attack stalled on the Bellaire 10, St. John's bounced back on a 50-yard pass play from Pompei to halfback Dave Trouten.

Bellaire had the ball on the Potters' 37 with 1:32 to go, but St. John's going to the air again, had the threat stopped by Baker who intercepted his second pass of the evening.

East Liverpool ran out the clock on successive quarterback keeps.

The Potters ground game netted 267 yards and another 24 yards in the air.

Coach Ralph Anastasio of St. John's didn't have a senior in the starting lineup. The Irish used a variety of spread formations, but the Potter defenders, not to be confused, limited the visitors to a net of 73 yards on the ground and 59 yards on two completed passes.

Vikings Drop 8th Straight To Cameron

Chances of capturing the season's first victory have dwindled to one for Wells High School's Vikings.

They lost their eighth straight game Friday night, bowing to Cameron, 27-0, before a slim crowd at the Newell gridiron.

Coach Pete Horoszko's undermanned Vikings have one more opportunity to break into the victory column for the 1961 season in entertaining Salineville in the finale Nov. 3

Cameron used long runs and the accurate toe of fullback Sloan to trim the Vikings by a four-touchdown margin.

The invaders opened the second quarter of action to score on Minor's 45-yard run and Sloan's conversion boot for a 7-0 lead.

Minor raced 80 yards late in the second period, and Mason plunged two yards in the third for other touchdowns, with Sloan booting each conversion through the uprights.

Sloan bucked four yards in the final quarter for Cameron's fourth touchdown. His boot on the conversion try was accurate, but Cameron was charged with a 15-yard penalty and failed on a run on the second try.

The Vikings threatened twice in the final quarter, moving inside the Cameron 30 before losing possession on downs.

Ed Wiersbicki, Bill Monroe and Jimmy Johnson moved the ball well on Newell's few scoring marches. Johnson completed six of 20 passes from his quarterback post.

Opponents show an edge in points of 259 to 25 over Newell for the season. The Viking squad has dipped to 18 with injuries and other misfortunes.

Lisbon High spoiled Leetonia's homecoming and parent's night observance Friday in whipping the Bears, 16-7.

Halfback Gary Peruchetti led the Blue Devils to their fourth victory in eight games with two touchdowns.

The defeat pushed Leetonia a bit deeper into the cellar of the Tri-County League. The Bears are 0-6 in league action and 1-6-1 for the year under Coach Ike Farrah.

The Blue Devils retaliated in the same period in pushing 65 yards and scoring on Peruchetti's one-yard buck. Peruchetti also ran over the conversion — first of the season for the squad.

In the third quarter, Lisbon recovered a fumble at its own 16 and drove 84 yards for the insurance touchdown. Peruchetti sliced off the right side for six yards for the score and tacked on the conversion on a run.

Northwestern Cops, 33-0

South Side Drops Finale

Northwestern surprised South Side High's Rams early with the nearly discarded end-around play and went on to post a 33-0 victory Friday night at the Hookstown area school.

Coach Dave Nichol's Rams closed their 1961 campaign with a 3-4 record.

The tough Darlington eleven scored two touchdowns on the almost forgotten end - around play with end Bill Sammons going the distance each time.

Sammons raced 24 yards for Northwestern's first touchdown in the opening period and Dick Thompson booted the conversion for a 7-0 lead.

The touchdown came after Northwestern's Jerry Ingram had scored on a 50-yard run nullified by a penalty for clipping.

Northwestern recovered a fumble of Ram halfback Curtis Clay to tack on another score in the first period. Ken Eakin swept left end for 10 yards for the score and Thompson booted the conversion.

Northwestern had recovered the fumble at midfield and moved into scoring territory on a 33-yard pass play from Ingram to Sammons.

The second period found Sammons scoring on a 20-yard run on the end - around pattern. Thompson's attempted kick failed for the conversion.

Halfback Ingram went 30 yards in the third period and 50 yards in the fourth for Northwestern's other touchdowns. Ingram passed to Sammons for the third period conversion.

The Rams got scoring drives underway twice on fumble recoveries by Scott Walker and Bill Cooper, but were held short of touchdowns. Wilbur King, junior fullback, sparked South Side's ground attack.

Big League Selection Meeting Set Nov. 27

NEW YORK (AP) —The annual major league selection meeting, in which the major league teams pick players from the minor league talent pool, will be held Nov. 27 in Tampa, Fla., Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said Friday.

The minor league meetings will be held in Tampa Nov. 27-30 and the major league meetings at Miami Beach, Dec. 1-2.

Washington will have first pick in the selection meeting, Frick said, with the National and American Leagues alternating in their selections in reverse order of their finish.

Springfield South And Mansfield Beat Top Teams

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Prestige doesn't awe Springfield South and Mansfield. Both teams rose up Friday night to defeat members of the Associated Press' Top 10 high school football teams.

Springfield South handed fourth-ranked Hamilton Garfield its first loss of the season 30-14, and Mansfield dumped slipping Sandusky 28-14. The Blue Streaks, No. 7 in the poll, were downed two weeks ago by Fremont Ross 24-6.

Middletown's eighth-ranked Middies started the long weekend off Thursday night with a 30-12 triumph over Hamilton Taft. Cincinnati Purcell and Cincinnati Roger Bacon, ranked fifth and sixth respectively, end the action Sunday in a double header in the Queen City.

Miami And Boston U. Win; Top Teams Heavily Favored

By The Associated Press

The footbal fortunes at Miami and Boston University are looking up a bit because of a couple of sophomores, Hurricane quarterback George Mira and Terrier halfback Joe DiPietro.

Mira, a sensation early in the season, had sat out a couple of losing games with torn rib cartilages but returned to action Friday night and led Miami to a 10-0 decision over Atlantic Coast Conference co-leader North Carolina.

DiPietro had carried only three times all season, picked up 114 yards and a pair of touchdowns—including an 87-yard jaunt—in leading Boston University to a 20-6 victory over George Washington in the only other major game Friday night. It was BU's second straight victory after losing four straight.

Their performances ushered in a football weekend that has the top-ranked teams, such as Michigan State, Mississippi and Alabama, facing relatively easy bids to remain unbeaten.

Of the country's top four teams, third-ranked Texas faces probably the biggest challenge. The Longhorns, ranked first nationally in total offense, play Rice (3-1) in a Southwest Conference night game that could decide the league title and host spot in the Cotton Bowl.

Texas is 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the conference, while Rice has won its only league start.

Alabama, No. 4, goes against independent Houston (2-2-1)

Mt. Pleasant Is 6th Victim

N. Cumberland Captures Homecoming Battle, 21-0

New Cumberland and Mount Pleasant battled through two scoreless periods before the Blue Raiders exploded for three touchdowns and a 21-0 homecoming triumph Friday night at New Cumberland.

The victory pushed the Blue Raiders another step towards one of the best seasons in the school's history. They show a 6-1-1 chart with two games remaining.

After the scoreless first half, the Raiders went to work and scored in the third period on Jim Burskey's 19-yard run to take a 7-0 lead.

Ed Wudarsky plunged four yards and quarterback Allen Katzenmeyer passed 10 yards to Wudarsky for fourth period touchdowns.

The versatile Katzenmeyer booted all three conversions for Coach John Kuzio's Blue Raiders.

A 13-yard touchdown run by Wudarsky in the final quarter was nullified by a penalty against New Cumberland, charging illegal use of hands.

The Raiders rolled up a margin of 227 yards to 122 in total yardage and had an edge of 11-5 in first downs over the Mounties.

Katzenmeyer completed one of seven passes, while the Mounties (1-6-1) completed four of seven. New Cumberland was penalized twice for 20 yards and the visitors three times for 25 yards.

Regular guard John Patterson of New Cumberland watched the action from the sidelines. He is shelved for the season with an injured rib.

Argentine Champion Faces Wright Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing continues to dip south of the border for new talent with Farid Salim, middleweight champion of Argentina, the latest to get the call. Salim makes his United States debut tonight at Madison Square Garden against Teddy Wright, Detroit spoiler.

The record books say Salim has lost only one of 34 and has fought two draws. The 25-year-old invader has 14 knockouts to his credit.

Wright, 24, has a 37-6-3 record with 18 knockouts.

The 10-round match at 10 p. m. (EDT) will be carried on network (ABC) television.

Columbiana Wins By 14-0

Quarterback Dave Bailey ran for one touchdown and passed for another to lead Columbiana High to a 14-0 victory over Louisville's Leopards Friday night at Louisville.

Bailey's touchdown came on a 10-yard sprint in the first period to send the Clippers ahead, 6-0.

In the third quarter, Columbiana end Paul Schultz downed a runner in the Louisville end zone for a safety.

Later in the same period, Bailey fired a five-yard pass to Schultz for the final touchdown.

Columbiana is now 5-2 for the season and Louisville 4-4. Both squads are now 3-2 in Tri-County League action.

Defeat Drops Midland Out Of Title Race

By ANDY NUZZO

Coach Charles Polce's Midland Leopards, minus fullback Earl Vaughn, the squad's leading ground gainer, dropped a 13-7 decision to the New Brighton Lions Friday night at Midland before some 2,500 fans.

The loss, which left Midland with a 3-4-1-record, eliminated any chance the Leopards had for taking the Midwestern Athletic Conference Class A crown.

Midland scored first when quarterback Steve Trbovich hit end Gary Perkins with a 27-yard scoring toss. Rich Lake delivered the key block that sprung Perkins into the clear.

Lake also set up the touchdown when he intercepted a Paul Popovich aerial on the Midland 46 and brought it back to the Lions' 31. Fullback Jesse hit the middle for four and then Trbovich hit Perkins with the TD pass. Epley convertet to give Midland a 7-0 lead with 6:20 remaining in the first quarter.

New Brighton had one threat in the first half that ended on the Midland 20 after quarterback Chuck Watson hit halfback Royal Thomas with a pass play that started on the Midland 44. The half ended as Thomas was brought down.

The Lions came out and put on one of their familiary second half surges to score the winning TD's.

They took the second half kickoff and marched 56 yards in 11 plays to score, the payoff being a Popovich to end Bud Dalzel pass for 14 yards.

The big ground gainer on the drive was halfback Jim Hutkay, who rolled up 21 yards on the drive. He plunged over for the extra point, but New Brighton was offside and Popovich's pass for the second try fell incomplete and the Leopards led, 7-6, with 5:20 remaining in the third quarter.

Midland stalled another drive of the Lions early in the fourth quarter on the Midland 10-yard line. The drive came about when Trbovich fumbled and Lion fullback Allen Frischkorn fell on the ball on the Midland 39.

With Hutkay, Frischkorn, and halfback Jim Carr carrying the ball, the Lions had a second and goal situation from the five. Watson fumbled the ball and lost five yards to the 10 and Midland halfback Rich Spanik broke up a fourth down pass in the end zone.

Midland couldn't move and punted out to New Brighton on the Midland 43. On the first play, Carr fumbled the pitchout from Watson and Midland end Obrad Cvetovich picked the ball off on the Midland 47.

Here the Leopards launched their last serious threat of the game. On third down, Trbovich hit Perkins with a pass for 14 yards and that gave Midland a first down on the New Brighton 37.

Lake moved around end for nine and Trbovich ran a keeper to the New Brighton 24. At this point, Midland was penalized 15 yards for holding and that moved the ball out to the Lion 46.

On the first play, Lake fumbled a hand-off and Lion tackle John Zilk recovered on the New Brighton 42. Three plays later from the Midland 46, Carr broke over left tackle and into the open for the deciding touchdown. Hutkay plunged for the extra point and the Lions led, 13-7, with 4:20 left in the game.

Trbovich filled the air with desperation passes as the game neared completion but all were in vain. The last one was picked off by Carr on the New Brighton 47 as the game ended.

Leading the Lions on the ground was Carr, who rambled for 67 yards in 7 carries. Behind him was Frischkorn with 57 yards in 13 carries and Hutkay with 48 yards in 11 carries.

In the last minute of play, Midland lost three regulars. Tom Flasco, Ted Vaughn and Bob Love, all tackles, had to leave the game due to injuries. End Paul Cacic and reserve quarterback Don Miller missed the entire game because of injuries.

On the last play of the third quarter, New Brighton lost the services of its starting quarterback, Paul Popovich, due to a leg injury.

Hornung's Neck Due New Exam

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Hornung, runner, blocker and kicker for the Green Bay Packers, has been tabbed for Army duty but a crick in the neck could keep him playing professional football.

Hornung was slated for Army duty next Monday. However, he has been directed to take another physical examination.

As a result, the former Notre Dame football star, might be bypassed in Uncle Sam's latest needs for service.

Hornung, 26, and a bachelor, has been slated for another physical examination which will take about 10 days to be evaluated. He has had trouble with a pinched nerve in his neck.

ROBERT DAVIS
Lecturer For Tuesday Night.

'Arizona Utopia' To Be Theme Of Next Travelogue

Robert Davis will present a colorful travel-documentary film, "Arizona Utopia," in the third of the "World Travel and Adventure" series sponsored by the Quota Club Tuesday night at 8 at Westgate School.

A native of Kansas City, Davis has had 20 years experience behind the lens of his famous camera, producing adventure-packed travelogues, short subjects for television and educational use and commercial films.

His movie includes a little bit of everything from geology to the Grand Canyon and from industry to Indians.

In between are vignettes of the copper, cattle, cotton and citrus industries. The Grand Canyon, Glen Canyon Dam, Hoover Dam, winter sports in the San Francisco Mountains, Oak Creek Canyon and Tombstone are also featured.

The Indians of Arizona are shown in their homes, at school, at the Navajo Fair, at work and at play. Ruins of cliff dwellings and the slowly crumbling city of Jerome make a fine comparison.

Miss Gladys DeBolt, chairman, said single admissions will be sold at the door.

Lions Club Told Tax Stand Airing Apparently Out

Attempts to arrange a meeting at which Mayor Bert H. Goodballet and O. Earl Greenawalt could make public statements on the city's income tax measure have fallen through, it was reported at the Lions Club meeting Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

The club was told that Mayor Goodballet had informed a representative he plans to issue a public statement prior to the Nov. 7 election. The representative said he was told by the mayor that he personally favors the tax, but will not pressure for votes to support the tax.

The club then informed Greenawalt, the Republican nominee, that it would be unfair to have him appear alone, the representative said.

Charles Herman, president, presided.

Dr. John A. Fraser discussed a recent trip over the Shenandoah Skyline and through the Virginias and Carolinas and over the Great Smokies into Tennessee and West Virginia.

Club At Hookstown Has Evening Of 500

Mrs. Lawrence Searight of Hookstown entertained the Club 13 Thursday night when two tables of 500 were in play.

Trophies went to Mrs. Virginia Rogers and Mrs. John Andrews. Secret pal gifts were received by Mrs. Harold Crooks, for her wedding anniversary and Mrs. Blaine Mott, for her birthday anniversary.

Lunch was served by the hostess. Mrs. Virginia Searight will be hostess Nov. 30.

Killed In Upset

GREENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 26-year-old Dayton motor-cyclist, Ronald Gene Foreman, died Friday night in a hospital here after his two-wheeler upset on Ohio 49 about 11 miles southeast of Greenville four hours earlier.

Social Security Job Data Given For New Office

Area residents interested in applying for positions with the proposed new Social Security Administration office in East Liverpool may now obtain applications or information concerning openings.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, 18th District congressman, has advised Don R. Gosney of Columbiana, County Democratic chairman, on procedures to be followed.

Residents without Civil Service status should first obtain application forms from the Post Office and make arrangements for an examination.

From that point, they should contact the Social Security regional representative, Byron E. Goetz, 2012 W. 25th St., Room 300, Cleveland 13, for information concerning openings.

Bids for the rent of office space for the proposed downtown office were opened by the General Services Administration at Cleveland recently, but authorities have not notified area officials about the results.

Salineville CP Fund Totals $164

SALINEVILLE — A total of $164 was collected in a house-to-house drive for Cerebral Palsy funds Thursday here and throughout the district, Mrs. Charles Mundy, chairman of the campaign, reported.

Mrs. Mundy, who said it was the first CP drive in the area, explained that some returns were not in yet, and the total collection is expected to be greater. Coin containers are yet to be counted, she added.

The report from Summitville is not complete. About $25 was collected in the Highlandtown district. About 40 volunteers took part.

Although five districts have not reported a total of $3,785.10 has been reached so far in the annual fund drive of the Columbiana County Affiliate of the United Cerebral Palsy Association.

Richard Brian, chairman, said the results of several areas covered with house-to-house canvassing have not been turned in.

The drive closes officially Tuesday.

The Legend Behind the Jack-o'-Lantern

By MARYA SAUNDERS and ROBERT GAINES

WE ALWAYS take time out around Halloween to carve pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns for our homes. Our neighbors scoff at us. They say it's hard and messy work. We agree—and go right on carving.

What our neighbors don't know about jack-o'-lanterns is that they are functional as well as decorative. Any Irishman familiar with his ancestral legends can tell you why—whether you want to know the story or not.

The tale begins long, long ago (as all Irish tales begin) with a nasty farmer named Jack, known throughout the country for his drunkenness and meanness.

One Halloween—that night of the year when lost souls and other strange creatures are seen wandering in the bogs—Jack was slouched at his table in a tavern sipping potheen and chewing on a turnip from his field. He had almost reached the bottom of the jug when suddenly he had a fluttery feeling in his heart. He felt his soul start to slip away from his body.

"Now, me lad, it's time to go," a voice said, and Jack saw a man with a sour smile sitting at the table beside him.

"Who are ye? And what do ye want?" snarled Jack.

"There's some that call me Old Nick, and others call me Satan, and there's those that call me the Devil himself, but what's a name? I've come for your soul, Jack, boyo, and let's be on our way."

Jack thought about this, for he was a crafty man. Then, swallowing a bite of his turnip, he said, "Sure, and let's have a drink before we go. If it's a long trip, we'll be destroyed by the cold and damp."

Said the Devil, "That's a grand idea. But I carry no money with me."

"Well, sir," Jack said slyly, "you can do most anything. Why don't you change yourself into a sixpence? As soon as I've paid for the two whiskies, you can turn yourself back."

The Devil laughed and slapped Jack on the back. "'Tis a bright lad ye are, Jack, and glad I am to know you." There was a hiss of smoke, and a coin clinked onto the table. Jack snatched it up and slipped it into his purse, which had a catch in the shape of a cross; Jack knew demons could not pass over a cross.

"Let me out," the Devil shouted. "'Tis a bitter hard thing you're doing. Oh, wirra, wirra, have you no pity?" But Jack only laughed.

The Devil whined and cursed. Finally Jack grew tired of the commotion and said, "Shut your noise and I'll tell ye what I'll do. I'll let you go if you promise never to come after me again."

"Impossible," shrieked the Devil.

"Them's me terms," said Jack in a hard voice. The Devil, realizing he was dealing with a shrewd man, decided to take the best he could get. "You've done me this time," the evil one said, "but don't be thinking this ends it." And he disappeared into the floor of the tavern like a draft of air.

These final words frightened Jack, and he had it in mind to lead a good life, go to church on Sunday, and no longer beat his wife. But being good was too hard, and he soon fell back into his wild ways.

After a time, Jack's body wore out and he died, but no one claimed his soul. He packed a large handkerchief full of turnips from his field and marched up the skies to heaven. But the man at the gate turned him away because of his dissolute life.

Jack then went to the gates of hell and shouted, "Oh, I'm sore weary with all this walking. Won't you let me in for a rest?"

The Devil peeked out. "Oh, it's you, is it?" he said. "You can't enter here. We've made an agreement."

"But where will I go?" asked Jack piteously.

"Back where you came from."

"How can I find my way in this fearsome dark?"

The Devil didn't answer. Instead, he threw a live coal from hell's furnace at Jack. Jack ducked and sat grieving until he noticed the coal was giving considerable light. He popped the coal into a large turnip, cut holes for light, and with this "jack-o'-lantern" he has been wandering the dark byways of the earth ever since, a lost and forlorn soul with no place to go.

Over the centuries, the Irish adapted this tale in their observance of All Saints' Eve. They carved jack-o'-lanterns from rutabagas, potatoes, or turnips and sat around a village bonfire built to frighten away evil spirits roaming the glens. But how would they get home safely when the bonfire died? The Irish had a solution: they put the last bright embers in their jack-o'-lanterns and dashed through the eerie blackness to their homes, shouting: "The cropped black sow seize the hindmost!"

So, dear neighbors, that is why we are inspecting the pumpkin crop this week. And one more thing, neighbors: don't be disturbed if, during the bleak and windy night this Halloween, you hear two tremulous voices calling:

"The cropped black sow seize the hindmost!"

The evil spirits of Halloween are rising—are you ready for them?

COVER:

Bob Taylor focuses on the perennial symbol of Halloween—bewitching jack-o'-lanterns. But they are also pumpkins with an eerie tale in their past. See above.

Horse-Roping Fun

By Donovan A. Moore

Paste a picture of a horse on heavy cardboard. Place a small nail in the cardboard and take turns tossing three jar rings around the nail. If your jar ring lands on the nail, you have roped your horse.

Winding the Web

Are you having a spooky Halloween party this week? Then a colorful web for the witches to wind is the game for you.

To make your preparations, take lots of colored string, a different color and a different length for each player. The center of the web may be on a table with a big fat spider sitting next to it. All the strings start here and follow a mischievous course around table legs, over chairs, under books, through holes, across each other, over pictures, into other rooms, each going a different way until they reach a surprise caught in the spider's web.

Each player takes a string and starts winding it into a ball without breaking it until they reach the end. The first one to bring back the surprise—which may be candy, apples, or anything else you may wish—will win a big prize. The others keep the surprises they find at the web.

Halloween Artists By Tom Jones

Each player sits on the floor with a pencil and paper. Turn out the lights and tell each one to draw some Halloween object—ghost, black cat, owl, jack-o'-lantern, witch, etc.—writing what it is just below his picture.

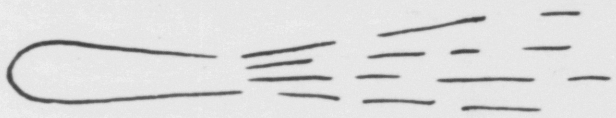

Seven minutes later, turn on the lights and select the best art work. Most of it is pretty funny.

Your Emotions Can Make You Well

By LEWIS L. ROBBINS, M. D.
Medical Director, Hillside Hospital, Glen Oaks, N. Y.
as told to James C. G. Conniff

PHOTOGRAPHS BY RICHARD CHECANI

A noted psychiatrist reveals a simple secret that has helped many patients find within themselves a remedy for destructive tensions

Dr. Lewis L. Robbins was associated with the famed Menninger Foundation in Topeka, Kans., for 18 years. During this time he was director of the Foundation's Outpatient Division and Department of Adult Psychiatry and chairman of its Psychotherapy Research Project. Since 1958 he has been medical director of the Hillside Hospital in Glen Oaks, N. Y.

SHE WAS A WOMAN in her early 30s, happily married to a successful poultry farmer and the proud mother of five children, oldest age 10. She was pretty, nicely dressed, and apparently self-possessed. Inwardly, however, she was a wreck.

When she first came to me at the suggestion of her family doctor, she had let the normal emotional stress of running a busy household build up inside her almost to the point of explosion.

Her trouble was in not knowing how to find an outlet for the ordinary feeling of anger and frustration which every mother has—an outlet acceptable to the neighbors, that is, and to her family. By talking with her I found that on this score she was like a surprising number of women. They have the mistaken notion that it is improper to give vent to routine emotions. As a result, they develop a haunted, driven look. In my patient's case, it told me the moment I saw her: this woman is going to be ill unless she gets help in a hurry.

Without hospitalizing her, we gave her that help. I saw her not long ago. Smiling and relaxed now, she leaned out the window of her car to tell me, "I've stopped building windmills, Doctor. From here on, it'll be dikes and canals, the way you said. It's the only kind of life that makes sense."

And not only for housewives, she might have added. The teen-ager from our Adolescent Pavilion waved cheerily as I rode up the tree-lined drive to my office. Not long ago this awkward youth, tense from the strain of trying to control the emotional rip tides of adolescence, wouldn't even have nodded. Today, thanks to the patient guidance we were able to give him, the glum anxiety which had made him painfully withdrawn has vanished.

He turned toward me, grinning and confident the way a boy should be. "No more windmills, Doc!" he called. "That's a promise!"

Were these patients the victims of hallucination—modern Don Quixotes who, like that tragicomic Spanish knight, imagined windmills were their enemies? Not at all. Like countless other men, women, and children at hospitals like Hillside, where we specialize in mental health, these were people recovering from actual or threatened ill-

adventure 30 years ago awaiting the loser

Byron Rickards (l.) & Norman Simmons after Texas hijack.

The rebels didn't jail me. The town of Arequipa was a jail itself. There was no U. S. consul and only one telegraph line to the outside world—and it was controlled by the rebels. I went to the local British consul and asked advice.

"They mean business," he told me. "Don't try to play the hero. If it's life or death, fly the plane and drop the leaflets. However, I'll draw up a legal document which says you are doing this under duress. Insist they sign it before you take up your plane."

THIS WOULD BE a last resort, I told myself. First I'd try to bluff these rebels into leaving me and my crew out of their fight. Each day I barged into the prefect's office and noisily demanded our freedom, invoking the name of the U. S. Marines and other fearful thunderbolts. I managed to drag on the stalemate. Each encounter, though, was a harder test of wills, and after six days I was sure the breaking point had come.

I found the prefect's office filled with armed guards, sullen and belligerent, and I knew something important was stirring. Before I could loose my daily harangue, the prefect began talking. "It is vital that some of our leaders reach the fighting. You, Captain, will fly them to . . ."

I reminded him I could not put my plane at the disposal of nonauthorized groups. The prefect went rigid behind his desk, and the guards watched him hungrily, I thought, for a final command. I remembered the British consul's warning—don't be a stubborn hero. After all, transporting some passengers is no crime, particularly if the consul's document was signed by the rebels.

Still, I resented being bullied and had to play one more card. "I'm sure this flight is important," I said, "but is it so important that you can risk U.S. intervention? Anything you've won would be lost."

I didn't know it then, but I'd struck the only responsive chord in this tough old rebel's make-up. The rebels were advancing all along the seacoast, and foreign interference was the last threat to their success. As much as they needed me and my plane, they couldn't gamble on a new enemy.

"Get out of here," the prefect growled.

On March 2, shouts and gunfire ripped the somnambulant town. As I trotted toward the plaza to investigate, I heard, "Viva la revolución!" and I knew the rebels had won. Augusto Leguia y Salcedo, dictator of Peru since 1919, had been overthrown.

A celebration burst out—for the victorious rebels and for a liberated gringo pilot. The prefect, my friend now, slapped my back jovially in the excitement. "You are a good fellow, amigo," he conceded. "You and I—we saved the revolution, keeping those North Americans out, eh?"

I was feeling too good to argue. I even agreed to fly one rebel chief to Lima; it didn't matter now. My wife was upset, of course, when I told her about flirting with a firing squad, but I felt pretty cocky about winning my battle of wills.

"Don't worry," I told her, "something like this happens only once in a lifetime." I wish somebody had told the Beardens that.

I was taxiing along when a gang of men dashed out. I saw one level his rifle at me.

ness of the mind. They were the new owners of a simple secret which, had they known about it earlier, might have eliminated their need for a doctor.

The windmills and dikes they spoke of so knowingly are a comparison I use to give troubled people an idea of what probably has gone wrong inside them, what they themselves may have done to cause it, and what they can do to correct it.

Almost everyone knows that windmills and dikes are the main types of control which people in The Netherlands use to keep water from flooding their country. But to make sure, I point out that a windmill doesn't just decorate romantic landscapes. It is a form of water pump that also is used on many American farms, especially in the prairie states.

WINDMILLS need constant attention and work. You always have to expend energy to keep them in repair. If they break down, their owners may be in serious trouble. That in itself is a worry.

But there is no such strain or anxiety with a dike. Build a dike right the first time and, except for having to inspect it occasionally, your worries about being flooded are over. You can relax and enjoy life, because besides holding back the raging waters the dike permits you to lay out orderly canals. Along those canals, at your command, the waters flow peacefully.

Now apply these two defense systems to your emotions. We all know that, if left uncontrolled like the sea, emotions can swamp us. So our first object is to get them under control. If the kind of control we choose, however, is a flock of windmills, we find ourselves caught up in a frenzy of effort to make sure our defense system doesn't break down. The measure may work, but to keep it working takes a lot out of us in nervous energy. The constant strain makes us so edgy we "could scream." In time it may actually make us sick.

Instead of windmills, therefore, I try to get troubled patients to see the benefit of building permanent dikes for their emotions. They are agreeably surprised when—like the housewife and the teenager—they find that as the dike goes up, quiet canals for draining off emotional surpluses begin to take the place of turbulence. With a little practice, these patients are soon deepening their canals and using them, like people of The Netherlands, to add something positive to their lives.

What happens here is the opposite of what occurs in psychosomatic illness. There you have actual bodily disorders arising from emotional conflicts which the patient buries deep inside himself, either without realizing it or by means of energy-wasting "windmills."

FOR A CLOSE-UP of how emotions can hurt us physically, take anger. This is the emotion hardest to deal with in our civilized society. Say that, for the sake of appearances, you choose not to get angry. Unfortunately, the energy that would have become anger doesn't just evaporate. If not discharged in some way, it turns inward. This is so because when you are angry, certain other phenomena occur besides the feeling of anger, such as muscle tension and higher blood pressure. Blood pressure, if kept elevated, thickens artery walls and makes them stay thick. Soon we have chronic hypertension, a key factor in heart attacks.

What can we do to direct our emotions so that they help us instead of hurting us?

The first thing is to accept those emotions without false shame or guilt. You can acquire the ability to do that by reminding yourself that anger, for example, is normal. In that way you will overcome the need to repress your emotions. The simple fact that you are no longer denying they exist will, in turn, enable you to find ways of discharging these feelings and of preserving mental health.

Specifically, there are three constructive ways of discharging your emotions:

1. Play in the right way, and do it regularly.
2. Work in the right way, and don't overdo it.
3. Make friends in the right way, and remember that others, too, have emotional problems for which they may not yet have learned the secret of dikes and canals.

In everyday life, we can keep our emotions from either bottling up to hurt us or running wild to hurt others by making regular, sensible, conscious use of play. At least 90 percent of play is aggressive and involves hitting something: golf, tennis, ping pong, hunting, fishing—you name it. In play we work off our feelings of hostility, frustration, and anger by hitting something inanimate instead of a fellow human being.

It doesn't seem to make too much difference whether we channel the outlet for our emotions into play actively or passively. When we get riled up at a ball game and yell, "Kill the ump!" we enjoy the activity more for having done so. The excitement of people watching a boxing match is a classic example of how even spectator sports provide us with orderly canals for draining off excess antagonism.

Work, too, can supply us with healthy channels for discharging emotions if we bear in mind that up to a point, which will be different for everyone, work by its very nature is competitive. We are constantly striving to do a better job than the next fellow and earn more money than we really need because it shows how much more talented and aggressive we are.

Up to a point, work done in that spirit can be healthy. When it becomes an obsession, however, when we resent weekends because they interfere with getting on with the job, when we grow bored with relaxing in the bosom of our family, then work is a curse. We are overdoing it. We are on the brink of trouble—unless we can find a breather for ourselves in athletics or in a totally different, preferably unremunerative, kind of work like mowing the lawn or laying a patio in easy stages.

Women, too, need relief from the frustrations of their day. What wife and mother isn't constantly battling something? Household dirt is an endless frustration. Washing, mending, cooking, and caring for often-quarrelsome children can become a torturous routine.

A family will have only themselves to blame if they do not see to it that Mother gets relief before the "blowup." This may take the form of a golf-club membership, swimming at the shore, or nothing more elaborate than a $2.50 badminton set for the back yard. The thing that counts is making sure Mother gets time off for play—and then actually plays.

All of us need to take positive emotional-discharge measures if we hope to achieve anything like true over-all fitness. This means 1) developing and using canals of the right kind of play and work to siphon off the accumulated antagonisms of each day, and 2) providing in that way the "something extra" of improved muscle tone. Combined, these two spell health.

So endowed, each of us is infinitely better equipped to make friends because we have discovered how to resolve the welter of hostilities inside ourselves that interferes with friendship. We can keep friends in spite of the frictions that inevitably arise because we now understand the mechanism behind those frictions and can make allowances for it. We can be better neighbors in spite of the tensions we suffer because we have faced up to the truth about our emotional selves and found it not frightening, not undignified, not shameful, but simply part of being human.

We have faced it, and found it manageable. And from our success we see, to our amazement and delight, that others, too, have taken heart.

Emotions and Science

■ This article should not be misinterpreted as suggesting that each of us is his own best physician. Today the average person faced with emotional difficulties has at his command an arsenal of highly trained medical talent to aid and direct his recovery. He should use it. This arsenal includes:

1. The psychiatrist, who is a medical doctor with years of specialized training in afflictions of the mind to round out his complete knowledge of the body and its processes;

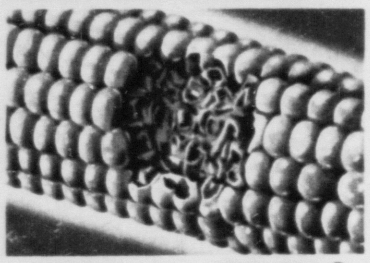

2. The psychoanalyst, also a physician, is a specialist within psychiatry who by encouraging the patient to delve into his past life seeks to bring to light the hidden causes of mental disturbances, and so to effect a lasting cure;

3. The psychologist, who is not a medical doctor but whose long studies of mental function and human motivation enable him to guide normal minds to the fullest development of their capacities, and to aid in the recovery of mental health by those who cannot manage the ordinary tensions of existence unless they get help.

In addition, as physicians, the psychiatrist and psychoanalyst have access to a remarkable new array of medications which make it easier for the person in need of help to cooperate with and benefit from those who are trained to give it.

My sole purpose in recommending the building of dikes and canals to control emotions constructively is a preventive one. For, in the last analysis, mental health begins and ends in the patient himself. It is his to cultivate or to neglect. May these words help to reduce neglect among all who read them.

I Was Hijacked Twice!

The pilot whose jet recently was pirated tells of a similar —a game of bluff and counterbluff with a firing squad

THE CABIN DOOR suddenly opened, and the hostess and a stranger burst into the cockpit of my Boeing 707. I started to ask what was wrong but got the answer before I could open my mouth.

"I've got a gun on this girl, Captain," the stranger said, "and you're flying us to Cuba or else. I'm not kidding."

You probably know the end of this hijacking adventure which happened last August. I convinced the gunman I had to land my jet at El Paso, Texas, for fuel. The hijacker and his son, Leon and Cody Bearden, held me, my crew of five, and four passengers as hostages for 10 hours. Before Bearden could force me to take off again, U. S. marshals, border patrolmen, and FBI agents rushed out on the field. Over the roar of the engines, I could hear the sharp staccato of machine-gun fire.

Good night, I thought, are they really trying to hit us?

Actually they were puncturing our tires to cripple the plane—but some of the slugs blasted through our cabin, and I sweated out the possibility of one exploding 90,000 pounds of aviation gasoline under us.

After the shooting, we all played the waiting game inside the crippled plane. Would we get the Beardens, or would they get us? The hours dragged by: each side threatened, cajoled, bluffed. But the Beardens were unwavering, and we waited for some miracle. It came when something distracted Leon Bearden's attention. His gun wavered, and a passenger-hostage, Leonard Gilam, an off-duty border patrolman, socked the hijacker, then locked him in a full nelson. Bearden's son was jumped by my second officer Norm Simmons and FBI agent Francis Crosby. That ended the melee, and I relaxed for the first time since seeing the dull metallic glint of a gun in Bearden's hand.

And I also reminisced. This had been the second time in my flying career that I'd been a victim of hijackers. I don't think any other pilot can say that—or would want to.

My mind went back to 1931, a big year in my life. I was just 21, and I'd won my big break—jockeying a flight between Lima, Peru, and Santiago, Chile—2,000 miles of stop-skip-and jumping over some of the most rugged terrain in the hemisphere. Nowadays a pilot would blanch at a schedule like that, but my wife and I weren't tied down with children, and I'd gone into flying for excitement—so why not South America and unknown adventure?

On February 21, 1931, that unknown adventure became painfully familiar. I had set down my Ford trimotor plane at Arequipa in southern Peru, right near the jagged 20,000-foot peaks of the Andes. I was taxiing along when a gang of men dashed from a dilapidated hangar and started shouting—"Stop! Halt!" I saw one level a rifle and aim right at my head. I could have given it full throttle and tried to escape—but one slug in me or the controls would doom the plane and the eight people aboard. I cut the engine.

The gun-toting Peruvian greeted me formally as I stepped from the plane. "My country is in revolt, Captain," he explained. "I am a lieutenant in the revolution, and I have orders to detain any flight not on a rebel mission."

HE TOOK ME to the local prefect, who was very blunt. "You and your crew will join our air force," he said. "If you refuse, we will stand you against a wall and shoot you."

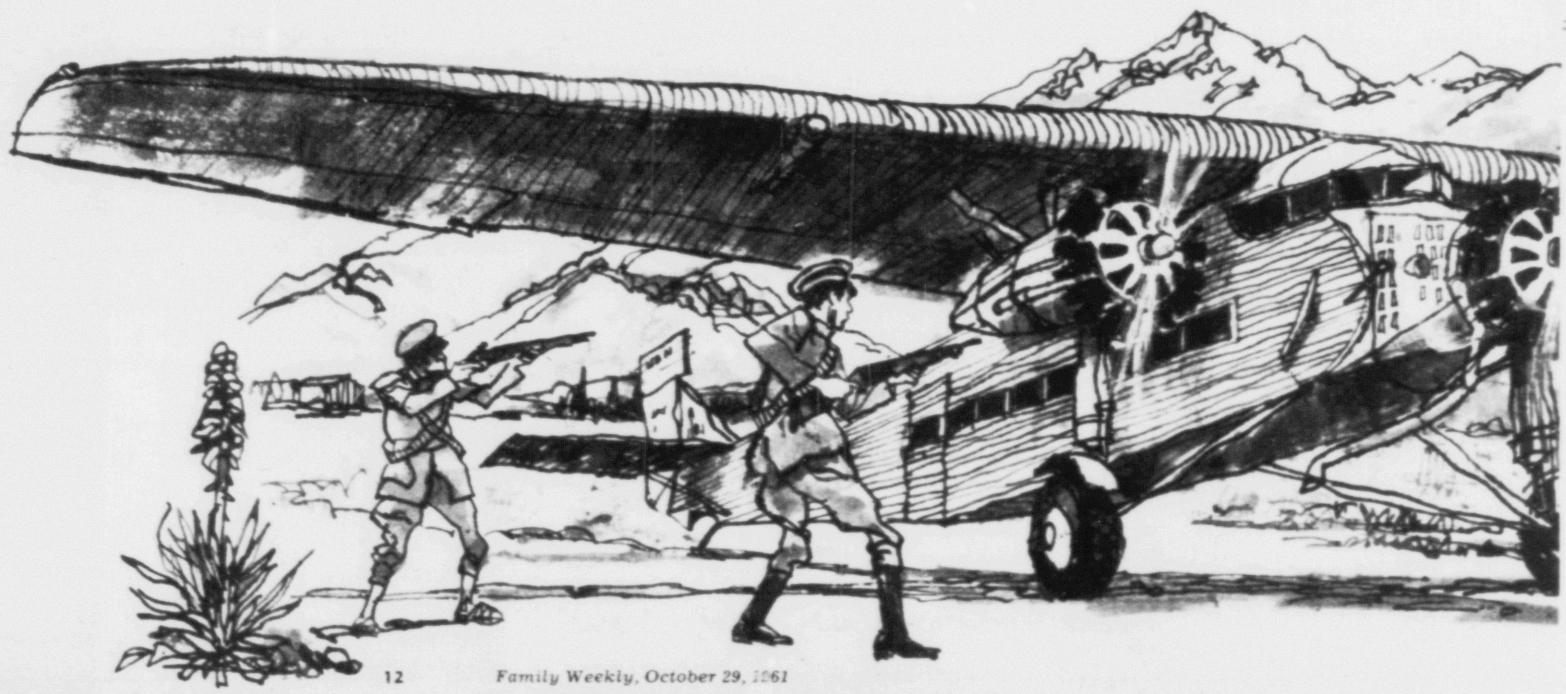

The lieutenant shoved his ever-ready rifle into my ribs; the flesh on my spine tightened and tingled. "If you shoot me," I said, "you'll end up fighting the United States, too. This plane is from the U. S., and so is the mail."

The lieutenant's rifle sagged; so did the prefect's bravado. I demanded that he permit the mail to proceed as scheduled in a small plane. The prefect agreed—provided that I, in turn, agreed to drop propaganda leaflets on Lima.

"First the mail," I said, "then we'll talk about leaflets."

The swarthy prefect frowned. "All right, Captain. We will allow the mail to go through. If you do not repay our courtesy—then the firing squad."

The next days were like those hours I spent with the Beardens 30 years later: torturous hours of waiting, with one side and then the other bargaining, threatening, bluffing—but how much can you bluff against desperate men with arms?

The Bigger They Are, the Harder They Fall

As a devotee of do-it-yourself,
Would he hire a workman to put up that shelf?
It only needed some tools and time
And a neighbor's ladder on which to climb.
So he tackled the job—why, a child could do it!
He still insists there was nothing to it
Requiring a carpenter. Not on your life!
And he'd have proved it if his wife
Hadn't phoned a workman to finish the thing
Before his arm was out of the sling!

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

A couple moved into a new home and on the first day their neighbors all came over to greet them. The couple felt they had moved into a friendly residential area, but after this initial welcome they were snubbed. After a month of icy stares, the husband approached his nearest neighbor. "What's wrong?" he asked. "Why is everybody so unfriendly?"

"Well," the neighbor replied, "you practically called us dishonest."

"Why, I have the highest regard for all of you!" the homeowner exclaimed.

"Then why do you keep your tool shed locked?" the neighbor snapped. "Nobody around here steals anything he can borrow!"

—Ben Cassell

As any driver will tell you, today's horn of plenty is in the car just behind you.

—Anna Herbert

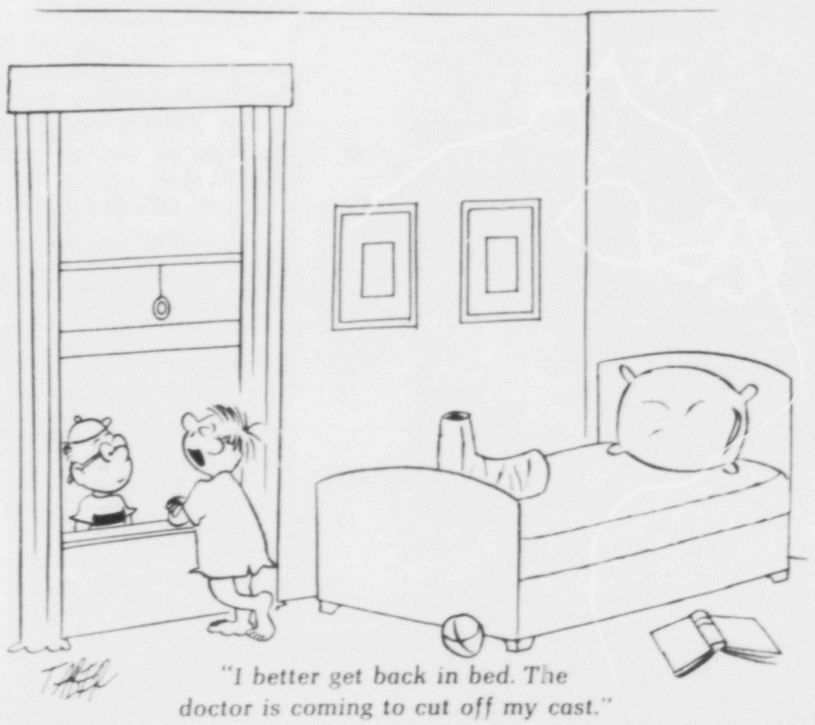

The woman drove into a service station and complained that her motor was noisy and burning more gas than usual. The mechanic checked the car and noticed the choke pulled out. "Do you know what that's for?" he asked.

"Well, I'm not sure," the woman answered, "but when I'm driving I always pull it out to hang my purse there."

—Frances Benson

An angelic little girl rang the doorbell on Halloween and demanded trick-or-treat. The homeowner was so beguiled he reached for a large apple and dropped it into her bag. "And what do you say, little girl?" he asked sweetly.

The child looked into her bag and then up at the man. "I say," she replied, "that you and your darn apple just broke every cookie I've collected tonight!" —Jim Henry

"I better get back in bed. The doctor is coming to cut off my cast."

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

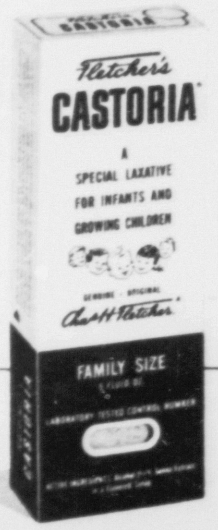

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs which are so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances...the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

It takes a child's laxative to fulfill a child's needs

"Who Said The Catholic Church Never Changes?"

Bill remembered when Pope Pius XII changed the law to permit the drinking of water before Holy Communion.

"How about that?" he asked his Catholic friend, Joe. "And look at the changes the Church makes in the requirements of fast and abstinence, and the rules for Lent. And the Pope has changed the hours for Mass, to mention just one other change! What do you mean, the Catholic Church is the same everywhere and never changes its laws?"

An informed Catholic, of course, could have told Bill that certain laws of the Catholic Church have been undergoing changes all the way back to apostolic times. The Canon Law of the Church, for example, consists of more than 2,400 canons which have evolved through many changes into the form in which they are promulgated today.

But there are two kinds of laws upon which the doctrine of the Church is founded, and which are never changed. One is the natural law; the other the positive divine law. They are in one sense the basic laws of the Church. But in their primary and larger way they are the laws of God, which the Church obviously has no authority to change. The Church can and does promulgate them; but she never amends or alters them.

The natural moral laws, of course, are those which God has made evident to the reason and intelligence of man . . . man shall adore God, shall honor his parents, shall not kill, or lie, or steal. When man's conscience failed its obligation to observe these laws, God put them into words through the Commandments and through the ministry of His Son, Jesus.

To proclaim these laws again and again, and to urge man's compliance with them, is a proper function of the Church. But she cannot amend or alter them in any way.

This is also true of the divine laws enunciated by Our Lord, which the Church is commissioned to proclaim—but not to change. In authorizing the Church to dispense the Sacraments, Jesus did not specify the exact occasions or conditions of fulfillment. Thus, when the Church prescribes such occasions or conditions and later changes them, she is not changing the divine law itself.

Spread over the face of the earth . . . with her people living under a variety of political, social and economic conditions . . . the Church must adapt her regulations to varying needs. But in the basic laws of the Church . . . in the essentials of God's truths . . . she remains changeless and unchanging down the centuries of time.

I was just thinking...®

ALMOST everybody in our town knows Kenny.

He has been working in one store or another since he was a teen-ager, and that's a long time ago.

One thing about Kenny is that he has always been well-groomed. But the most important thing about him is that he wears a smile as well as he wears his suits.

A while back, a few of the fellows around town began kidding Kenny a little. When they dropped into the store where he worked, he couldn't always find what they wanted. When he did, he couldn't read the price tag.

The fellows gave Kenny a bad time about that. They said if he'd get to bed nights instead of carousing around town, he'd do a better job in the daytime. Kenny always smiled and agreed.

One morning Kenny didn't come to work and only then did the customers up and down the street discover that Kenny hadn't been staying out nights at all.

He had been going blind.

Almost everybody in our town suffered. When we met, we talked about Kenny and his smile, Kenny and his secret courage, Kenny and his determination to fight the darkness. But there was nothing we could do about it.

He was gone from our town a long time. When he came back, he was well-groomed as always. He wore a smile as well as he wore his suit.

But he carried a long white cane.

He spoke to those who met him on the street. He looked them right in the eye and heard their voices and then called each of them by name.

And then he opened his own store for the first time in his life. He made blueprints from plywood. He put brads along the shelves so he could tell even better than before what he was looking for and how much it cost. He kept sales records in Braille, and he read volumes, but by listening instead of looking.

So now Kenny is walking down our streets once more. He is smiling more than ever before. We smile, too, because he has kept the darkness a little further away from the rest of us.

And our town is all right again.

Basic Pastries

Pastry I

1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup lard, hydrogenated vegetable shortening, or all-purpose shortening
2½ tablespoons cold water

1. Sift flour and salt together into a bowl. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until pieces are the size of small peas.
2. Sprinkle the water over mixture, a teaspoonful at a time, mixing lightly with a fork after each addition. Add only enough water to hold pastry together. Work quickly; do not overhandle. Shape into a ball and flatten on a lightly floured surface.
3. Roll from center to edge into a round about ⅛ in. thick and about 1 in. larger than over-all size of pan.
4. Loosen pastry from board with spatula and fold in quarters. Gently lay pastry in pan and unfold it, fitting it to the pan so that it is not stretched.
5. Trim edge with scissors or sharp knife so pastry extends about ½ in. beyond edge of pie pan. Fold extra pastry under at edge, and flute.
6. Thoroughly prick bottom and sides of shell with a fork. (Omit pricking if filling is to be baked in shell.)
7. Bake at 450°F 10 to 15 min., or until crust is light golden brown. Cool on rack. One 8- or 9-in. pastry shell

Pastry II

1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup cooking oil (not olive oil)
2½ tablespoons ice water

1. Sift flour and salt together into a bowl. Beat oil and water together with a fork until thickened and creamy.
2. Immediately pour the oil-water mixture over entire surface of flour. Toss and mix with fork until all flour is moistened.
3. Form dough into ball. Place dough between squares of waxed paper. Roll lightly from center to edge into a 12-in. round. Peel off top sheet of paper.
4. Place pastry in a pie pan; peel off remaining waxed paper. Fit into pan; fold edge under, and flute.
5. If pastry is to be baked before filling, prick bottom and sides with a fork.
6. Bake at 475°F 10 to 12 min., or until golden brown. One 8- or 9-in. pastry shell

Pastry III

¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted flour
1½ teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter
2 to 3 tablespoons cold water

1. Sift first three ingredients together into a bowl. Cut in butter with a pastry blender or two knives until pieces are the size of small peas.
2. Proceed as in pastry I.

One 9-in. pastry shell
